DEDICATION

"... to be here dedicated..."—Lincoln

Because of your many years of faithful service, your sympathetic understanding, your kind, even-temper, and your infectious smile, we are proud to dedicate this issue of the yearbook to you, who will always be fondly remembered by those who had the good fortune to be in your classes.

It is for these attributes that we, the 1954 Colonial staff, happily dedicate this book to you —

FOREWORD

"By necessity, by proclivity, and by desire, we all quote."

—Emerson

To us, who are sharing the joys and sorrows of high school years, one of the most important climaxes of the year comes with the appearance of the yearbook. For a few days mad confusion reigns, much to the horror of our beloved faculty who endure the disruptions with benign dispositions, while students cure the seasonal "book-signing" plague.

Long after the last Colonial has been signed and stored to gather dust in some forgotten corner it may be pulled out and viewed with fond memories. During the years spent at school the little joys and exciting experiences are passed off as ordinary happenings, but viewed in retrospect a nostalgic haze of pleasant associations overtakes the reader.

We, of the Colonial staff, have tried to center the activities and special events of the year around a theme based on quotations. It is our hope that in some cases these borrowed words will provide amusement and that all of them will prove interesting and informative. Our feelings about these "words of wisdom" are aptly expressed in the phrase: "What oft was thought, but ne'er so well express'd."

—Alexander Pope.

"The foundation of every state is the education of its youth."—Diogenes

FAR from being "bored" of education, the five persons who comprise the Hempstead Board of Education give unceasingly of their time and effort in order to serve the community. Each member serves for a period of five years, with one newly elected member each year. They meet regularly once a month, and hold special meetings when necessary.

Their work is aided by the services of the Superintendent of Schools, who is responsible for the administration of all policies adopted by the Board, and by the assistance of a clerk and an attorney.

The Board of Education believes that schools of this community should be used to their fullest extent. They have made it possible to establish a complete adult school, which now offers eighty-three courses to all residents of the district.

Board of Education

DR. W. AMOS KINCAID
Superintendent

"The tall, the wise, the reverend head . . ."—Watts

ALTHOUGH Dr. Kincaid's work entails a great deal of responsibility, he looks upon himself as a "team-leader" rather than the head of our entire school system. He points out that he is assisted by a good number of people, including the high school principal, elementary principals, a director of adult education, the superintendent of buildings, and the assistant to the superintendent in charge of business affairs.

But despite all this assistance, our superintendent devotes a great deal of time and energy to the huge task of directing our schools. It is easy to see what an excellent job he is doing, judging by the many improvements in Hempstead during Dr. Kincaid's seven years here.

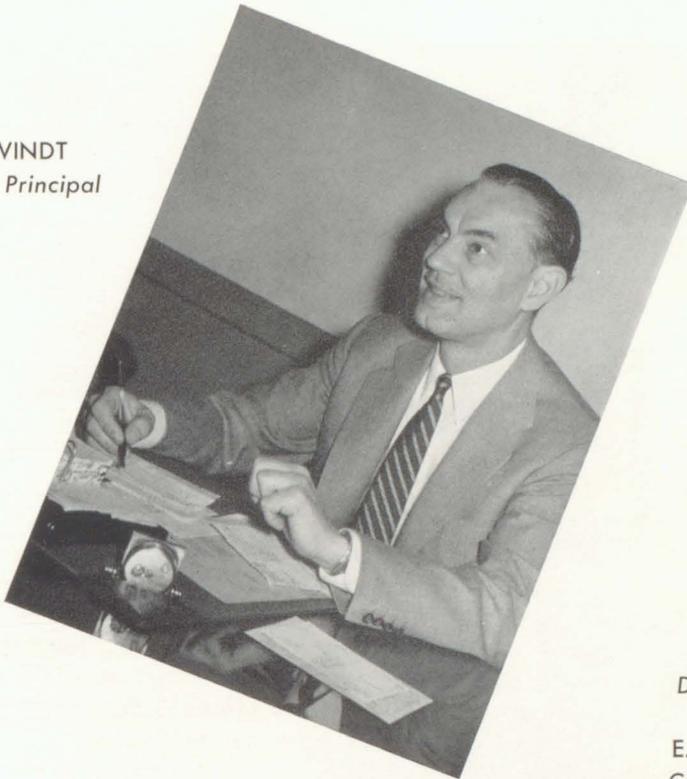

WILLIAM D. BEDDOW
Principal

"We may personally be defeated, but our 'principles' never."—Garrison

WHETHER principles, or the principals of our schools, their ideals and their work cannot be defeated if they are as dedicated to their job as is our own principle, I mean principal, Mr. Beddow, who took the position in 1951. Last year at this time he was agog with plans for this year's new schedule. He's now working on various other improvements which will soon be possible with a smaller enrollment. His special likes are people, teenagers especially. His pet peeve is generalizations by the public such as, "All teenagers are hoodlums and bad drivers."

Many people think that the principle, I mean principal thing a principal, principle, principal! does is sit in an office a few hours daily. Far from it! The principal's, principles don't allow it! Mr. Beddow's school hours are 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. He divides his spare time among faculty meetings, G. O. activities, football games, concerts, dances, Community Chest, Kiwanis, professional groups, trout fishing, bowling, tennis, and badminton! Busy as he is, our principal assures us that he wouldn't trade jobs with anyone!

ALFRED P. WINDT
Assistant to the Principal

FRANK PILL, JR.
Director of Guidance

E. CARLETON MOORE
Curriculum Coordinator

"Absent he is a character understood, but present he is a force respected."—Santayana

PREDICTIONS seldom come true, but one seems to have in the case of our competent Assistant to the Principal. In his high school's yearbook, the editor predicted that Mr. Windt would someday become a teacher of mathematics.

His ambition was to become an engineer, for which he has his degree. During the depression he took up teaching, and since that time he has been in the field of education.

Mr. Windt came to Hempstead High to teach math until he was offered his present job as assistant to the Principal. In this position, Mr. Windt supervises the extra-curricular activities, is in charge of all the attendance and discipline in our school, and performs various other jobs.

Besides all his activities, Mr. Windt is co-author of an elementary algebra book, Everyday Algebra.

Outside of school, Mr. Windt and his family enjoy their semi-classical record collection, and are ardent sports fans who root for the Yankees.

"Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom; and with the getting get understanding."—Proverbs.

VITAL to each of us is the position we choose to strive for in life. It is the job of the counselors to guide students in their choice of career, and the solution of problems concerning advanced learning and life adjustments. The Guidance Department also aids students who wish to go directly into a vocation by giving them placement assistance.

Although maintaining two libraries is by no means an easy task, the librarians assure the circulation of an adequate supply of books which provide to students and teachers the maximum educational advantages possible. In addition, the librarians are always willing to lend a hand to anyone seeking information.

Recorders and Secretaries

"... always attending strictly to business;"—Clemens

THE duties of the recorders and secretaries who work daily in our school offices include a wide variety of tasks. The recorders, aided by secretaries work on schedules, school and college records and students' school finances. The other secretaries are found among the various offices of our school where they work with the principal, the assistant to the principal and the counselors in both of the guidance offices.

Because of the efficient work that the recorders and secretaries do, it is an easy matter to obtain any necessary information pertaining to records and to keep our school running smoothly.

"English as She is Spoke."—Tuer

SUFFICIENT mastery of the English language is an asset in traveling and dealing with other people in today's small world. Our English department, headed by Miss Barth, recognizes this fact and tries to make available to our students a rich background in literature, and a firm foundation in grammar, both essential in so many ways.

This year a class in journalism was begun. It offers invaluable experience to those interested in writing careers, and provides enjoyment for those who find relaxation and satisfaction in writing.

Many students choose between this new class and the creative writing class already in existence.

Citizenship Education

"While we read, we make history."—Aldrich

THIS quotation might mean that someone studying Citizenship Education today could be president some years hence. But even if this far fetched simile doesn't come true, students studying ancient, medieval, and modern history do enjoy the subject. One of the reasons is that Citizenship Education is presented in the form of discussions and open panels giving every student an opportunity for class participation.

Shown here is one of Mr. Wilson's classes in a typical discussion. Citizenship Education is given to all students no matter what course they are taking. Regardless of what field they enter after high school, Citizenship Education has prepared them with a broader outlook on life through the study of history.

Languages

"Life is a foreign language—all men mispronounce it."—Unknown

THIS statement may hold true in some cases, but our language students work hard to contradict it. All four classes have their choice of French, Latin, Spanish, or German. Many students take two languages in preparing for college.

This picture is an example of the industry put into linguistic studies. One of Mr. Navarra's classes is striving to master French pronunciation. Besides learning grammar, students become acquainted with the culture and literature of the country whose language they are studying. They often learn songs and act out plays peculiar to the various countries. Many students go on to join a language club where they can further their interest and enjoy themselves as well.

Mathematics

"To add to golden numbers golden numbers."—Dekker

EVERY time you cross a bridge, every time you enter a building, every time you hear atomic energy mentioned, you and every other living person, be he jungle, desert, or city inhabitant, are benefiting from the marvels of mathematics. There is exceedingly little we can do in life without involving something mathematical.

Keeping this in mind, the administration has seen to it that an adequate and efficient Math Department is maintained at Hempstead High. Headed by Mr. Robert "Pop" Hayes, the department prepares many students for college by providing them with their minimum two or three years of math. For those pupils particularly mathematically inclined, advanced courses are also offered.

Science

"Science is . . . like virtue, its own exceeding great reward."—Kingsley

ALTHOUGH hard work is a necessity in studying such subjects as General Science, Biology, Physics, Chemistry, or Earth Science, the students studying them find their work well rewarded. Future doctors, nurses, dentists, and scientists are learning for their own benefit and the benefit of others by increasing their knowledge of themselves and their environment. Not only students with a scientific career in mind are taking these subjects. To many students the study of science is not a required subject at all, but a source of seemingly endless fascination for them. Excellent laboratory facilities in our Science Department, headed by Mr. Faust, furnish the students with a fine opportunity for scientific investigation.

Business Education

"Think."—Watson

THE expert training received by Hempstead High School's commercial students and their preparation for positions in the business world following high school are characteristic of the work of our Business Education Department, capably headed by Mr. Davidson. Introduction to Business, Business Arithmetic, Business Law, Shorthand, Typing, and Bookkeeping are some of the subjects expertly taught to the business preparatory students.

This year the Business Education Department has laid particular emphasis on clerical skills. It also has an eye toward the future. A course in operating office machines will be introduced in the near future in order to provide more well-rounded training.

Art and Homemaking

"Fine art is that in which the hand, the head and the heart go together."—Ruskin

THIS is a picture of one of Mrs. Oman's industrious art classes. At the moment, they are coping with the problems of drawing a still life in pastels. The students have an opportunity to sample many different styles in drawing and to work with various media, such as water color, tempera, charcoal, pencil, pen and ink, and crayon. Creative expression is stressed in all the art classes.

"We all boil at different degrees."—
Emerson

There are three divisions in the Home Economics course; some girls concentrate on sewing, others prefer the general home economics course, and the third group studies the cooking and serving of meals. The home economics course prepares girls for fields like nursing, teaching, and dietics.

"The man that hath no music in himself, . . . let no such man be trusted."—Shakespeare

DURING this past year, Hempstead's Music Department has received much praise for its outstanding work. The orchestra, choir, and band do much to bring out the good qualities, both musical and social, of the young musicians and promote good citizenship among them all.

Music and Dramatics

"The world's a theatre, the earth a stage."
—Heywood

EVERY year the Dramatics Department provides fine entertainment with its excellent plays. The faculty and students combine forces in producing them. The Public Speaking classes also help to improve the poise of the young people and to give them self-confidence.

The stage crew is another important function of the Dramatics Department without which the plays couldn't be presented.

DRIVER EDUCATION, a new course in Hempstead High this year, has been received by everyone with overwhelming enthusiasm. Mr. Stanley White, the driving instructor, gives those he teaches expert training through class instruction and actual driving of the new Ford purchased for this course.

Busily humming classrooms are in evidence during any schoolday in Prospect School where boys are taught, according to their individual selection or requirement, mechanical drawing and general, metal, and electric shop. Out of these classes come many interesting projects of the boys' own making.

IN the gym classes, students get a chance to build up their young limbs by participating in the sports and activities provided for them. Girls as well as boys may also join a large variety of teams which are directed by our able teachers.

The Health Office is one of the most essential offices in Hempstead High School. Miss Best and Mrs. Marsden, the reliable nurses, take care of everything from stomach-aches to broken bones. Every year Dr. Phipps, the school doctor, examines the students to make sure they are in good health.

Senior Class

"Give the world your best and the best will come back to you."—Class of '54

THIS is the motto chosen by the graduates of 1954, who are already "giving the world their best." This particular group of seniors has shown outstanding ability and leadership in the four years during which they crossed several more yards en route to their final, respective goals.

Dick Cheshire, was honored to represent the class in the position of top man on the totem pole. His main interest and ability lie in track, at which he's an accomplished star. He has a terrific sense of humor and is a real gone French etudiant.

What young swain could help shouting (school cheers or otherwise!) when pretty vivacious Bev O'Neill led cheers at games? Elected secretary of her graduating class, Bev still found time to be chief of principal's service squad, Greek Games coach, gym aide, and modern dancer.

Holding the moneybags for his classmates was popular George Stevenson. Following attendance at Cortland, George plans to be a physical education teacher. No one at football games in the '53 season could miss the George Stevenson. He joined the varsity squad his second year and became a co-captain his senior year.

Norma Ashe held the position of vice-president of her graduating class. While vice-presidents are known for having little to do, Norma was assured a good number of tasks connected with her office! Her biggest job was heading the Senior Ball committees. Norma plans to be a dental hygienist. (Open wide!) She's held numerous previous offices in school and has belonged to a variety of organizations.

