COLONIAL

Because of your infinite patience, deep understanding of the individual, and untiring efforts to mold the minds, spirits, and lives of your students, we, the Colonial Staff of 1957, dedicate this book to you—Miss Ruth Taft. Being a teacher, you have followed an honored profession in which you devoted your life to such services as teaching home economics and being junior class advisor. As a teacher's life effects eternity, so may your life continue to cast its influence and, in so doing, replete your years to come with health, happiness, and success.

Foreword

In 1776, our forefathers "brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal." With this to guide them, the thirteen original colonies became one nation known to the world as the United States of America.

In a tribute to our country and its founders, we, the Colonial Staff, have chosen as our theme, "The Spirit of '76." Throughout the pages of this book we have expressed pride in America's heritage. In addition to ideals proclaimed in the Declaration of Independence, the symbols that have grown to represent life during that period have been developed.

Thus, as you leaf through the book may this spirit serve as an inspiration not only at this time but also in the years to come.

Board of Education

THE Board of Education is the governing body of our school and district. All important matters concerning the school must be approved by the Board. The members make many decisions. Examples include problems concerning the teachers, the spending of money for the building of new schools and the maintenance of the present ones. Other school policies and problems are also capably handled.

There are five members, serving five year terms, and are elected at the rate of one each year by the taxpayers of the district. Their number is made up of people who reside in the district. Dr. W. Amos Kincaid, the Superintendent of Schools, acts as an advisor to the Board.

The officers of this group are chosen by the members of the Board of Education. The board meets once a month and occasionally a special meeting is held.

We owe our sincerest gratitude to the Board of Education for all the hard work it has done and will continue to do for the well being of the school and the education of its pupils.

THE position of Superintendent of Schools requires a capable administrator which is the reason Dr. Kincaid came to our community 10 years ago. His interest in students and student life has benefited the Hempstead schools in many ways. He has devoted limitless time and energy to their improvement.

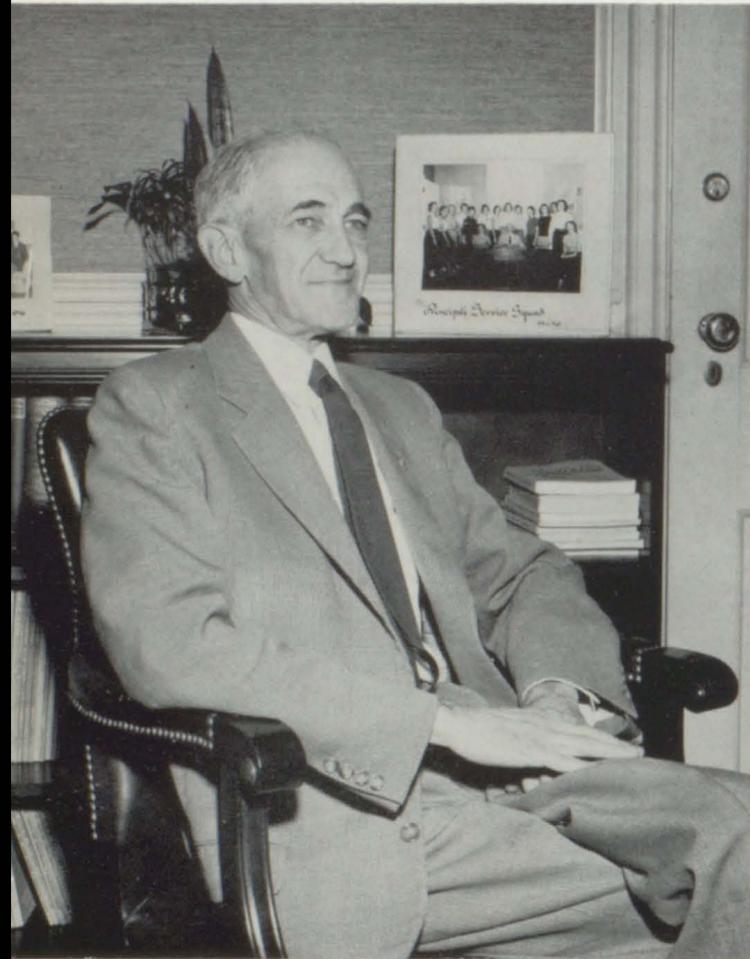

A native Ohioan, Dr. Kincaid attended elementary and high school there, and went on to the University of Ohio where he received his first college degree. After earning his Master's Degree and Doctor of Education at Columbia, Dr. Kincaid served as Superintendent of Schools in Montpelier, Vermont, for eleven years. His next position as superintendent was in Summit, New Jersey. With his excellent background, we are fortunate in having Dr. Kincaid as our superintendent.

A typical day for Dr. Kincaid may include anything from visiting the schools in this district and appearing at civic association meetings to attending club luncheons. With such a busy schedule, Dr. Kincaid still finds some extra time for his favorite pastimes, golf, badminton, fishing, a good game of bridge, or reading.

During the summer, Dr. Kincaid spends his well earned vacation at his hideaway in Cutchogue, Long Island.

WILLIAM D. BEDDOW
Principal

DURING the thirty-five years that Mr. Beddow, our principal, has been at Hempstead High, it has grown tremendously in spirit and reputation. With his interest in the guidance department and the pupils, Mr. Beddow keeps well informed on student activities. As busy as he is, Mr. Beddow's "Welcome Mat" is always out for anyone desiring his advice. Having two teenagers who graduated from Hempstead High, he has a father's understanding of the trials and tribulations of a high school student. Since he was formerly a teacher, Mr. Beddow also has a deep understanding of the problems faced in the classroom.

"Just a boy at heart," Mr. Beddow enjoys football games as much as any student and is very proud of the miniature tiger mascot presented to him last year by the Student Council. A greater variety of extra-curricular activities with more student participation is one of our principal's many ambitions for the school.

His favorite sport is fishing, although he ventured to reveal that he used to practice badminton with two star players on our girls' team.

We are extremely proud to have Mr. Beddow as our principal and hope that his competent leadership continues to guide us for many years.

Administrative Assistants

HEMPSTEAD HIGH SCHOOL has three administrative assistants. Mr. Windt, assistant to the principal, started in Hempstead High School as a mathematics teacher. He is co-author of a book pertaining to mathematics, entitled "Everyday Algebra." At present he is in charge of attendance and discipline, and also supervises extracurricular activities, athletic finances, and keeps records of the point system. Mr. Windt graduated from Cornell University with a degree in Civil Engineering, and received his Master's Degree from Teacher's College at Columbia. He also attended Hofstra College in Hempstead and the University of Rochester. Mr. Windt is commonly known as Mr. P. T. A. to the members of the organization. He is also on the board of the Hempstead Y. M. C. A. For recreation from his many important duties, he spends his summers with his family at Camden, Maine.

Mr. Pill, who is the guidance director of Hempstead High School, helps students to decide what college is best suited for them after they graduate. Many students go to him for his excellent advice concerning these matters. He interviews parents and students, except sophomores and non-academic juniors and seniors. Mr. Pill goes to the elementary schools in Hempstead to advise the eighth grade students what courses are best suited for their future plans. His staff includes several secretarial assistants.

The third administrative assistant is Mr. Moore, who is curriculum coordinator. Through his department it is decided which subjects the elementary schools should offer in order to prepare the students for high school. Mr. Moore is also the director of audio-visual education which is an important factor in modern day education.

The work of these three administrators in the functioning of Hempstead High School is very important. The Colonial staff and other students are deeply indebted to them for their many accomplishments.

English

ONE of the most important departments in Hempstead High is the English department, whose chairman is Miss Barth. English is the only course in which, to graduate, everyone must complete four years.

There are many different courses in English offered in Hempstead. These include studying grammar in order to speak and write correctly, and the reading of English and American classics and poetry. This helps to provide a more liberal and well-rounded education, especially important to those students whose education is otherwise quite specialized.

Students also cover a certain amount of work in original composition which gives them practice in research, thinking, analyzing, and improving their vocabulary.

In place of the usual senior English course, qualified students may take a course in advanced English or creative writing.

Reading is an essential part of Miss Sproule's English Class.

Citizenship Education

THE dire need for good citizens is much greater today than it has ever been. The Citizenship Education Department here at Hempstead High School, which is headed by Mrs. Vincent, endeavors to fill this pressing need by preparing students to take their places in the world as well-informed and conscientious citizens. In order to with film strips and panel discussions being two of the means used to arouse interest. Special reading, reports and projects are also used to augment the studies. All of these factors help to contribute to properly educated and enlightened citizens. These people are properly prepared to take their places in this modern world and to uphold and carry forward our democratic ideals.

achieve this goal an awareness of current events and the effects of past history on these events, is aroused in the students during the course of their studies. The various courses offered by the department are Economic World, World History, and American History which all students are required to take. In addition two elective courses of Modern Civilization and Social Living are offered for the Sophomore or Senior year. Current events are covered in all of these courses

Languages

SHRINKAGE of the world due to the invention of the airplane has made it more important than ever to speak one or more foreign languages. Students at Hempstead High have an opportunity to learn French, Spanish, German or Latin from highly qualified instructors.