With a class as large as this there were far too many candidates from which to choose only four officers. Other outstanding leaders who represented the class as well as the Big Four cannot be by-passed merely because of their number, Karlann Puerschner, Liz Mueller, Joanne Linfante, Armand Fiorenza, Alex Pickard and Sue Lillicrap stood out in the field of music; Larry Kassan and Joan King showed artistic ability; drama oscar's go to Hue Babinski, John Cosgriff, and Pat Wilson; Marilyn Brooks must be noted for leading both Pen and Ink and Modern Dance Club; Connie Arena and Denis Towe for their Patriot work and scholastically speaking we mustn't forget Bob Leatherman, Pete Peril, Ted Felber, and Gordon Weil for science and math, Carol Crowder in the field of social science and Martha Oman for her editorship of last year's Colonial, and Judy Nyman and Andy Robell for outstanding work in English. These are all here cited for only one field, but every one has a variety of interest. They are all examples of young people "giving their best," and consequently "getting the best."

The job of advising seniors rests with the class advisors and guidance counselors. Mr. Lints, assisted by Mrs. Dendy, Miss Rhodes, and Mr. Lawson, has been filling the position for seven years. His duties include helping the sen-

Mr. Pill and Mr. Turnbull act as guidance and placement counselors. Both men are sincerely dedicated to the task of placing graduates in the right school or job. Mr. Pill noted that this year's class has a large number of collegiate students, but its interests are as varied as any big group's can be. Seniors plan to be anything from chefs to atomic physicists, from airline hostesses to women doctors, from horsebreeders to leatherworkers (no connection), and from ichthyologists (studying marine life) to "heptologists" (studying slang). An unusual number (over fifty) plan to go into teaching, and a rather large number of boys plan to study engineering.

We sincerely hope that these seniors who have already begun "giving the world their best" will soon begin receiving the best in success and life-long happiness.

The very best of everything to you, seniors!

Senior Ball

"A thousand miles from land are we, dancing
under the roaring sea."—Procter

AMID marine surroundings, the boys' gym was transformed into the Grecian city of Atlantis on January 29, 1954. According to legend, this mythical continent was a land of great beauty and enchantment before it sank beneath the seas.

Before entering through the local reproduction of this city, the dancers passed through a cave covered with fish nets while "Ebb Tide" floated about in the background. On the far side of the wall there was erected an enormous replica of the inside of a palace. The walls of the gym were decorated with many strange tropical fish, giving one the impression of looking at the ocean through a window of glass. From the ceiling hung huge, stuffed sea horses painted in various colors.

On each table a miniature treasure chest filled with "gold discs" on which were written inscriptions about "Atlantis" carried out the marine motif. Refreshments were served at the opposite end of the cave from a counter shaped like a huge sea shell.

With Mr. Lints as advisor, a great deal of work was done by Norma Ashe, chairman of the dance and her sub-committees. Peggy Lobdell and Barbara Hurd engaged the band for the evening. Gleva Comstosk was in charge of inviting the chaperones for the evening; they were Miss Winter, Miss Taft, Mr. and Mrs. Cheshire, Mr. and Mrs. Windt, Mr. and Mrs. Dendy, Mrs. Lindts, Mrs. Foster, and Miss M. Rhodes. Dick Cheshire and Doug Smith put up the curtains. The ceiling curtains were given by last year's senior class.

Heading the art committee were Dick Barry, Armand Fiorenza, and Arlene Schnidt with Kathy Russell, Betsy Reller, Sybil Cummings, Liz Mueller, and Karlann Puerschner.

A lot of credit must go to those who planned the dance. They did marvelously in spite of the odds they faced such as, holding the dance on a school day plus a scheduled afternoon basketball game.

"And the band played on . . ."

Senior Executive Council

"... executes a free man's will,"—Pierpont

SENIOR EXECUTIVE COUNCIL. Sounds pretty important! That's about the size of it! Senior: it's composed of seniors. (That's logical enough.) Executive: it does just that—executes or carries out the decisions and plans of the representatives. Council: that's just what it is—a group of leaders meeting in a council.

To assure every senior a voice in his government by representative democracy, members of the council are elected from Social Science classes, which are required of every senior. Thus

HHS appears to be invaded by a tattered and torn band of Pretty Pitiful Poverty-stricken Paupers), (Dressup Day (the day following Old Clothes Day when seniors go from Rags to Riches), Senior-Frosh Day (when a sudden motherly instinct comes out in the senior girls who wear aprons, carry dolls and a variety of stuffed animals ranging from toy mice to giraffes and when freshmen assume their natural role of babies and wear short skirts, knee socks, baby bonnets, and carry lollipops for senior "moth-

Row III: J. Stonitsch, L. Fessler, K. Pappas, G. Van Nostrand, J. Hooker. Row IV: D. Smith, J. Burwell, F. Shenk, A. Butash, H. Kennedy, R. Desmond, R. DeMott, M. Kornfield.

John Senior knows his rep to whom he can express himself. The rep in turn then brings up John's ideas at the council.

Meetings are held monthly and the class president, Dick Cheshire, presides. The other class officers assume respective positions on the council, so Norma Ashe was the council vice-president, Beverly O'Neill its secretary, and George Stevenson its treasurer.

Besides discussing and attempting to solve senior's problems, the council plans and directs social events, such as Old Clothes Day (when ers"), and the Senior Ball (which this year, with "Atlantis" as its theme was a huge success).

The choices of class flower (this year the American Beauty Rose was chosen, class colors (navy blue and silver), and class motto ("Give the world your best, and the best will come back to you") rest with the council. They must also decide the place of commencement and see that caps and gowns are paid for.

Advising the council is the senior class advisor, Mr. Lints, who's assisted in this capacity by Miss Rhodes.

Junior Class

"Age? Sixteen. The flower of youth."—Homer

SHOWING a natural ability for achieving success during these past three years at Hempstead High, this year's outstanding Junior class has been hard at work preparing for the years beyond school, whether they be collegiate or commercial.

Excellent leadership was shown by the officers of the class who were elected by their classmates. As president of the class, the Juniors elected Joseph Margiotta. Josh, as his classmates affectionately call him, is an active participant in sports and has served as co-captain of our football team this past year. For his advanced education, Josh is aiming high, West Point Military Academy.

Popular Alice Kay, who was elected for a second time to serve as vice-president of her class, also exercises her abilities as secretary of the Student Council. An active member of the Future Teachers of America Club for three years, she is planning on a teaching career.

Elected as secretary of the Junior class was Jon Cheshire, whose popularity in sports is well deserved. His activities include basketball, football, track, and a three year membership in the honor club.

Charlie Hagenah, also a three year member of the honor club, has deserved the confidence on the part of his fellow students who elected him treasurer. Charlie is as yet undecided concerning his plans for the future, but we feel sure he will succeed in whatever he attempts.

Miss Taft, Mr. Zara, Miss Abbott, and Miss Dorwin, this year as in the past, advised the class, thus assuring the smooth running of the Junior activities. With their help and supervision in collecting the Junior dues, in selecting class rings, and in preparing for the Junior Prom, the officers and members of the class made the events of the year hugely successful.

The Junior reps, chosen from the social studies classes, under the direction of Mr. Zara who heads the Junior treasury, put forth a tremendous effort during the drive for Junior dues. This year again a portion of the dues collected went for awards to the general student with the most outstanding record, and the commercial and college student with the highest final average in four major subjects.

One of the important activities engaged in only by Junior students is H. H. S.'s yearbook, our Colonial. The members of the various departments which include the business, editorial, and art staffs are selected on the basis of their scholastic records in their sophomore year. With hard work but much fun for all, the year passed swiftly for these students who will soon find themselves passing on to a new year, leaving vacancies for the next year's members.

Bringing to a close the exciting events of the year was the Junior Prom. With eager anticipation on the part of the students, and early preparations on the part of the committee, the dance this year met with the success that we have come to expect of this yearly event.

Sophomore Class

"The fool doth think he is wise, but the wise man knows himself to be a fool."—Shakespeare

AS in the past this year's class of sophomores managed to overcome the usual hurdles and confusion of their first year without serious damage. Now that they are better acquainted with their school, they have more time to enjoy it and participate in the various activities. They are ready for hard work too, with a good deal of intelligence and experience to help them along.

This year, Joan Kennedy was chosen as president of the class, and she did an excellent job of living up to the honor. An attractive and versatile student, Joan is taking an academic course with the hope that she may become a teacher in the elementary grades. Joan already belongs to the Future Teachers of America, and is also a basketball enthusiast.

Honor student Allen Frost was elected to the vice-presidency thus extending a helping hand to the president in her numerous tasks and decisions. Allen, too, is an academic student, and is planning on a career in chemical research.

A scientific career is of interest also to Gail Joy, secretary, but she is planning to enter the nursing field. Gail is an active girl which explains her membership in the Latin, pre-nursing, and badminton clubs, and Junior Secretary squad.

ADVISORS

Mary Feldman, this year's class treasurer is a commercial student and has secretarial work in mind for the future. She is an active member of the Glee Club and also has a good job after school.

The sophomores work together for their class. Besides donating their time and diligent efforts, they pay their class dues which are used for several purposes, including awards to the sophomore students with the highest scholastic averages for the year, payment for their Colonial picture and also for their class party.

The sophomore party is a large one as a rule due to the fine class spirit. All the sophomore boys and girls gather in the boy's gymnasium for an afternoon of dancing, entertainment, games, and last but by no means least, refreshments.

The individual sophomores are under the able guidance of their counselors. Miss MacDougall takes charge of all sophomores interested in an academic course, with Mr. Turnbull in charge of the commercial or general course students. These two people are a great help to the sophomores in choosing their high school courses. Helpful suggestions in selecting their courses, as well as guidance in other phases of school life, are available from these counselors.

In charge of the sophomores as a group are the class advisors, Mrs. Greenlund who is the chairman, Miss Ignelzi, Miss Tripp, and Mr. Chase. These hard working teachers put all their effort and energy into organizing the sophomore class as a group. They are in charge of the sophomore elections, party, play, and any other activities put on by the class. They are also willing to talk things over with the students and give much needed and welcome advice whenever and wherever it is necessary.

The sophomores of 1953-54 have shown outstanding qualities of sportsmanship, leadership, and above all, friendship. Good luck sophomores! We are sure that your years at Hempstead will be every bit as successful as this one.

The Freshman Class

"A dewy freshness fills the silent air."—Southey

WHEN one enters a large, unfamiliar, and confusing building, one is bound to look and feel a little frightened and bewildered. So it was with our freshmen. However, in spite of the huge, jostling crowds, ringing bells and numerous classrooms, the newcomers soon learned the routine and fell right into step with their upperclassmen. This was brought about by the freshmen's asking the older students questions, pooling their own ideas and discoveries and having various difficulties straightened out in some of their classrooms.

To the freshmen, high school is a wonderful opportunity for making new friends, learning many new and interesting things, and taking part in the many school functions. One such event is the annual Senior-Frosh Day. The senior girls come to school arrayed in their most dazzling clothes and collect lollipops from the freshmen girls, who gayly walk around the halls in baby clothes. Comes the last class of the day, and lollipops no longer seem desirable. The two groups of girls then attend a party held in the boys' gym. There the freshman girls display their looks and costumes. After much deliberation, the senior judges award prizes to the most pleasing misses. Refreshments and entertainment are then provided.

The president of this year's class is John Ramo. John, who likes math and radio electronics, is a graduate of Franklin School. His aspirations are to be a math teacher or a radio engineer. Mary Rich is the vice-president. She graduated from California Avenue School. Painting, swimming, and playing tennis take up much of her spare time. Mary plans to study medicine. The freshman class treasurer is Janet Rogers, who graduated from Jackson School. Janet enjoys collecting pictures of movie stars. Her wish is to be a fashion designer. Serving as class secretary is Don Kornrumpf who graduated from Goodrich Street School. "Don" finds sports and tropical fish fun. His ambition is to be a mechanical engineer.

This year two of the districts that had been sending pupils to Hempstead High, built their own schools. Our freshman class is therefore smaller than usual. Because of the decreased number of students it has been harder than in previous years to raise the money for the class expenditures. These consist of providing a scholarship, paying for the Colonial picture and financing the class party.

Miss Joyce, Miss Farrior, and Mr. Helbach guide the freshmen in their class activities. With the able leadership of the class officers plus the assistance of the advisors and the fine class spirit they are sure to be an active and interested class in their coming years.

No matter how frightened and meek the freshmen are as they enter the portals of Hempstead High for the first time, by the fourth year they will be poised, self confident, more learned and good citizens of our community.

ACTIVITIES

*"An oppressive government is more to be feared than a tiger."—
Confucius*

OUR student body this year saw many beneficial changes brought about by our Student Council. We of the fairer sex were happy to have an almost complete petticoat government. The weight of the presidency fell on the pretty shoulders of Norma Tranchina. Working along with Norma were Karlann Puerschner, vice president; Alice Kay, recording secretary; Carol Storms, corresponding secretary; and our male component of the group, Dick Krim, who ably balanced our budget. To increase the individuals' representation in the Student Council each homeroom elected a senator whose job was exactly what the name implies. Also first in the history of our Student Council were the visits to the different homerooms by our president where she spoke on the activities and duties of the Student Council. A great boost to our school spirit was given by having busses take students to away games in the football season for far less than regular fare. Two exchange students sent by the Herald Tribune became a part of our hustling crowd for two weeks. They were Nurit Auerbach from Haifa, Israel, and Wentworth (Kid-die) Bossman from the Gold Coast of Africa. Our good-neighbor policy flourished during that time to such an extent that our delightful guests left rather reluctantly.

Homeroom Representatives

"... government of the people, by the people,"—Lincoln

LINKING the students with the General Organization are the Homeroom Representatives. Each representative is chosen at the beginning of the school year either by majority vote or by the choice of the teacher in charge of his respective homeroom. An alternate is also chosen to carry on the duties of the rep in case of absence.