The study of a foreign language does not only mean learning its grammar and vocabulary, but also includes teaching the culture and history of the nation. Those really interested in the language can learn more about it through one of the foreign language clubs. Through the teachers of the language department, the student can vicariously experience a visit to a foreign land. Filled with the enticing aroma of foreign dishes, lively colored costumes, and mysterious sounds echoing through the streets, these new enchanting lands radiate a never ending story of people and places.

When one can speak a foreign tongue, it makes him more eager to visit the country. Modern transportation makes it easy to travel abroad. A visit to another country would be much more enjoyable if you had some understanding of its language.

Mathematics

OUR Mathematics Department is organized to serve those students who intend to use this valuable subject in their vocations and those who desire to gain practical training for everyday life. For our future scientists and mathematicians the department offers a strong foundation. This year it has been decided to enlarge and improve the upper class mathematics curriculum to afford our mathematically inclined students an even better background for college studies. With the new curriculum, the teachers are instructing our students in more advanced mathematics in the same length of time. It will certainly help the students to meet keener competition in technological and scientific fields. It is in line with a nation-wide renewal of interest on how to provide this country with more and better mathematicians and scientists.

The students of Hempstead High School have gained many values from algebra, geometry, and trigonometry. We have been taught how to think and analyze, whether we are having discussions with friends, solving problems, or forming opinions. The ability to organize our thoughts has been developed by doing word problems and by graphing and solving equations.

Belonging to the Tupiar Club is a way for interested students to pursue their studies. Everything the department does is toward the goal of interesting more students in higher mathematics.

Science

SCIENCE students have experienced a much "tougher" course this year, according to Mr. Franklin Faust, director of our science department. This is because of the higher requirements of the New York State Board of Regents. The general science course in particular, has become more difficult.

Today, we are living in the atomic age, an age of science. The future of this age is in the hands of the science students of today. From our science classes we shall find our future geologists, doctors, and biologists. Courses in physics and chemistry will help prepare students for futures in the fields of engineering, atomic energy, or chemical research. From our well equipped laboratories will come the experimentalists of tomorrow. Our science courses also enable us to better understand the world around us. The future of America is in the hands of the youth of today, and science is the future of America.

THIS Department offers a wide coverage in the field of commerce for students interested in positions with business organizations.

Hundreds of students upon graduation enter college or the business world. It does not take long for them to realize the importance of the instruction received at Hempstead High School. Their superior background helps them to rapidly ascend the ladder of success.

Among the projects undertaken by the department this past year was an occupational survey of employers in Hempstead. This was to ascertain what business subjects should be emphasized in relation to the needs of business in this community.

A meeting of all department chairmen was also held with various Hempstead employers to show how each department prepares its students to take their places in the community business organizations.

As the community moves forward so does the efficient Business Education Department of Hempstead High School.

Homemaking

THE chairman of the Homemaking Department is Miss Taft, who has been a teacher in Hempstead High School for twenty-six years. Assisting her in preparing the homemakers of tomorrow, are Miss Bennett and Mrs. Bowen.

This department teaches homemaking formalities, from setting a table properly to "running up" a full length coat on the sewing machine.

It has often been stated that "America's future will be determined by the home and the school."

prefer interior design, fashion, commercial art, or just painting and drawing, Mrs. Oman and Mr. Pilkington provide excellent instruction with the use of various types of media. Students obtain experience by making displays for the junior and senior proms, Greek games, and partaking in community activities such as Franklin Shops' Halloween display and Kennedy Parks' Christmas display.

Art

IN today's world, art is a rapidly expanding field. Hempstead High's art course is designed to meet this expansion. Whether you

Music

THE whole world enjoys the soothing strains of fine music. Under the competent leadership of Miss Boyle, the students achieve a greater understanding of this art, which is superbly displayed at its outstanding winter and spring concerts.

The repertoire, throughout the year, spotlights the major essentials of music as performed by the orchestra, band, choir, and glee clubs, all of which compose this department.