It is the main function of this group to sell tickets to the student body thus affording them membership in the General Organization. Another duty is the distribution of the Patriot every two weeks.

Needless to say this organization performs many other necessary tasks which aid not only the student body but organizations of national renown, such as the Red Cross. Each rep devoted much time and effort collecting funds for this worthy cause. The sending of packages to the needy was another drive that each rep got behind whole-heartedly.

This year as in the past the homeroom representatives have been fortunate in having Mr. Tree as their capable and energetic advisor. Under the leadership of Mr. Tree, Ronnie Hess president, Dick De Mott vice president, Dot Shybunko secretary, Glevia Comstock treasurer, and all the reps have worked hard to bring about these wonderful results.

Colonial

"Next to the originator of a good sentence is the quoter of it."
—Emerson

WITH pardonable immodesty we agree whole-heartedly with this quotation, for it was our pleasure as juniors to produce this issue of the Colonial with a theme centering on famous quotations. May we, in the next few lines introduce the people who helped produce this annual.

At the head of the Editorial Staff we find Betty Sachleben, whose task it was as Editor-in-Chief to "coax" us into getting those literary gems known as "articles" in for publication. Assisting her were these editors: Emily Moore, Faculty; Olga Santos, Activities; Martin Frankel, Clubs; Eleanor Phelps, Sports; and Joyce Satterly and Carol Halling, seniors.

Delving still deeper, we find a group of people calling themselves the Editorial Staff, who spent a few pleasant hours in our beloved room 23, doing trivial little things. Of course, if they hadn't done those trivial little things you might now be the possessor of 200 pages of blank autograph paper. Another occupant of room 23 who was in constant demand was our friend "Bartlett's," whose 1200 pages of printed matter we perused unmercifully in our search for appropriate quotations.

Not all the work done, however, was of an editorial nature. Lynn Gilbert was elected editor of the art staff, whose work you see on almost every page.

Needless to say, those who bear a good share of the heavy burden in the production of this annual, are the faculty advisors. Mr. Pilkington guided the "artists," while Mr. Helbach spurred on the "Financers." Mr. Menza edited and advised us in the writing of our copy. Upon Mr. Ayres fell the responsibility of correlating and fitting together the various parts and in general cracking the whip so that this issue could see the light of day.

The Patriot

"Newspapers are the schoolmasters of the common people."—
Beecher

OUR school has numerous organizations to be proud of but surely the Patriot is among the top ones. It not only provides information about almost everything that goes on in school, but it also strives to stimulate school spirit through its editorials and articles. These have considerable influence on the student body.

This year the Patriot launched a campaign to increase school spirit. The Rebel furnished the kick-off to the campaign by making its appearance unexpectedly on February 1 instead of as usual on April Fool's Day. This clever piece of satire, appearing after a three-year lapse, was given an overwhelming welcome by the students as well as the faculty. An article on school spirit written by our Student Council President, Norma Tranchina, followed in a later issue.

Through the Patriot, a committee of students interested in upholding the principles which underlie school spirit worked together making posters and planning many activities to arouse interest in school functions. This committee was the Booster Club.

The students who receive the Patriot every other Monday perhaps do not realize all the time and work it takes to produce a good newspaper. The work for each issue proceeds in a definite rhythm. On the Monday of the Patriot's appearance, assignments for the following issue are given out. The staff is given until Friday to hand in the assignments. At this point the typing staff takes over until every story and column is completely typed.

Next comes the copy reading and making of headlines for the stories. All the typed articles are sent to the printer who sets them up in long rows as they appear in print. On Monday and Tuesday of the next week all late stories are brought in and they go through the same process. The printer sends all the stories printed in long rows back to the editors on Thursday morning and in the afternoon of that same day the dummy is set up. It is in this form that the paper actually appears.

The last finishing touches are given Friday at the printer's by the editors. There, every bit of print is read and proof read until, it is hoped, all errors have been removed. On Monday the Patriot appears again and is delivered to the homerooms by the circulation staff.

To G. O. ticketholders the Patriot is free; while the cost to non-ticketholders is five cents a copy. Advertising helps to defray the cost of publication.

Each year the editor-in-chief and managing editor choose the following year's editors. Heading the staff this year as editor-in-chief was Connie Arena and the busy seat of managing editor was occupied by Denis Towey. Other important positions were held by Marilyn Ruthizer, copy and rewrite editor; Joe Krupinski, sports editor; Jacqueline Otte, feature editor; and Peter Rodler, business manager. Pat Savarese headed the circulation department. The interesting and lively appearance of the Patriot is due in part to the work of Andy Robell, chief staff photographer and George Kalinsky, chief staff artist.

During the spring of this year, as in previous years, the editors of the Patriot attended the annual Columbia Scholastic Press meeting which convened in New York City. In the past the Patriot has walked away from this annual press conference carrying various prizes and honorable mentions. This is no wonder when we consider the industry of the staff and its editors and the helpful guidance of Mr. Goldy and Mr. Murphy the faculty advisors.

A yearly party held late in June for the entire staff climaxes their work-sweet recompense for all their hard efforts.

Senior Service Squad

"... ability for good service."—Burke

OLDEST of the office squads in Hempstead High School is the Senior Service Squad. This student organization consists of twenty-four girls who work diligently one period, five days a week in Office 1A assisting the Registrar in her many duties. In addition, these girls also do typing, filing, and alphabetizing of the school records. The girls are divided into work groups, with some of them acting as receptionists, while others carry on the secretarial work. In addition each member of the squad answers visitors' questions and serves as a guide. They also run errands around the school whenever the need arises.

This work not only aids the school but is of real value to the girls themselves by acquainting them with the principles of business office procedure and providing them with excellent training for their future careers.

Under the expert guidance of Mrs. Hueston, the Senior Service Squad has earned the enviable reputation of being one of our school's most efficient and dependable organizations.

Junior Secretaries

"Experience is the best teacher."—Anonymous

ACTING as intermediaries between the administrative department of our school and the students and faculty are members of one of Hempstead High's most popular organizations, the Junior Secretaries. They are under the capable direction of the dean of girls, Mrs. Foster.

This organization which is now in its twentieth year, has always played an important part in the workings of our school. Office II is always open to give help and assistance to everyone.

The girls, who are carefully selected, serve one period each day and two weeks of late duty during the year, performing their many important tasks of typing, filing, telephoning absentees and running many errands.

Every girl benefits very much from the practice and experience she receives. It teaches her the importance of neatness, efficiency and accuracy. Barbara Hurd served as chief of the girls and she was ably assisted by Arlene Seaman, and by Norma Ashe who served as secretary.

Audio-Visual Squad

"Shock ears and stun our eyes."—Taggard

THE Audio-Visual squad, ever in demand, has this year taken on the added burden of furnishing its numerous services to the new homeroom system. As the name Audio-Visual implies, tape-recorders, phonographs, and records are available, as well as the familiar projectors and films. These have furnished, in almost every class or home room in the school, interesting and varied educational programs. One of the less publicized jobs of the Audio-Visual staff member, or aide as he is called, is the control of the school P. A. system.

Under the supervision of Mr. E. C. Moore and his able assistant, Mr. Lind, the aides gain a practical insight into photography and maintenance, for their job includes the care and repair of films and equipment. The aides, led by Brian Goetke, strive to give courteous and efficient service to our school.

Counselors' Service Squad

"Be prepared!"—Unknown

AMONG our many service squads we're fortunate to have the Counselors' Service Squad. Under the direction of Miss MacDougall this group has become an important and valuable asset. The girls on the staff, numbering twenty in all, are chosen partly on the basis of their sophomore interview with Miss MacDougall.

Their chores include numerous activities such as filing, typing, distributing slips, and running errands. Also theirs is the task of making appointments for interviews with the counselors in office four. In addition to this, each girl is required to serve at least two weeks of late duty a year.

These girls do an excellent job of helping to ease the work that has to be done in office four. This practice offers excellent experience for those who desire to enter the secretarial field after graduation and, at the same time, helps to develop more fully the personalities of the members.

Secretaries to the Faculty

"So careful of the type she seems,"— Tennyson

EXCELLENT training in secretarial work is received by the group of efficient girls that make up the staff of the Secretaries to the Faculty. In September each girl from this group is assigned to a teacher, who is the head of one of the departments. This system of selection may work two ways. The teacher may select a particular girl, or the girl may choose a certain favorite teacher for whom she would like to work.

Their work consists of any secretarial work the teacher may want them to do. Some of their more important tasks are: mimeographing tests, filing papers of importance, and typing. Their quota of work is four hours a week, and their tasks are distributed throughout the free periods of their school day. These secretaries have the privilege of using the work room in which there are typewriters, mimeograph machines, and electric copyrite duplicators. All of these are at their disposal. A great majority of the girls have been previously trained in the use of these intricate machines.

Under the able supervision of Mrs. Schryver, each girl has become a great help to her teacher. We might say she is a "girl Friday" to the department chairman.

Library Staff

"The true university of these days is a collection of books."

—Carlyle

ONE of the most important assets to the school is the library, and one of the most important assets to a library is the staff. We are very fortunate in having two excellent libraries both of them supervised by a fine group of librarians. To assist the librarians in their many tasks we have a group of twenty-one boys and girls known as the library staff. Miss Gertrude Rhodes, our senior librarian, chooses the members of the staff on the basis of their personality and ability.

Each member of the staff contributes one period a day to work in the library. Their work is mostly clerical—receiving and charging out books, and putting returned book away on their respective shelves.

Rifle Club

"And fired the shot heard round the world."—Emerson

IT is more than the sheer thrill of shooting a gun that brings the 200 members of this club, consisting of both boys and girls down to the rifle range every day. In this extremely active organization, the members are constantly trying to better their shooting accuracy and thereby raise their rank in the National Rifle Association to which the club belongs. Upon meeting certain qualifications the male members are advanced to membership in the Rifle Team.

The rifle range was open twice daily this past year. Under the watchful eye of the club's advisor and friend, Mr. Voorhies, the members took their turn shooting. Because of the excellent attendance of the club and the large membership the quarters were usually very crowded. The members set up tables and either played checkers or talked over their previous scores while awaiting their turn to use their own or the school's rifles. The school equipment is considered to be the best available.

The club is ably led by its president Dick Schaefer and vice president Bob Walsleben.

Hall Patrol

"... and o'er the dreaded realm of fear so grimly held the guard."

—Brownell

SERVING the school, during periods one through eight, are the many members of the Hall Patrol. Under the direction of Mr. Fish, this fine group has served our school for many years.

Two teachers are on duty each period to help keep order. All teachers choose their own hall cops from study halls, and when necessary from gym classes. During lunch periods, in addition to regular hall cops, a campus patrol takes over at the front and rear of the building to see that no one enters or leaves without the proper authority. For each shift, the boys elect their own lieutenant to check attendance. The lieutenant also collects the dues of twenty-five cents a year, which pay for their picture in the Colonial.

Some of their duties include keeping the halls clear of students during school hours, and inspecting the passes. All schools need some system for maintaining "law and order," and our Hall Patrol is doing a fine job, despite Hempstead's overcrowded condition.

"Such sweet compulsion doth in music lie."—Milton

OF the many girls who participate in some musical activity in school, not many get the opportunity to join one of the newest, but by far not the least important, service squads, the Secretarial Hostesses. This is made up of a select group of girls mostly upperclassmen, who help to keep the bandbox running smoothly.

As their name implies, they act as secretaries for the music teachers and also hostesses to visitors. When the teachers are busy, the girls answer the telephone, take messages, do filing and practically anything else that happens to need doing. Sometimes they act as guides to visitors, and explain the functions of each section of the bandbox. Another of their many difficult jobs is distributing uniforms during bandshow time. Is it any wonder that our bandbox is run efficiently?

Secretarial Hostesses

"Aquí se habla español."—Anonymous

HEMPSTEAD HIGH SCHOOL'S two year old Spanish Honor Society was off to another fine start this year. Under the able supervision of Mrs. Stilger, the new club rapidly gained in momentum.

To be eligible, one must have studied Spanish for two years and attained an average of eighty-eight per cent or better. The meetings were held in both Spanish and English.

The society's social functions included a New York trip to the Hispanic museum, followed by dinner in the Spanish restaurant, Fundador, where everything from tamales to chili con carne was enjoyed by all.

One of their new endeavors was the printing of a newspaper, "El Aguila," which is being readily accepted by the student body.

Ellen Anderson was president; Barbara Krupa, vice president; Janet Lobenstein, secretary; and Joseph Viscosi, treasurer.

FOUNDED in 1935, the Health Service Squad serves the students while affording its members experience for future nursing careers.

Under the leadership of the school nurses, Miss Best and Mrs. Marsden, these girls work one period a day in the Health Office. To join this squad the girls are picked either by applying to Miss Best or through the Pre-Nursing Club.

Among the various duties of this group are the filing of Health records, taking of temperatures and assisting in first aid. The squad works hard realizing that the experience they gain will be useful in further nurses training.

THIS year the Commercial Club had a membership of 25 girls. It sent Christmas cards to children in the polio ward of the Meadowbrook Hospital and donated toys and stuffed animals they had made to children in the wards of other hospitals.

Their annual trip to see a show in New York City was enjoyed by all. They also went to Rockefeller Center.

The Commercial Club met on the third Tuesday of the month during the ninth period. The advisors were Miss Bringhurst and Miss Degenhardt. The officers of the Commercial Club were: Maryann Mathews, president; Mary Ann Cavataio, vice president; and Ellen Cortney, treasurer.

Future Teachers of America

"In books, or work, or healthful play."—Watts

THESE persons desirous of becoming teachers experienced considerable help and enjoyment through their membership in the Future Teachers of America Club, advised by Mrs. Greenlund. For the freshmen and sophomores there is the Horace Mann division while the Peter Cooper Club exists for the juniors and seniors. The combined membership totals about one hundred.

These future pedagogues strive to develop ideals of leadership, to further the cause of democracy, to create an interest in and understanding of the American way of life and to secure a background for their later professional training.

Connie Campo heads the Peter Cooper Chapter and assisting her are Marion Robinson, vice-president, Joann Lanser, secretary and treasurer, and historian, Virginia Flint. Heading the Horace Mann Club is Ann Church. Barbara Kilian fills the office of vice-president, Priscilla Tedesco, secretary, and treasurer, Loretta Harlow.

Hempstead's Future Teachers of America has two firsts to its credit. The girls have a right to be proud, for theirs is the first club on Long Island. It had its initial meeting in 1948 with Miss Barth

Music Appreciation Club

"Soft is the music that would charm forever;"
—Wordsworth

ALREADY imbued with a love for music, the members of this club come together to deepen this appreciation and to share pleasure and reactions to the music played. Their meetings consist of listening to a piece of music, and discussing the finer points of the work. The first program this year was given by Mr. Frank Fish, the club's advisor. Each of the officers—Mary Anne Creaser, president; Eleanor Streeter, vice-president; Barbara Voorhies, secretary; and James Edmunds, treasurer—was responsible for a program.

Journalism Club

"With words we govern man."—Disraeli

THIS year, for the first time, a journalism club was organized for budding writers. A few members of the Patriot started the club, Miss Fiedler took over the advisorship, and the following officers were elected: Denis Towey, president; Joe Krupinski, vice president; Dvora Sesskin, secretary, and Andy Robell, treasurer.

Interesting programs were planned and carried out by the future "reporters." At one such meeting representatives of the Patriot Staff spoke on their various jobs. Early in March Judy Cummings from Newsday gave an informative talk to the club members. This new club will probably grow as more students become aware of its existence.

Tupiar

"I have not kept my square; but that to come shall all be done by the rule."—Shakespeare

THE purpose of the Tupiar Club is to develop the member's interest in mathematics through field trips and special programs which are suited to the club's mathematically-minded students. Presiding over the meetings was Richard Bannister, with Joan MacDonald as vice-president, Diane Davis as secretary, and James Jefferson as treasurer. Mr. Hayes was the club's advisor.

During the past year, a visit to the Mitchell Field weather station proved to be quite rewarding for the Tupiar members, who gained several bits of valuable information through this trip. They were shown most of the equipment used in the forecasting of weather, and were instructed in its use.

An outing was also taken to the United States Naval Center at Sands Point on the north shore of Long Island.

Mr. Francis was one of the most interesting of the many guest speakers who visited the club. His lecture on the slide rule and the origin of numbers was just the thing for Tupiar's budding young mathematicians.

If Hempstead's outstanding math club continues its fine activities, we will have a good supply of math teachers for the future.

Stamp Club

"Let's trade!"—Anonymous

THIS is a familiar cry to the up and coming young philatelists who are members of the Stamp Club. To increase his collection is the aim of every collector. For this reason, this club attains its objective by providing a time and place for the trading of those precious bits of paper.

Mr. Carl Holtz, of the math department, an avid stamp enthusiast himself, advises the club.

Many members expressed their interest in the stamp collection donated to the school by the parents of a deceased alumnus for the purpose of promoting interest in stamps.

Jack Maraffi, president; Norma Rafsol, vice-president; Allan Rubin, treasurer; and Ed Scheu, secretary; comprised the slate of officers elected for the year.

Sketch Club

"As the sun colours flowers, so does art colour life."—Lubbock

THIS year the members of the sketch club participated in a series of engrossing activities. The trip which they took to the Museum of Modern Art, in New York City, was as interesting as it was educational.

To raise funds for an art scholarship, marmalade was made, the containers decorated, and then sold. Under the capable direction of Mrs. Oman, the club had another successful year in that its members learned to appreciate the values of art.

The officers of the eighth period meeting were: president, Sue Horton; vice-president, Betsy Hughes; secretary, Lois Blanshan; and treasurer, Carol McWilliams.

The ninth period officers were as follows: Jane Shurtleff, president; June Levinson, secretary; and Rosemary Hine, treasurer.

Pioneers

"Few things are impossible to diligence and skill."—Johnson

THE Pioneer Club, the freshman honor club for girls, was established for the purpose of blazing a trail of scholarship, leadership, and service to be followed throughout their high school days.

This group does not only function throughout the schoolday, but the members engage in many outside activities connected with the club. Their recent trip to the theater was one of these events, and for companionship on the trail of scholarship a joint meeting was held with the Pathfinders, the boys' honor group.

The group of seventeen, advised by the affable Miss Congiu, elected Mary Drewal to hold the office of president, Joan Freudenberger as secretary, and Sheila Slade as the all-important treasurer.

"A lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path."—Psalms

SCHOLARSHIP and leadership are the goals of the freshman boys' honor society, the Pathfinders. The membership is composed of boys who have an average of ninety or above in each of four major subjects and maintain this average throughout the year.

As the club was not formed until after the first marking period, plans for the Christmas party were the first on the agenda. This year the party was given jointly with the freshman girls' honor society, the Pioneers. There was dancing, refreshments, and an enjoyable time was had by all.

Robert Matthews presided over the meetings; William Ausman was the combined secretary and treasurer; and Robert Nimeman was the vice-president. Mr. Baker addressed the members and joined them in planning their activities.

Orchestra

"He that has a taste of music is like one that has another sense."

—Addison

ONCE again proving that young people can produce top flight music when given the chance, Miss Boyle and her staff have brought our orchestra through another year during which the acclaim and honor of the past were renewed. Of course the underlying purpose of this organization is not primarily acclaim, but rather to give valuable experience in cooperative endeavor and to heighten the appreciation of its participants. The secret of this successful group is not individual musical genius, but rather the tremendous amount of individual, as well as ensemble, rehearsing and practice. This practice is done in sectionals and full rehearsals which are held on Saturdays and sometimes evenings. The astonishing thing is that many of the busy members find time to be honor students and participate in extra-curricular activities. The reward for this great amount of work came when the world-renowned Leopold Stokowski offered to come to Hempstead and conduct one of our concerts. If things go according to plan Mr. Stokowski will be here next fall. In preparation for this event the orchestra participated in the music department's Christmas festival in the auditorium, playing Tschai-kowsky's Fifth Symphony.

At the winter concert in March the orchestra presented an ambitious program conducted by Mr. Samuel Antek. Mr. Antek, who has a great interest in young people, as well as a distinguished musical background, is currently the conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony. The orchestra's share of the program at this concert consisted of Rachmaninoff's Second Symphony in E minor, Saint-Saëns' Rondo and Capriccio for violin and orchestra, with Mr. William Nowinski as soloist and a striking piece of modern music by William Schumann entitled "A Free Song." This number is an adaptation of Walt Whitman's poems for orchestra and choir.

In June, along with the band and choir, the orchestra participated in the annual spring concert, thus climaxing another memorable year for the student participants and faculty of the music department.

Choir

"Your most sweet voices."—Shakespeare

THROUGH the untiring efforts of Miss Esther McQueen, this year's A Capella Choir has maintained the high standards set by previous groups. Since 1931, the year of its beginning, Hempstead High School's A Capella Choir has grown until it now has a membership of 150 mixed voices. It is a select group whose members are chosen from freshman and Sophomore glee clubs.

This year, as in past years, the Choir accompanied by the orchestra, was a guest at the Elk's Club annual dinner. The choir received many gracious compliments on its performance. One of the most flattering was received from Mr. Archie Blyer of radio and television fame.

This year's invitation to entertain at Wagner College had to be refused, inasmuch as it coincided with the date of our own Christmas Concert held in the school auditorium. Maintaining an old tradition the Choir helped to bring the Christmas spirit to the faculty and student body by carolling through the halls.

The twenty-third annual winter concert was held on March 24, in the Hempstead Theatre. The Choir sang "The Creation" which was narrated by Mr. Luke White. It also sang "A Free Song" conducted by Mr. Samuel Antek. As usual there were several well-known guest conductors and soloists.

A lot of time, patience and effort are required to get the Choir in shape for its many concerts. There are sectional rehearsals held each afternoon; also many Saturday rehearsals. Small wonder that our Choir turns in such fine performances.

Band

"... Sweet is every note I hear."—Tennyson

STRIKE up the band! Of course! How much less exciting our football games would be without the colorful pageantry of the marching band and entourage. Miss Boyle and Mr. Albinski have, this year as in the past, by their careful and ingenious planning, exploited the talents of the more than 300 students who participate. The mammoth effort of this entire group, and their advisors, involving complex, and tedious details, has resulted in the widely heralded program which is literally putting Hempstead on the map. Last year Paramount Studios did a film story of our show, and this year the "LOOK" staff prepared a feature article dealing with the show which is to appear shortly in that magazine.

However, the band show is far from being the year's only endeavor. Once football season is over these aspiring young musicians launch their serious concert program. Again, under the guiding hand of Miss Boyle and Mr. Albinski, innumerable sectionals and full rehearsals are conducted to bring performance closer to perfection. In addition to playing for the Christmas Festival, the band contributed its share to the Winter Concert at the Hempstead Theatre, under the baton of well-known Paul Lavallo, conductor of the "Band of America." Mr. Lavallo conducted several of his own compositions. The band finished the year by participating in the Spring Concert held in May.

Junto Club

"Some of us will smart for it."—Shakespeare

THE Junto Club is composed of those sophomore boys who have earned four marks in the nineties and who received at least a passing grade in the fifth subject. Original membership is based on the freshman year average. The aim of the club is to widen the cultural background and develop the intellectual capacity of its excellent membership. This is carried out under the capable leadership and helpful guidance of Mrs. Marshall, advisor to the club.

At their first meeting, the boys chose their officers. Allen Frost was elected President, while Jack Consenz was chosen Vice-President. Henry Pavony received the post as Secretary, and the job of keeping the finances straight was given to Henry Szabronski.

The "brains" engaged in many worth while discussions on a variety of subjects. As usual, Mr. Pill addressed the club on requirements for colleges. At another meeting Judge Gehrig spoke on the legal aspects and responsibilities of driving an automobile. A demonstration on the preparation of slides was given at a later meeting.

Pallas Club

"Let honor be your shield,"—Thackeray

BUT these forty-three girls need no shield for they are proud to belong to the sophomore girls' honor society, the Pallas Club. They have achieved an average of ninety per cent or better in four major subjects. Advised by Miss Gunnerson, this club's ideals are to promote leadership, scholarship, and fellowship.

The able-bodied slate of officers for the past year were: Leonora Ruggieri, president; Priscilla Tedesco, secretary; Margaret Whitney, treasurer; and Sandra Wood, vice-president.

Acting as usherettes at Open House was just one of the many services rendered. Whenever community or school service was called for, the girls were right on the job. A party was held for the Pioneer Club, true to the yearly tradition. Later on a cake sale was held to raise the treasury's capital. In the spring an excursion to New York was undertaken.

Besides various speakers and films, one of the year's highlights was a visit by sophomore counselor, Miss MacDougall, who spoke on "The use of special talents."

A prize of five dollars is awarded annually to the girl who attained the highest average during her sophomore year. This year that honor went to Sybil Horowitz.

Co-operative Retailing

"To business that we love we rise betime,"—Shakespeare

THIS group of students demonstrates an advancement in modern high school education. Aply guided by Mr. Davidson, they are delving into numerous and varied problems of today's business world.

The students start their classwork first period and it is arranged for them to leave at 12:00 noon to start their various jobs. Mr. Davidson works with the stores in seeing to it that students are properly adjusted to their work in both its social and business aspects. As a general rule, the students not only do their work well, but what is more, then enjoy doing it!

In their first year of co-operative retailing the students do not have to work, but in their second year they are required to put in approximately fifteen hours of work per week, and as a rule they work full time during holidays.

The experiences these students are gaining as active members of business in addition to the social contacts with the personnel, will prove invaluable to them in the future.

Mr. Davidson is training these students to be vocationally competent workers in the retail and wholesale field. Our best wishes for continued success to this group.

Folk Dance Club

"Come and trip it as ye go on the light fantastic toe."—Milton

A NEW club was added to the long list of Hempstead's extra-curricular activities this year—the Folk Dance Club, advised by Mr. Fred Franz. He's that fine gent you saw at the Tuesday afternoon sessions helping students to learn the dances of various countries.

About 25 boys and 25 girls attended these sessions for fun while learning. Even the boys, who were a bit skeptical about these "dancing lessons," enjoyed themselves thoroughly.

The Girls Gym provided ample space for the meetings of the Hempstead students and parents. These were not folk dances but Square Dances sponsored by the P. T. A. There were good turnouts at each one.

Mr. Fred Franz' fine calling to various tunes such as "Red River Gal," "Take A Peek!", and others, helped the parents, teachers and students to "trip the light fantastic." The twenty-five cent admission to these social gatherings was insignificant considering the evening of gaiety derived from them.

So come one, come all, grab your gal and bring her around to the '55 Folk Dance Club.

AMONG the busiest organizations in Hempstead High is the Mimeograph Aides. There are about seventeen aides that work in the little room which is located down the hall from room 18A, and usually there are three there every period of the day with only one student in charge.

These girls are headed by Mrs. Schryver who is the head of mimeographing and she is assisted by Mr. Flax, Miss Rowles, and Miss Bringhurst. In the afternoon Jo Ann Keefe, a P. G. student, is in charge of the Aides.

This group is constantly busy. They type all the school exams on stencil and then run them off on the electric manual mimeograph. They also make up small amounts of copy-rite. This group also trains the incoming girls for the next year for one-half year so that they are ready in September to take over the workroom. All the girls on the Mimeograph Aides are seniors and like doing this work.

Hostess Club

"Now for the tea of our host."—Gilbert

WHILE serving at various social functions at school, the members of the Hostess Club acquire social poise and grace. If you would acquire social ease and that hostess smile this club is your dish of tea. Under Miss Taft's direction, these girls served at various school teas.

Field trips were taken by the group to various institutions. One of the more interesting trips taken was to the Long Island Lighting Company where the latest domestic appliances were seen. Another trip to the Casa Loma proved instructive for those girls who wanted to learn how to make pizza. A picnic climaxed the year's activity.

These young, gracious hostesses had as their president Catherine King while Charlotte Kansco, Elsie Fuchs, and Maureen Carney served as vice-president, secretary, and treasurer respectively.

EVERY two weeks during the past year the members of our renowned Varsity Club held their meeting. The twenty-five members gathered to discuss the current news in school sports. Advised by Mr. Nilsson, the meetings were presided over by Doug Smith with Armand Fiorenza assisting and Dick Schaefer taking over the duties of secretary-treasurer.

The only requirements for membership in this athletic club is a varsity letter in any varsity sport. The members, easily recognized by their gray and blue jackets, set as one of their aims the improvement of school spirit in sports events.

The boys assisted at many of the sporting events such as basketball games where they acted as a patrol, checked tickets and kept order.

Although one of Hempstead's younger organizations, the Varsity Club has made its influence felt around the school.

Camera Club

THE guiding spirit of the Camera Club is Mr. Smith. There are sixteen members who participate in its activities, which include instruction in all phases of picture-taking. From this club will emerge the newspaper fotogs and studio professionals of the future. Movie-making and taking and editing are not overlooked in the Camera Club's program.

A trip to the Photography Show in New York was made in February. Print contests were held among the members and awards made to those judged to be meritorious. Though the members are amateurs, very fine work is produced. Meetings are held bi-monthly.

A lecture on the possibilities of the stroboscope was held. This lighting appliance is a late comer and produces the finest effects. Color photography and the use of filters under all conditions was explained to the members. An attempt to photograph a screech owl in the hole of an oak tree met with disaster when the night prowler assailed the intruders.

Principal's Service Squad

"Light is the task when many share the toil."—Homer

AMONG the many squads serving the different branches of the administration, the Principal's Service Squad has been very prominent since it was first organized.

Presently this squad is composed of nine girls who are seniors or juniors. General good appearance, friendliness, personality, the ability to learn quickly, and good scholastic average are the qualities which each girl on this squad must possess. This group of efficient girls are carefully chosen by Mr. Beddow and Mrs. Anderson. The girls' names are suggested by the senior members of the squad and teachers.

Among their many tasks, the girls enjoy most of all working on the switchboard. In order to carry out this job efficiently, the girls are instructed in the use of the switchboard. Their many jobs require concentration, alertness and efficiency. The organization usually held meetings once a month and a Christmas Party is normally included on the agenda.

This fine group proves itself of great help to office one and its service is appreciated. In return the girls receive excellent experience in clerical work which some may come to use in later years.

Pen and Ink

"The pen is mightier than the sword."—Lytton

"SCHOLARSHIP and Service," the motto of this club, characterized the programs presented this year. New members, maintaining an average of 90 percent in each subject, were inducted into the club early in the year.

The girls worked hard selling stationery and also conducted a cake sale. The proceeds of 75 dollars are annually awarded to the senior who contributed the most to the organization. Last year's recipient was Elsa Steinbrenner.

An able slate of officers was elected consisting of Marilyn Brooks, president; Patricia Wilson, vice-president; Martha Oman, secretary; and Carol Crowder, treasurer.

Miss Gunther and Mr. Beckett, fresh from Europe, gave illustrated talks at two meetings. In January, members of the club, accompanied by their advisors, Mrs. Stilger and Miss Abbott, visited the United Nations. The day included a tour of the U. N. building. A get-acquainted mother-daughter tea was held in April.

Ellen Anderson, editor, and Kay Erickson, business manager, were responsible for the annual Handbook.

Pentagon

"A fort with five bastions."—Webster

THE Pentagon, one of the honor clubs of the high school, limits its membership to upperclassmen. Its purpose is to broaden the interests of the members in all fields of knowledge. In the Pentagon will be found many who will enter the institutions of higher learning. A minimum of 90 per cent grades is required to become a member.

The Pentagon awards annually a gold service key to the student member judged to have been of greatest aid to the club. Meetings are held bi-monthly with Mr. Murphy as advisor.

Expenses of the club are at a minimum and are covered by membership dues of $1 which provides a scholarship to candidates for college degrees as well as to defray the costs of club activities.

This year Louis Sherwood was president of Pentagon, Howard Mettler was vice-president; the treasurer was James Jefferson and Chuck Clifton was the secretary.

"There's no business like show business."—Berlin

AFTER several months of careful training and rehearsing, the Sophomore Dramatic Workshop is ready for action! Any Sophomore is eligible to try out for the group. During the year, members read for parts in the group's annual play. This year the Sophomores presented "Growing Pains." This action comedy takes place on the patio of the McIntyre home in Southern California. George and Terry McIntyre portrayed by John Manton and Wilma McCormack respectively faced typical teenage problems. Supporting roles were played by Judy Kohsiek, David Nessman, Melvin Fox, Lois Pattison, Marie Passidomo, and as an added attraction, a dog.

Under the direction of Mrs. Kantzler, the group was well rewarded for its efforts. Assisted by the upper class stage crew, Miss Randall created a gay and colorful stage set. From all points of view "Growing Pains" was a huge success.

Footlight Club

"All the world's a stage and all the men and women merely players."—Shakespeare

EVERYBODY wants to get into the act, as Durante is so fond of saying, but few can do it with the consummate artistry of our Footlight Club, which is composed of interested Juniors and Seniors.

The George Bernard Shaw play "Pygmalion" was chosen for this year's performance. It was an excellent choice because it had many clever lines and afforded the cast much opportunity for developing their characterizations. The dramatis personae are not stereotyped, they are all on the eccentric side. The play does not tend to become "traditional" but remains fluid in interpretation.

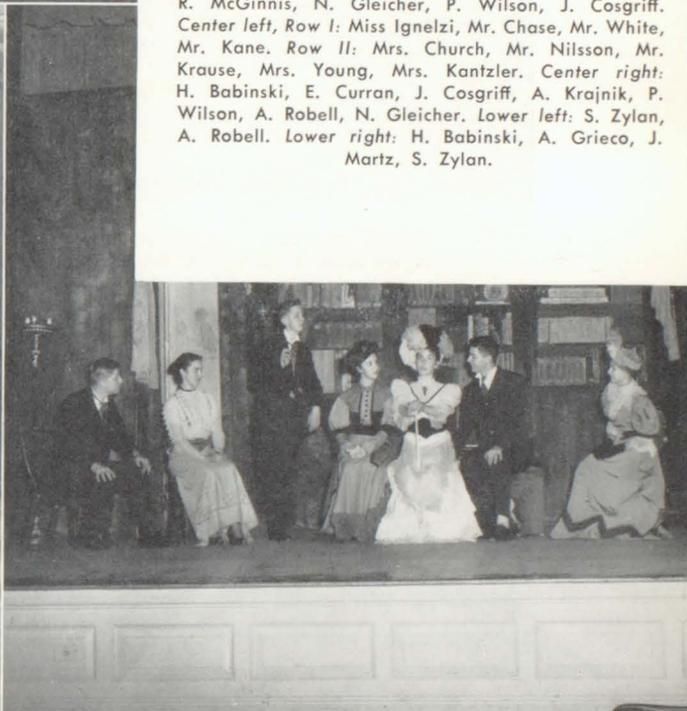

Mrs. Kantzler, the club's able director, was very enthusiastic, and justly so. In the Auditorium on February fifth and sixth the play was performed before an enthralled audience.

Key Clickers

"... clutch the golden keys,"—Tennyson

THE Key Clickers is the commercial club for girls in the upper grades. This popular and busy organization was composed of thirty members with Monica Testin as president, Marie Filiberto, vice-president, Joan Baumgartner, secretary, and Joyce Seaman, treasurer. Miss Silver was the able and well-liked advisor of the club.

One of their latest recent projects was aiding Meadowbrook Hospital in various ways. At their annual Christmas party each girl brought a small gift for a child at the hospital.

The club's Thanksgiving party combined work with play. After the social hour, the girls made place cards for meal trays at Meadowbrook.

The meetings sometimes took the form of discussions on various problems in the business world. The members also visited a prominent business establishment.

The Key Clickers is a worthwhile organization for girls taking commercial subjects. Its purpose is to help develop and broaden their knowledge of the business world in all its phases. It also provides the girls with an opportunity to meet with others of similar interests.

Office 5 Squad

"They also serve who only stand and wait."—Milton

BUSY and efficient are the members of the Office 5 Squad. These girls and boys are the enthusiastic helpers of Mr. Pill, counselor for all Junior and Senior College Preparatory students. They also assist the other members of the Office 5 staff.

The squad members circulate in the four rooms which comprise the office. Their chores include alphabetizing, filing various papers, sending out the ever-familiar pink slips, and running other errands for the teachers in the office.

Each year Miss Ronnerman, Mr. Pill's secretary, and Mr. Pill choose someone who they think is capable of being a leader to head the squad. This year the honor was given to Barbara McCluskey. This privilege is bestowed upon the girl or boy who shows the most interest in others and who is efficient.

The boys and girls on the Office 5 Squad had a big party at Christmas, with four ice cream cakes, cookies, candy and other delicacies. They picked the names of the teachers and other members of the squad and bought presents for one another. The group had great fun at this yearly affair.

"Books must follow sciences, and not sciences books."—Bacon

UNDER the leadership and expert guidance of Mr. Franklin Faust, the advanced science club, composed of junior and senior students enjoyed a wonderful year in so far as physics and chemistry are concerned. These "know-hows" probed into the complex matrix of the atom.

In addition to films and slides, student projects and debates were held. The human blood and its constituents were discussed at one of the meetings. A heated debate was held on the possibilities of reaching Mars. Food for thought was provided by an enlightening discussion of H. G. Wells' new book which foretells certain extraordinary events which may be of great concern to us in the future.

This year's officers included: Richard Keats, presidents; Donald Bernstein, vice-president; Marcella Broderick, secretary; and Emanuel Schaffer held tightly to the purse strings.

"Knowledge is power."—Hobbes

THIS organization of newcomers, under the advisorship of Mr. Lawson, prepared the way for a better understanding of science.

The students participated in projects which were both interesting and enjoyable. Field trips to places of interest familiarized the student with the important role science plays in everyday life. Mrs. Lawson, a Medical Technologist, provided data and information on blood and the significant role it plays in life. The conscientious handling of the presidential post was taken over by John Ramo with Edward Gaff assisting. Irene Cole as secretary took the minutes, while Sally Keller received the money.

Junior Red Cross

"I'm known throughout the world as the Help-Bringer."—Unknown

THAT is indeed true of our Junior Red Cross Council. The members of the Council, 250 in number, which include a representative and alternate from each homeroom, have had a busy schedule. Some of the many tasks assigned to this group include: the annual enrollment drive in November, filling gift boxes for underprivileged children overseas, baking and delivering cookies to veterans' hospitals and assisting at the blood bank in Mineola. In addition a new project—compiling a scrapbook, which includes the many activities of Hempstead High School and the growing township of Hempstead—was undertaken.

Something new has been added. Taking their cue from the athletic department, the council has adopted a mascot. He is a two inch roaring tiger to help spark-up all Junior Red Cross activities.

This group has a fine advisor, Mrs. Mary Bowen. Holding offices this year are three capable Juniors: President, Joan Facey; Vice-President, Bill Standard; the office of Secretary-Treasurer is held by Gwen Perry.

Hempstead High School can be proud of this social welfare group.

Cafeteria Squad

"If food be the source of life, eat on"—Unknown

FROM the fourth period through the seventh period about thirteen hundred students eat in the school cafeteria on clear days, and about fifteen hundred students on rainy days. In charge of seeing that the work is carried out is Mr. Tobani, manager, who is ably assisted by a staff of women who spend several hours in the preparation of sandwiches and hot meals. As a result of their work the students enjoy a delicious hot or cold lunch fit for the taste of any gourmet. A group of our able-bodied young men contribute one or two periods a day to help out by washing trays, dishes and silverware. The cafeteria has a very modern diswashing machine. This handy product of our machine age is built to wash and sterilize the dishes and silverware. Saving our young men from "dish pan" hands is another of its wonderful features.

Teachers are assigned to assist at each lunch period, and together with the Cafeteria Squad help make the cafeteria an orderly and pleasant place in which to eat.

The boys that make up our Cafeteria Squad are not organized into a club, but they work together in perfect harmony to keep our cafeteria up to its high standard.

THE Hempstead High School "hams" are not in a cooking class, but are on the third floor in a room filled with all kinds of radio apparatus.

The club began this year with six boys who were interested in radio. With Mr. Lind, their advisor, they worked hard in all phases of radio.

They have equipment for both sending and receiving, some of which was given to the school by Mr. Woodard, the principal of Ludlum School.

The difficulty of obtaining licenses was successfully overcome and at present a license for the school is in the offing. Summarizing this club's activities one can say without reservation that this habitat for "sparks" is humming with industry.

THAT is the slogan of the famous Blue and White Corner which was founded by Miss Nell Foster. Seven years ago the Blue and White Corner became part of the Commercial Department, under the very capable direction of Mr. Barrett Davidson.

The staff of eight members are chosen from Mr. Davidson's Retailing I classes. The students are appointed according to their ability, personality, and general appearance. They receive experience in selling, and have charge of display, credit, buying of merchandise, bookkeeping, and the duties of a general cashier.

We all join Mr. Davidson and the staff in hoping for bigger and better quarters next year.

Pre-Nursing Club

"Health and cheerfulness mutually beget each other."—Addison

THE pre-nursing members, under the guidance of Mrs. Marsden, are divided into three groups because of their different class schedules. The Seniors selected Claire McGinn, chairman, Helen Frappied, vice-chairman, and Barbara McCluskey, treasurer. Virginia Brady, chairman, Ellen Schnepfer, vice-chairman, and Pat Cabble, treasurer, for the Juniors and Sophomores. The Freshman elected Claire Bast, chairman, and Anne Root, treasurer.

The main purpose of the organization is to learn about schools of nursing and to witness the activities of hospitals. The girls saw films, and heard guest speakers from the New York State Nurses Association and Adelphi College.

One of their projects was collecting old nylon stockings with the proceeds going toward a television set for the veterans hospital. Another project was collecting cigar bands for a similar purpose.

The members visited Columbia Presbyterian Hospital to see the largest collection of Florence Nightingale's letters, and other local and Metropolitan hospitals.

Through the club, volunteer work is available during the summer at the Nassau Hospital and Cerebral Palsy Center for nurses' aides.

Spanish Club

"Under the tropic is our language spoke,"—Waller

AS one of Hempstead High School's oldest organization, the Spanish Club enables interested students to speak Spanish and discuss the history, customs, traditions, and culture of Spain. The meetings, which were held mostly in Spanish, were highlighted by a trip to New York City, the celebration of the feast of "Los Reyes Magos," and the annual Pinata at the Christmas party. Educational films, which presented the picturesque Spanish countryside and its inhabitants, offered knowledge, through an interesting medium, to the Spanish Club members. Contests, games, and singing also helped to flavor the meetings, which were held on the first Wednesday of every month.

The advisor of the Spanish Club was Miss Ignelzi. The officers were: Marion Robinson, president; Sheila Berman, vice-president; Hildyne Foster, secretary; and Alice Dean, treasurer.

Latin Club

"All roads lead to Rome."—La Fontaine
[Ed. note—via the "pony" express.]

"THE meeting of the Latin Club will come to order." Such was the familiar statement of First Consul Edward Pinkus every second Tuesday of the month. The meetings went off like clockwork with the assistance of Bob McGuinness, Second Consul; Roger Schmitt, Quaestor; and Ruth Rasmussen, Scriba. Miss Winter was advisor.

Included on the agenda of the club this year was an excursion to New York to see the "Solid Gold Cadillac," and the annual Christmas party complete with delicious homemade refreshments prepared by the "mater" of the members. Caesar himself couldn't have had better!

With Dennis Towey as "standard-bearer" the seal committee accomplished its purpose—that of designing a seal for the Latin Club.

The film dealing with the celebrated Roman wedding of the previous year was shown exclusively for members of the club.

In the biggest Christmas card campaign to date, the club raised 100 dollars. An annual prize in this amount goes to its most deserving member. Last year there was a tie for the prize; as a result Elsa Steinbrenner and Carol Kappler each received 75 dollars.

French Club

"And Frenche she spake ful fayre and fetisly."—Chaucer

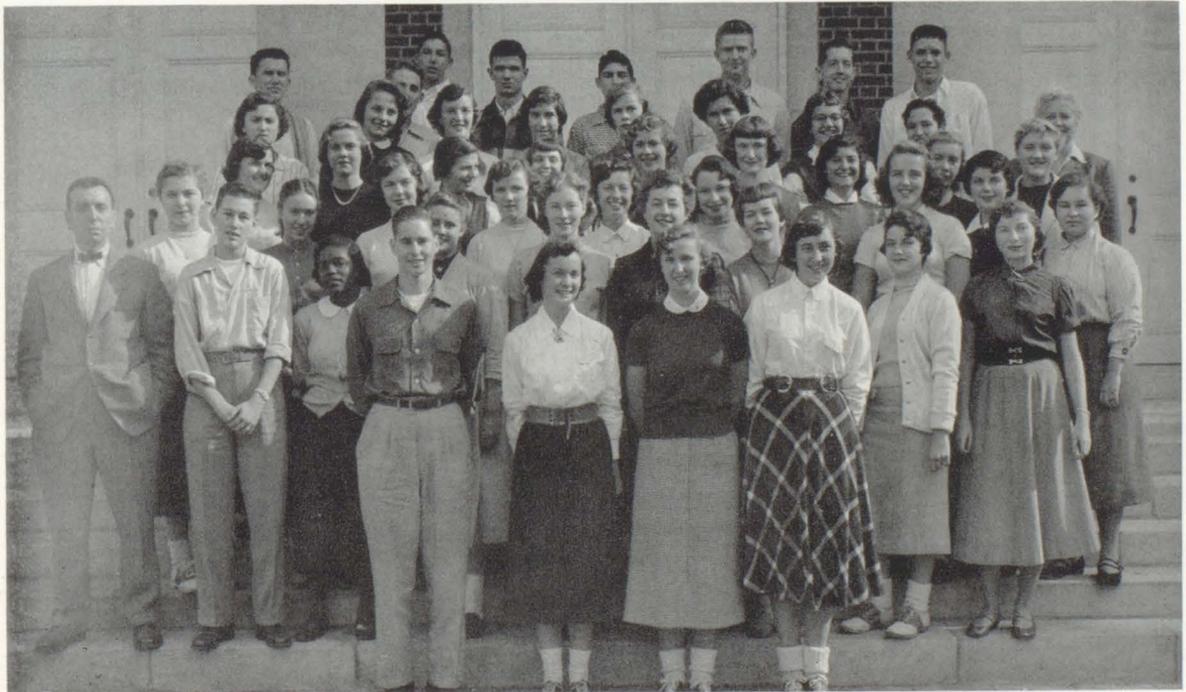

AND such is the case in "Le Cercle Français" for all who join desire to be able to do so, also. About fifty members, all sophomores, juniors, and seniors, constitute the membership. Officers chosen for the year were: president, Michael Kornfield, and vice-president, Joan Markowski. Taking the minutes were Joan Schwitz while funds were handled by Ruth Carling.

Socially, things were really moving in the club. Under the supervision of advisors Mrs. Young and Mr. Menza, a Christmas party was given where all were thoroughly entertained by French carols and dancing. A helping hand was stretched across the sea to "La Famille," a French orphanage, at Christmastime with a gift of money. Throughout the year, interesting and varied programs were presented.

Each year awards are presented to the individuals who have shown the most progress in French during the past year. This year prizes were received by Martha Oman, Hubert Babinski, Emily Moore, and Andrew Robell.

German Club

"And don't confound the language of the nation . . ."—Frere

ONE of the largest and most popular language clubs is the German Club. Because of its large membership, there are two divisions; the Freshman-Sophomore Club and the Junior-Senior Club.

The main purpose of the club was to provide for sociability and informality among the German language students.

Many thanks must be given to Mr. John Lewis Geisler who showed his own color slides of Germany's winter wonderland. They highlighted the ski area of Garmisch-Partinikirche where the winter olympics of 1936 were held. This interesting program was held in the fall and was attended by more than one hundred students of the German classes.

The fourth year German students in the Junior-Senior Club had an amusing experience when they recorded their own translation of "St. George and the Dragon." The Freshman-Sophomore section held a special Thanksgiving party that was enjoyed by all.

The annual Christmas party was the biggest event of the year. It was held in the Girl's Gym where the students pitched in, helping with refreshments and entertainment. For an hour all the students participated in square dances which were called by Mr. Fred Franz. While refreshments were being served by committees, skits were

Marching Band Entourage

"Now the rich stream of music winds along, deep, majestic, smooth, and strong."—Gray

AS we hear the first few strains of "South Rampart Street Parade," a loud cheer comes up out of the stands. The Hempstead Marching Band is on the field, and here they come! We stand while the color guard carries the flag we all honor and love.

As the middle sections open up and form lines at the sides, we see the vicacious twirlers, high steppers, and Tigerettes strutting speedily down the field. This year the highlight of the bandshow was the "Model T Ford." The large group went through this routine without any hesitation, and steered itself up the field to the tune of "My Merry Oldsmobile." The "Model T Ford" was not the only formation, for the band also played the currently popular "Eh! Cumpari." This number was set off by a large rotating circle with the Tigerettes and Twirlers on the outside doing numerous steps to go with the number.

The lilting "Tea For Two" offered the band a wonderful opportunity to have the Tigerettes and Twirlers perform a soft-shoe dance on the field. It was a delightful picture to see the banners of the Tigerettes and the batons of the Twirlers raised and dropped with perfect timing. "Dixieland Band" was the Tigerettes' kicking number this year. Mrs. Barry, the advisor for the band-show, agreed heartily with everyone, that all the girls in the Tigerettes and Twirlers did a wonderful job. One of the main attractions of these shows was the Glockenspeilers, who always play in perfect harmony. Talented Gwen Perry captained this group.

This year something new was added; the senior Twirlers were grouped into a separate section of the show, and were called the "High Steppers." They made a stunning appearance in their newly designed uniforms as they performed many routines on their unwieldy batons. Their four captains were: J. Michalski, S. Hoyt, B. Kerr and M. Marshall.

At the beginning of the season the band gave its best performance, when it played at the Polo Grounds. It was a great honor to know that Hempstead was chosen from many bands on Long Island to play at this enormous stadium. The crowds loved our show, and proved it by their magnanimous applause. The Christmas Parade for a local store was another event at which the Hempstead Band was featured. It produced a large turnout, in spite of poor weather conditions. Even the widely read magazine, "Look," sent photographers to Hempstead to take pictures of our well-known band in action.

Although the cheerleaders do not participate directly in the shown, they help supply the backing that our team needs while playing, and their stimulating "Blue and White" cheers led our team to victory. Varsity Cheerleaders had two wonderful girls as captains: Carol Storms and Beverly O'Neill, and the J. V. Cheerleaders were glad to have Jean Romano as heir captain.

The Drum Majorettes in their tall hats and their batons were Barbara Noble and Joanne Miller. They led our band to triumph—a triumph which will be remembered by all. All these attractions put together, give us what has become one of Long Island's best—The Hempstead Marching Band.

Varsity Football

"Then ye contented your souls with the muddied oafs at the goals."

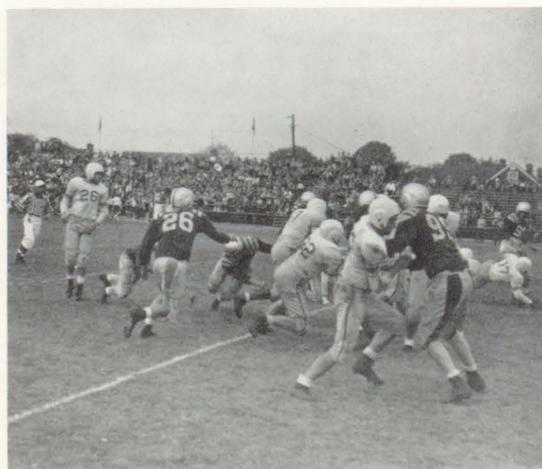

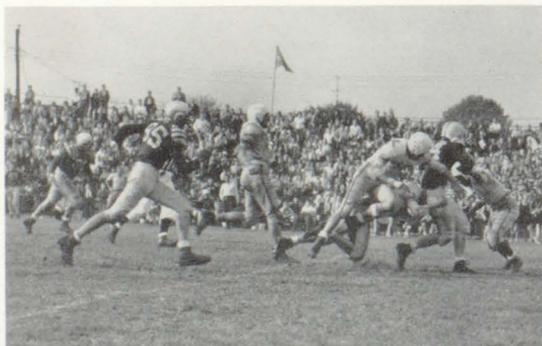

—Kipling

AT the start of this year's football season, the varsity squad had hopes for an excellent year. Although many of last year's outstanding players had been lost to West Hempstead, our school still had a strong and well playing team. Our line, coached by Mr. Beck, was strengthened by the blocking and tackling of bruisers like Richard Desmond, Josh Margiotta, Ed Suchan, and John Arsell while Mr. Keenan's powerful backfield, starring Adrian Butash, Tom Forbes, George Stevenson, and Roosevelt King, was ready to attack any opposition.

With co-captains Adrian Butash, George Stevenson, and Josh Margiotta leading the team, we were ready to go. In the season's first clash, our gridgers scored an impressive 19-6 victory over a not too strong, but nevertheless hard fighting Great Neck team. It was by extra points, which were to plague our team in more than one game, that a well playing Freeport team eked out a 7-6 victory. In the third game, Valley Stream suffered a 12-7 defeat at the hands of our battling Tigers, although a series of injuries lasting all season had already started to weaken the latter. It was again the extra points that gave the Mineola squad a 14-12 victory over us. We plunged into combat against Baldwin, the league's most powerful team, with seven injured men missing from our starting lineup, and were blanked 20-0 in a losing struggle.

Heinzerling, D. Hill, W. Grant, R. Desmond, B. Maynard, E. Grimm, R. Adamo, Mr. Keenan, Mr. Schuessler.

Most of the injured were back in the lineup in time to face a formidable Mepham team. By the end of the first quarter, however, they were back out again and once more we were blanked, this time 21-0. Sewanhaka profiting from our bad luck in extra points, and in the sixth game walked off with a 7-6 victory. The final game of the season, played on Thanksgiving Day, gave our team its third and most coveted triumph. In this 28-0 romp over Glen Cove, we retained for one more year the traditional

"Chapman Memorial Bell," finishing up the season on a victorious note.

This was the fourth season in which Mr. Schuessler guided our varsity in his position as head coach. Knowing that all the fellows played their very best, he was well satisfied with their record of 3 wins and 5 losses. He does believe, however, that had it not been for the numerous injuries our squad suffered, two or three of the games, Baldwin and Mepham in particular, might have been a different story. Mr. Voorhies, in charge of the team's medical treatment, cites the injuries of Bob Adamo, Josh Margiotta, and John Arsell as particularly damaging. All told, however, the season is generally considered to have been a successful one.

Coach Schuessler is looking forward to an even better team next season. With Tom Forbes and John Arsell as co-captains, seven veterans from this year's varsity back in the lineup, and some excellent material coming up from the Junior Varsity, his expectations are well founded. Even now, everybody's eye is on bringing the Triple-A Championship back to Hempstead.

"To sink or soar."—Byron

WITH Don Meddis and Hal Kennedy returning from last year's varsity squad, and Dick Desmond, Jon Cheshire, Ed Suchan, and Franco Monteiro joining this year's, our basketball boys looked in good shape, and they were. Kennedy, Meddis, and Desmond captained the team which as a result of Mr. Benner's retirement was now under the aegis of a new coach, the popular John Mills.

Coach Mills got to know his players quickly and soon had them in terrific shape. Baldwin, Freeport, Oceanside, and Sewanhaka each lost their two games to us. Mephram took one, 52-50, and dropped the other, 72-59; Central beat us once by a close 41-40, and lost to us, 77-67; in the big game against Lawrence, we were tripped up in one, 81-60, but won the other in a sudden-death overtime by a score of 66-64. Had it not been for the illness of Cheshire and Desmond, we might have finished with a better record than our outstanding one of 10 wins and only four losses. With many of our topnotch players returning next year, we can look forward to a bang-up season.

"There was ease in Casey's manner, as he stepped up to the plate,"
—Thayer

WITH the ease of the "Mighty Casey" our boys opened up the '53 season with a bang, by winning from Baldwin and Freeport two straight games each. After such a terrific start, Mr. Schuessler, Hempstead's fine coach, believed that he had the foundations laid for a team better than that of the year before, however, the season's tally was the same.

It seemed as though "3" was the season's unlucky number, which was proved by the Tigers' loss of three consecutive games to Mephram, Valley Stream, Lawrence, and Sewanhaka.

With the aid of captain Mike Ricigliano, a powerful defensive was set up with George Docteroff at first, Brian Gage, second, Ed Suchan at third and Jerry Ryan as short stop. Left field, Center and Right field were played by Dave Hawks, Buddy Dreitlein, and Mike Ricigliano respectively. Pitchers Hal Kennedy and Tommy Forbes kept catcher Frank Dovinsky very busy, especially in Hal Kennedy's one hitter game against Freeport.

Despite some swell pitching and all around good playing, Hempstead ended the season with 5 wins and 13 losses, placing 5th in the league. Better luck next year!

Track Team

"... he that runs well, runs twice his race."—Cowley

NO sooner had the Cross Country season ended when some of the more enthusiastic runners began their training for the year's track season.

The captain of the team was Dick Shipley who proved himself deserving of the title. He came through the six meets without having been defeated in his specialty which was high jumping. At the end of the regular season some of the boys went to West Point to compete for the State Championship. Here Dick Shipley broke the high jumping record with 6 ft. 3½ ins.

Among those who gave commendable performances were: Doug Smith, miler; Dick Cheshire, half miler; Bob Dowler, quarter miler; and Alex Stauf, shot putter. Doug Smith, Dick Cheshire, and Alex Statuf also went to West Point where Doug Smith came in second in the mile.

Considering that there was a marked weakness in the hurdling division, the team managed to win four out of six meets.

"... the men behind the guns!"—Rooney

BECAUSE of the inadequate quarters in which the matches were held, very few if any students attended the interscholastic matches of the Rifle Team. These boys train continuously so that they can perform at peak level throughout the season. It is only right therefore to give credit to one and all.

The captain of this year's Rifle Team was Ronald Hess, and the rest of the team was composed of: Robert Walsleben, Richard Schaefer, Ed Grimm, Frank Campbell, Bruce Everett, John Peters, Ken Gutekunst, Bruce Blower, Jerry Claffie, and Roger Augustine.

The team came in second in the Nassau County Interscholastic League, winning fourteen out of seventeen matches, and they are the holders of this year's Section 8 crown. The figure 918 seems to have been very popular this year. It was the score with which they beat Mephram in their last match of the season, it gave Hempstead the title of the new 20 minute time limit champion, and was the highest score in the League this season.

At the close of the season, the boys presented coach Voorhies with a .22 calibre target pistol in appreciation of his invaluable coaching.

THE team was not quite so successful as that of last year, but showed that despite the loss of a good player, a team can still maintain a high position in the League.

The captain of this year's team was George Rillke, and some of the team members included Roy Nelson, Don Nowack, Ben Plawski, Ed Ziminski, Joe Brennan, and Joe Kolano. The highest average for the season, held by Ben Plawski, was 168.3 for 36 games. Hempstead came in second in the Section A of the South Shore Athletic League.

Tennis

"It's love, love, love—what a racquet!"—Anonymous

UNFORTUNATELY, Hempstead's tennis team had no veterans returning from the previous season and Coach John Menza was forced to build an entirely new squad. Although the rookie team won no meet, Ira Brous won his match against Oceanside and Bob Balacek won his against Malverne. For green players, it was a considerable showing.

Many players will be returning from last year's squad, which included Chuck Clifton, Dave Dittrich, Richard Goetke, Charlie Hagenah, Andy Robell, and Gordon Weil. Mr. Menza has good reason to hope for a better season.

Golf

"Roll on, thou ball, roll on."—Gilbert

HEMPSTEAD'S 1953 golf squad was strengthened not only by returning veterans, but also by fine new talent. Coached again by Mr. Faust, the team included Captain Benny Klemanowicz, George Cosgrove, Frank Barth, Charles Justs, and Ray Plawski.

Those who suffered losses at the hands of our team were Chaminate, 5-3; Sewanhaka, 4-1; Baldwin, 5-0, 5-0; South Side, 4-1; 5-0; Oceanside, 5-0, 5-0; and Lawrence; 3-2. We lost one match to Lawrence, 3-2, to finish the season with a record of 10 wins and 1 loss. Beating Lawrence in the playoff, we won the South Shore Athletic League Golf Championship.

IN this mechanical age there are still those who like to turn to the "good old days," practicing some of the forms of entertainment which their grandfathers knew and enjoyed very much.

Under the able supervision of Mr. Schaedel the riders met every week. They were taught the proper handling of horses to improve their riding technique. Due to a change in schedule of Mr. Schaedel's classes, this year the club was divided into two groups; the first semester the Junior-Senior group met and the second semester the Freshman-Sophomore.

Cross Country

"—away they speed on lonely paths,"—Smith

WHILE the newcomers to our school were still groping their way around, Mr. Krause had already started the first wind sprints to get the boys in shape.

This year we had three returning boys who didn't let the school down. They were: Doug Smith, captain of the team, Dick Cheshire, and Armond Fiorenza. These boys qualified and went to the inter-sectional meet at Schenectady.

The team improved greatly over the last season, coming in second in the South Shore Athletic League and second in the Section eight, Class A Division.

Varsity Softball

"He may not score, and he helps to win, who makes the hit that brings the runner in."—Guiterman

ALTHOUGH the 1953 softball team did not cop the championship, it did place second, ending the season with a 7-3 record. Under the coaching of Mr. Keenan and with John Junda and John Newton as captains, the team got off to a good start by topping Baldwin twice in a row 21-2 and 16-0, and defeating South Side 10-3. After losing to Long Beach 5-4 the boys ran into a four game winning streak, but dropped their last two games.

All in all it was a very creditable showing for the softballers.

J. V. Football

"Do not turn back when you are just at the goal."—Syrus

THE opening of the 1953 football season brought more than eighty boys out for J. V. football. The squad was soon cut to forty members, because of the difficulty of getting to the Jackson School practice field since our own field was not finished. Of the forty players, only twelve had any previous experience in organized football. This, combined with the boys' small physique was the team's greatest handicap, but with the fine coaching of the capable Mr. George Wilson, the team came through winning their first 2 games of the season against Great Neck (19-0) and Valley Stream (7-0).

After losing to a more experienced Freeport (0-14), the game with Mineola resulted in a scoreless tie. The remainder of the season was victorious, with the exception of the loss to the heavily loaded Mephram squad (0-28). The outstanding wins were those over Baldwin (13-0) and Sewanhaka (24-0). The season's record was five wins, two losses, and a tie.

Freshman Football

"I once admitted to my shame that football was a brutal game."
—Cochrane

A GROUP of determined young men, eager and ready to play, came to the football tryouts. Doc White, their coach, picked the squad and began putting them through their paces.

The Cubs got off to a poor start by losing to Great Neck 6-0, Valley Stream 13-0, Freeport 20-7, and Mephram 13-7, but they fought hard in their game with Sewanhaka and tied it 0-0. Their two last games of the season proved to be successful with a victory of 15-13 over Baldwin. They played against the East Meadow team and won 24-13.

The captain of the team was Donald Kornrumpf, who also proved to be the team's most valuable player. Others rated as of great value to the team were Johnny Edwards, Johnny Douglas, James Hawks, Arthur Mitchell, Anthony Goverante, Merritt Miller, Lincoln Basil, Walter Blomgren, Robert Drost, and Jack Whitehurst.

The Freshman team, although winning only two light games, must be congratulated for trying its best. Breaking the new boys in was a difficult task, but the fine coaching of Mr. White helped them to get the experience they needed.

With the support of all behind the Frosh, we can expect a good team next year.

"A team that won't be beaten, can't be beaten."—Zupke

ALTHOUGH the 1954 J. V. campaign wasn't as successful as last year's the team made a fine showing under its able, new coach, Mr. Krause, who deserves much of the credit for the success of the team. These boys played each game with vim and vigor, giving all their opponents a hard and good game. This is confirmed by the fact that most of Hempstead's victors won by only two or three points.

The season got under way with three straight defeats over Westbury, Mineola and again Westbury, the scores being 45-35, 41-40 and 21-20. After losing to Central 27-42 they shaded Freeport 34-31 who later on in the season came back with a revenge victory 48-49. Following a defeat by Lawrence 44-57, the team edged Sewanhaka 54-53 and then had a 65-55 romp over Baldwin. The last two games resulted in a return defeat by Central 39-55 and a victory over Oceanside 55-27 ending the season with a record of 10 wins and 8 losses.

Among the key players who starred were, George Bookhard, Jim Turnbull, Eugene Tempel, Jim Maguire, and Arnold Davies, who scored 20 points for the highest personal score.

With Mr. Krause returning as coach next year, we hope for an even better team for '55.

Freshman Basketball

"... He writes not whether you won or lost but how you played the game."—Anonymous

THE '54 freshman basketball squad was not a large one, but considering the small number the frosh did a fine job. "Experience is the best teacher" was proved to be true as the season progressed, for the players showed remarkable improvement.

The three opening games for the Baby Tigers were losses at the hands of Valley Stream (40-28), Lawrence (42-38), and Lynbrook (54-41). However, a fine comeback was staged when they set up two consecutive wins from Central (21-18), and Malverne (36-34). In another playoff Malverne came back to defeat us (47-15).

The fine teamwork of captain Jim Hawks, Ed Muller, Bob Drost and Don Kornrumpf was recognized as excellent freshman playing. Don Francis' fine coaching made it just that.

East Rockaway bowed to Hempstead with a score of (45-20) in one game but came back to win in the next (46-39). We defeated Long Beach twice (44-34) and (51-19). After the game with Woodmere (54-43), we thought we had established a winning streak, but in the last two games with Woodmere (59-49) and Lynbrook (71-29) our luck didn't hold out.

The season's outcome of 6 wins 8 losses was an outstanding record for the inexperienced freshmen.

Modern Dance

"On with the dance! let joy be unconfined;"—Byron

DANCE and you'll dance your cares away appears to be the motto of our modern dance girls. Each one displays grace and skill of an art which requires much of the dancer's time and effort. However, it takes more than these characteristics to be a dancer. Since they create many of their dances, the girls must bring imagination to their art.

Every girl who is in one of the regular modern dance classes is eligible to try out for the club. Although many of the girls have never had any experience in this field of dancing, they soon become skilled under the able coaching of Mrs. Barry.

This year the club elected Marilyn Brooks as its leader and Pat Cabble as her assistant.

The girls give one of their most dazzling performances at Greek Games when they honor a Greek god or goddess. The dancers also give another memorable performance on Class Night.

All girls who possess the enthusiasm and willingness required, soon find this activity no longer arduous but rather fun to learn as well as perform.

Gym Aides

"Be it your care to follow, you shall be safe with me as your leader."
—Unknown

IN every girl's gym class, assisting the teachers are usually three or four gym aides. One gym aide, who is acting as secretary, takes charge of attendance and make-ups. The aides instruct students as to rules and techniques of playing various sports, folk dancing, and participation in Greek Games. As these girls teach the students, they also participate actively in the games, instructing and having fun with them at the same time. Some of the aides work hard trying to earn points toward a letter.

Because of their neatness and ability to help others, they make gym interesting and enjoyable.

Becoming a gym aide is a great opportunity for girls who wish to make physical education a future career.

Eleanor Phelps, a very competent aide, is student leader of the gym aides, while Miss Marion MacCallum, better known to girls as "Miss Mac," is the advisor and guide for the group.

The aides have meetings approximately six times during the year, and at each meeting they discuss new and better ways to improve the gym classes.

Girls' Sports Leaders

"Lead thou me on!"—Newman

ANNUALLY, the girls' physical education department selects a group of dependable girls as Sports Leaders. Each girl is chosen for her aptitude and interest in the particular sport in which she excels.

Head of the Gym Aides for this year was Eleanor Phelps and Student Chairman of Greek Games was Joan Dawson. The cheerleaders were headed by Carol Storms and Beverly O'Neil. Modern Dance was led by Marilyn Brooks and Pat Cabble. The other leaders were Nancy Taylor, Softball; Lilyan King, Badminton; Mildred Dean, Basketball; Bowling, Louise Cuomo, and Ping Pong led by Angie Kyranakis.

Girls Bowling

"It's a strike."—Anonymous

GIRLS bowling, this year, was divided into Monday and Wednesday groups, with Miss Silver advising on Mondays and Mrs. Cass, a student teacher, on Wednesdays.

Louise Cuomo, this year's student leader, saw the Monday group win top honors in the play-off at the Hempstead Recreation Center. Top scorers on Mondays were Martha Matulonis—123 and Patricia Bonniwell—105. Equal honors were shared by Louise Edwards—111 and Jackie O'Keefe—91, Wednesday's high scorers.

Girls' Basketball

"There are gains for all our losses."—Stoddard

THE Girls' Basketball season opened with a large number of girls eager to get into this sport which is becoming more popular every year. Mrs. Reicher's fine coaching enabled the girls to eliminate weaknesses and to improve their all-around playing. Mildred Dean was this year's capable student leader.

The honor team, for which the best players are chosen were: Guards: Joan Dawson, Joyce Seaman, Dottie VanNess; Forwards: Lynn King, Barbara Kilian, and Helen Cain.

In its only inter-mural game the team played hard against Garden City, losing by two points.

Badminton

"Joyous the birds;"—Milton

ONE of the most interesting sports to watch, yet one of the games requiring the most skill, is badminton.

Among the many participants, Mary Rue, Eleanor Phelps, Joan Schwarzman, Phil Mannino, Lynn King, and Terry Serpa won top honors.

Under the careful guidance of a capable as well as vivacious student leader, Lynn King, and a wonderful coach, Miss Mac, our teams made a good showing in the Great Neck and Garden City matches.

Ping Pong

"With many a stiff thwack, many a bang,"—Butler

DURING the fall, there were thirty-five members in the Ping Pong Club. Among those, Rhoda Schaeffer, Elaine Johansen, Marilyn Schwitz, Toby Craggs, Angie Kyranakis, and Johanne Bumback were leading players. The girls played a double tournament in Great Neck, won by Rhoda Schaeffer and Elaine Johansen. Advising the group was Mrs. Reicher.

Miss Mac's winter group consisted of only eight. Since there were so few, the girls occasionally invited others in to play.

Games played were Round Robin, Tournaments, singles and doubles. The captain of the club was Angie Kyranakis.

Ping - Minton

"The little pleasure of the game . . ."—Montague

THIS year the Girls' Athletic Department, faced with a large turnout for both sports, decided to divide the group in half, with one half playing Ping Pong one day and Badminton the other; thus everyone was given an opportunity to play.

Those who wished to participate in only one of these sports on both days were also accommodated. Matches were played between those playing daily and those playing on alternate days. Naturally, the dailies defeated consistently those who played on alternate days.

With Miss Mac coaching Ping Pong and Mrs. Reicher badminton, this new combined sports idea provided variety as well as enjoyment for everyone who played.

Greek Games

"To love the games beyond the prize."—Newbolt

ONCE a year we all look forward to one night when we are transported into Ancient Greece and cheer our teams on, as the annual Greek Games take place in Hempstead High.

The melodious voices of the Girls Glee Club hold one's complete attention and admiration. "The Greek National Anthem," followed by "Glorious Forever" provided the overture for the spectacle to follow.

In the 1953 edition the Athenians entered with precision hard to equal and were followed by the flowery entrance of the Spartans. Betty Kerr dashed out on the floor and uttered a challenge to the Spartans that shook the very room. It was accepted by Sandra Fergang, who met this challenge as a lion would meet that of a lamb.

Prometheus, the God to whom the 1953 games were dedicated, was invoked by the priestesses to lead their respective teams to victory. Lorraine Gomillion, Chairman of that year's games, gave Shirley Morrell the word to sound a mighty blast to herald Emily Moore's winning ode which she recited exquisitely.

The first event, hurdling, won by Barbara Hayes, received wonderful applause, as each contestant gracefully glided over the hurdles. The mighty discus throwers came out on the floor and overwhelming cheers went up as Betty Sachleben and Joan Wright tied for first place.

The beautiful dance, "Prometheus, Creator of Mankind," in which Sue Krim was Prometheus, Elsie Dobler, Flame, and Gail Anderson, Hope, was performed by the students of Modern Dance.

The Hoop races, followed by Torch races were acclaimed by the crowd. The Chariot exhibition was won by the Spartans, but the Athenians ran the closest second in quite a few years.

The wreaths were awarded, and the games drew to a close. The spectators returned home to the modern world hoping that the year would pass quickly so that they could again witness that exciting event—The Greek Games.

Grinding Mills

CONCLUDING his first year as Hempstead's varsity basketball coach is one of our favorite history pros, Mr. John Mills. His personal "history" includes four years of high school playing followed by frosh and two years of varsity at Hofstra before being called to serve three years for Uncle Sam.

"When Johnny Came Marching Home Again," he returned for his last college year, during which his spectacular playing attracted attention. He was chosen for the third All-American college team and the first All-Metropolitan team. As one of the ten best senior players east of the Mississippi, he played in the annual Herald Tribune Fresh Air Fund East-West game. In three years of college he shot 1255 points, 477 of them in his last year.

Following five years' coaching Hofstra's freshman team, he came to Hempstead to teach history and coach freshman basketball his first year. This year he took charge of the varsity squad. With the previous season's record impossible to beat and a miracle to equal, and with so few players remaining, he was naturally under a certain amount of pressure. Coach Mills can rightly be optimistic concerning the future and proud of his first year as Hempstead's varsity basketball coach.

Exchange Teacher

OUR own Miss Beighley was selected to teach in England for the school year 1952-53. Her job was at a girls' school on the Thames River. There were two daily 16 minute breaks for tea! (Picture tea-time at HHS!) There was no homework (hurry kids the boat's leaving), no study periods and a six day school week (you can unpack now).

She said English girls were unsophisticated using little cosmetics or jewelry. There was no gum chewing, formal student-teacher relations (which she felt was a hindrance) and extreme politeness everywhere (students waited for teachers to enter the room before entering themselves and waited for teachers' invitations to be seated).

Miss Beighley was fortunate to be there during Coronation time. British students were all given souvenirs by the government. She spent an entire night on the Mall to see the Coronation procession.

She saw the opening of Parliament, the royal family in procession, had tea at Lambeth Palace, visited the royal yacht and met the Duke of Edinburgh and the Queen Mother.

She loved the fog, but only as a curiosity. Except for fog and rain she could easily make England her home. Declares Miss Beighley, "I shall return!"

Exchange Students

THIS year we were fortunate in having two foreign students visit Hempstead. They were Nurit Auerbach, a sixteen-year-old girl from Israel, and Wentworth Bossman Obuarey Kodjoe (Kiddie for short!) from the Gold Coast of Africa.

Nurit comes from a town called Haifa while Kiddie's home is the capital of the Gold Coast, Accra.

The two speak fluently several languages including English. Nurit studies history, mathematics, Bible, Hebrew, literature, English, Latin, philosophy, physics, and gymnastics. Kiddie studies these, plus chemistry, biology, and four tribal languages.

Following a series of tests sponsored by the Herald Tribune, Nurit and Kiddie were chosen from among competing students and came to the U. S. on T. W. A. and Pan American Airlines.

Both Kiddie and Nurit greatly enjoyed the snow. Kiddie, who is used to a much warmer climate, felt that although beautiful to look at, it was too cold.

The students' visit was supervised by Mr. Beckett, with the aid of Norma Tranchina and Alice Kay, who helped make their stay one which they both enjoyed thoroughly. The entire student body, as well as Nurit and Kiddie themselves, benefitted greatly from the visit of these two young people.

Custodians

SOMETIMES in our rush about the building we forget our staff of custodians who go about removing our traces. This efficient group of men and women, who are always ready to help a teacher or pupil in distress, quietly go about their work making our school a clean and comfortable place in which to study and learn.

Clean shining floors, paper-free desks, good lighting, and comfortably heated rooms are evidence of their routine work. Many of our custodians will not soon forget one of the very amusing jobs they performed recently after school. On that afternoon they extracted a very distressed freshman from his locker.

Their work plays a big part in making our school one in which we can take pride.

"THIS is Norma Tranchina bringing you the homeroom notices for today." This pleasant voice which was heard every day over the P. A. system belongs to one of Hempstead's most popular and active seniors. Besides reading the notices, Norma had many other activities which kept her busy, such as presiding over the Student Council meetings of which she was president. She is also in the Honor Club and has been Mrs. Foster's "girl Friday" for four years. After graduation, Norma plans to get a job as a secretary but not before spending a few weeks loafing!

Spare time would find our gal Norma oil coloring photographs with a certain someone. Norma loves people in general and just adores the love that glows in Mr. Krause's eyes when he calls her the "Lasagna Kid."

Backstage at Pygmalion

PICTURED above are Larry Kassan, Denis Towey, and Geoff Isherwood discussing the magnificent backdrop Larry designed and painted entirely on his own. Representing a church front on a London street, it was used in Act One, Scene One, of the school play, "Pygmalion" by George Bernard Shaw.

Doing the actual portraying of roles in a play can be a thrilling and fascinating experience, as Pat Wilson (who was Eliza Doolittle), John Cosgriff (The professor), Hue Babinski (the colonel), and the supporting cast will readily testify, but working backstage in a dramatic production can be just as much fun and equally beneficial to the workers. Certainly the behind-the-scenes work is every bit as essential to the finished product as the acting itself. Lighting, sound effects, costumes, scenery, make-up, props, all these the audience is little aware of when watching a play, but would undoubtedly miss were they not there at all.

“Look” Applauds Hempstead Band

THE daring person on top of that extension ladder isn't a fireman, but a photographer from "Look" magazine. That in itself may not sound very exciting, but the photographer actually is a woman, Miss Charlotte Brooks.

During the football season, the band was honored to have Miss Brooks and a reporter from "Look" come to write a feature article on the band show and how it assembled and performed at football games. Miss Brooks went around snapping pictures of the rehearsals and the actual performance, besides taking numerous candid shots to get a complete view of the band's formation of the "Merry Oldsmobile." She had to take the picture from a very high place. The village was generous enough to send a hook and ladder truck, from which our acrobatic photographer could get aerial views. The feature article was to come out either in a late spring or early fall issue.

We're sure the band members are looking forward to seeing themselves in a nation wide magazine.

100 Years of Business Education in the U. S.

ALTHOUGH we take commercial subjects in our school for granted nowadays, they weren't always considered an integral part of a school's curriculum. Some were taught in 1904. Our own commercial department was organized as late as 1913 and was later renamed Business Education in 1952. In 1922 a chairman was appointed, the first of any department in the school. Later a placement service was started, a two-year transcription course offered, a booklet concerning our commercial department published, a color filmstrip of commercial classes made, and a new syllabus for retailing students written and used in their English class. An Everyday Business syllabus prepared by some of our teachers was adopted by the state.

For fellowship and enjoyment to coincide with studies, the Commercial Club was formed in 1922 and the Key Clickers in 1948.

This year there are 650 full-time students, 731 total students enrolled in the department, representing 63% of the entire student body in the school. The largest number of teachers was 15, in 1952-53. There are now 13. In Nassau County, our department is second in size only to one other high school.

In contests, commercial students have won four prize cups, several Gregg banners, cash awards and certificates.

Congratulations to this department for its years of excellent service.

Christmas at H.H.S.

THE melodious voices of the choir caroling through the halls was a welcome sound during the Yule season. The first voices created a magnificent atmosphere that really inspired a Christmas mood and temporary relief from studies was a welcome prelude to that long-awaited vacation. We all felt like singing and sometimes did unless, of course, our voices were so unbearable we feared downpour of books thrown our way for ruining the professionals' caroling.

The bell rang and as you proceeded down the hall you stopped while passing by the glittering Christmas tree on the main staircase with its tinsel and lights reflecting glory all about. One felt a lift and inspiration by it all.

During Christmas at Hempstead High School in 1953, we might have wished we were part of Mr. Zara's homeroom which was celebrating this festive season with a pizza party. Mmmmmmm! Numerous other homerooms were having parties too, but if you could have waited until after school you would have seen a gala jamboree in room 23, with every form of entertainment from harp playing to the Bunny-Hop. This was our very own Colonial Party.

In whatever way you celebrated, I am sure you will always remember Christmas at Hempstead High School, 1953.

Junior Prom

AN "Evening in Paris" though in reality a "soirée in the boys' gym" proved to be a fabulously successful event, as well as an eye-catching spectacle of glittering gowns and white dinner jackets. Last year's juniors out-did themselves in transforming the un-romantic gym into the sparkling atmosphere of Paris.

John King, Chairman, and the many students who devoted much time and effort to the undertaking, deserve the credit, along with thanks to the chaperones and custodians who co-operated whole-heartedly, despite the late date of the affair. Even the temperature which wilted corsages failed to dampen the spirits of the gay crowd. The event also furnished ample opportunity for souvenir hunters, who in the excitement playfully tried to cart away sections of the Gym itself. It was all in the spirit of fun, though, and all too soon the hour came for the couples to say adieu to this intriguing atmosphere . . . at least until the next prom.

In Memoriam

THE Music Department's March concert was dedicated to Eugene Gaydebouroff. It was a tribute to his years of never-tiring service, which played an important part in bringing to fruition this never to be forgotten concert. It is most fitting and proper that we should honor the memory of Mr. Gaydebouroff whose sudden death on March 14 of this year, only a few days before the concert, saddened the students and faculty of Hempstead.

He was not only a competent teacher, but also an enthusiastic friend to all. He commanded both the love and the respect of each member of the Music Department. They held, and still hold him as an example of the "perfect friend," one to whom they could come and share the joys and sorrows of the day.

The spirit of Mr. Gaydebouroff has not left us. It can be found anywhere a violin is played by one of his students.