Dramatics

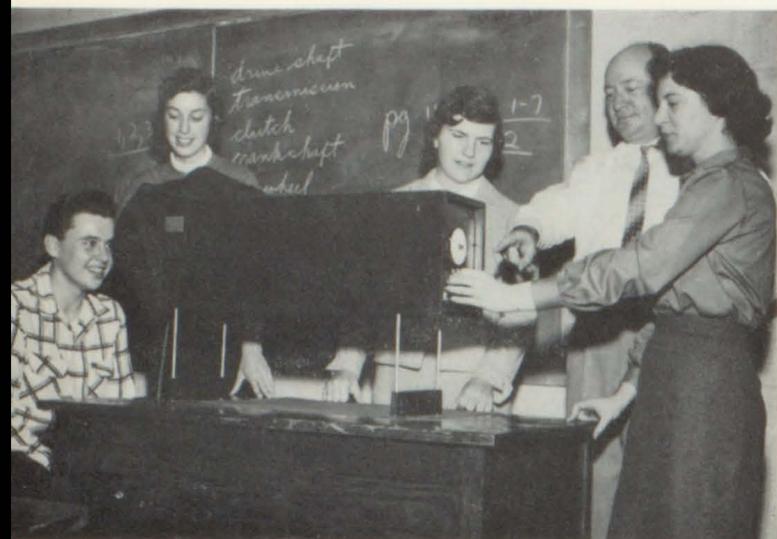

THE Dramatics Department specializes in the study and application of public speaking and drama.

Public speaking develops the student's poise, self expression and speaking ability. This is carried on under the guidance of Miss Randall, chairman of the department. Drama provides the students with experience in one of the most fascinating of the communicative arts.

During the course of the year, the entire school enjoys the numerous productions presented by this department.

Driver Education and Industrial Arts

"CLUTCH down, check for neutral," are some of the most famous words used by Mr. White, instructor of Driver Education. Theory classes are held three times a week. Here the students have an opportunity to learn all about the automobile and how it functions. Once a week they are given road training and at the termination of the course are ready for the state road test.

The Industrial Arts Department at the Prospect

Street School which offers courses in general metal, electricity, and wood and leather working, is under the able direction of Mr. Monsell and his staff.

Its wide scope makes it possible to obtain a well-rounded background in the understanding of tools and machines, industrial processes, working conditions, problems of industry and labor and the processing of raw materials into finished products.

Physical Education and Health

PHYSICAL education and health are both very necessary for the proper functioning of our school.

The health office is the infirmary for anything from a broken arm to a stomach ache, thus rendering first aid to the teachers, students and custodians. Here, cases are handled by either Miss Best, the school nurse, or Doctor S. A. Combes, our school physician.

Another division, the Physical Education Department, consists of the boys' and girls' athletic activities. The boys' predominant sports are football and basketball followed by wrestling, bowling, track, and softball.

The girls take part in softball and basketball, but nothing is more exciting than their preparations for Greek Games. Therefore, you can see why health and physical fitness go hand in hand in establishing sound citizens.

Librarians and Counselors

COUNSELING is extremely important to the future life of a student. The counselors work together with the individual student and his parents in channeling the student's aims and abilities into the proper courses of study. Freshmen are advised by Mr. Prah, and Sophomores by Miss MacDougall. Mr. Pill advises the academic juniors and seniors as to the requirements of a college or university. Commercial and vocational juniors and seniors are aided by Mr. Turnbull in choosing a vocational school or in securing a position.

Every student has had occasion to use Hempstead High's well stocked libraries. Miss Rhodes is in charge of ordering all the new library books and supervising the main library; Mrs. Cullen the senior library, and Mrs. Anderson the textbook section of this very efficient department.

Career information is given by Mr. Turnbull to Norma Finkle and Ann Sverdlik.

Bottom: Activity in office 1A with Miss Brennan, Mrs. Hueston and Miss Duryea.

AN important part in the administration of our school is performed by the clerks and secretaries in each office. These girls are well informed on matters concerning the school and its students.

All records and transcripts are handled by the secretaries in office 1A. Mrs. Siegmann, also located there, is the student activities treasurer and handles all school banking. Mrs. Pashley and her assistant, Evelyn Wolf, find themselves busy taking care of the switchboard and attending to Mr. Beddow's official business. In office 2, the girls take charge of all the typing and correspondence. In offices 4 and 5, they take charge of all correspondence and filing pertaining to guidance. Also, they arrange student interviews, in order to help the students plan for the future.

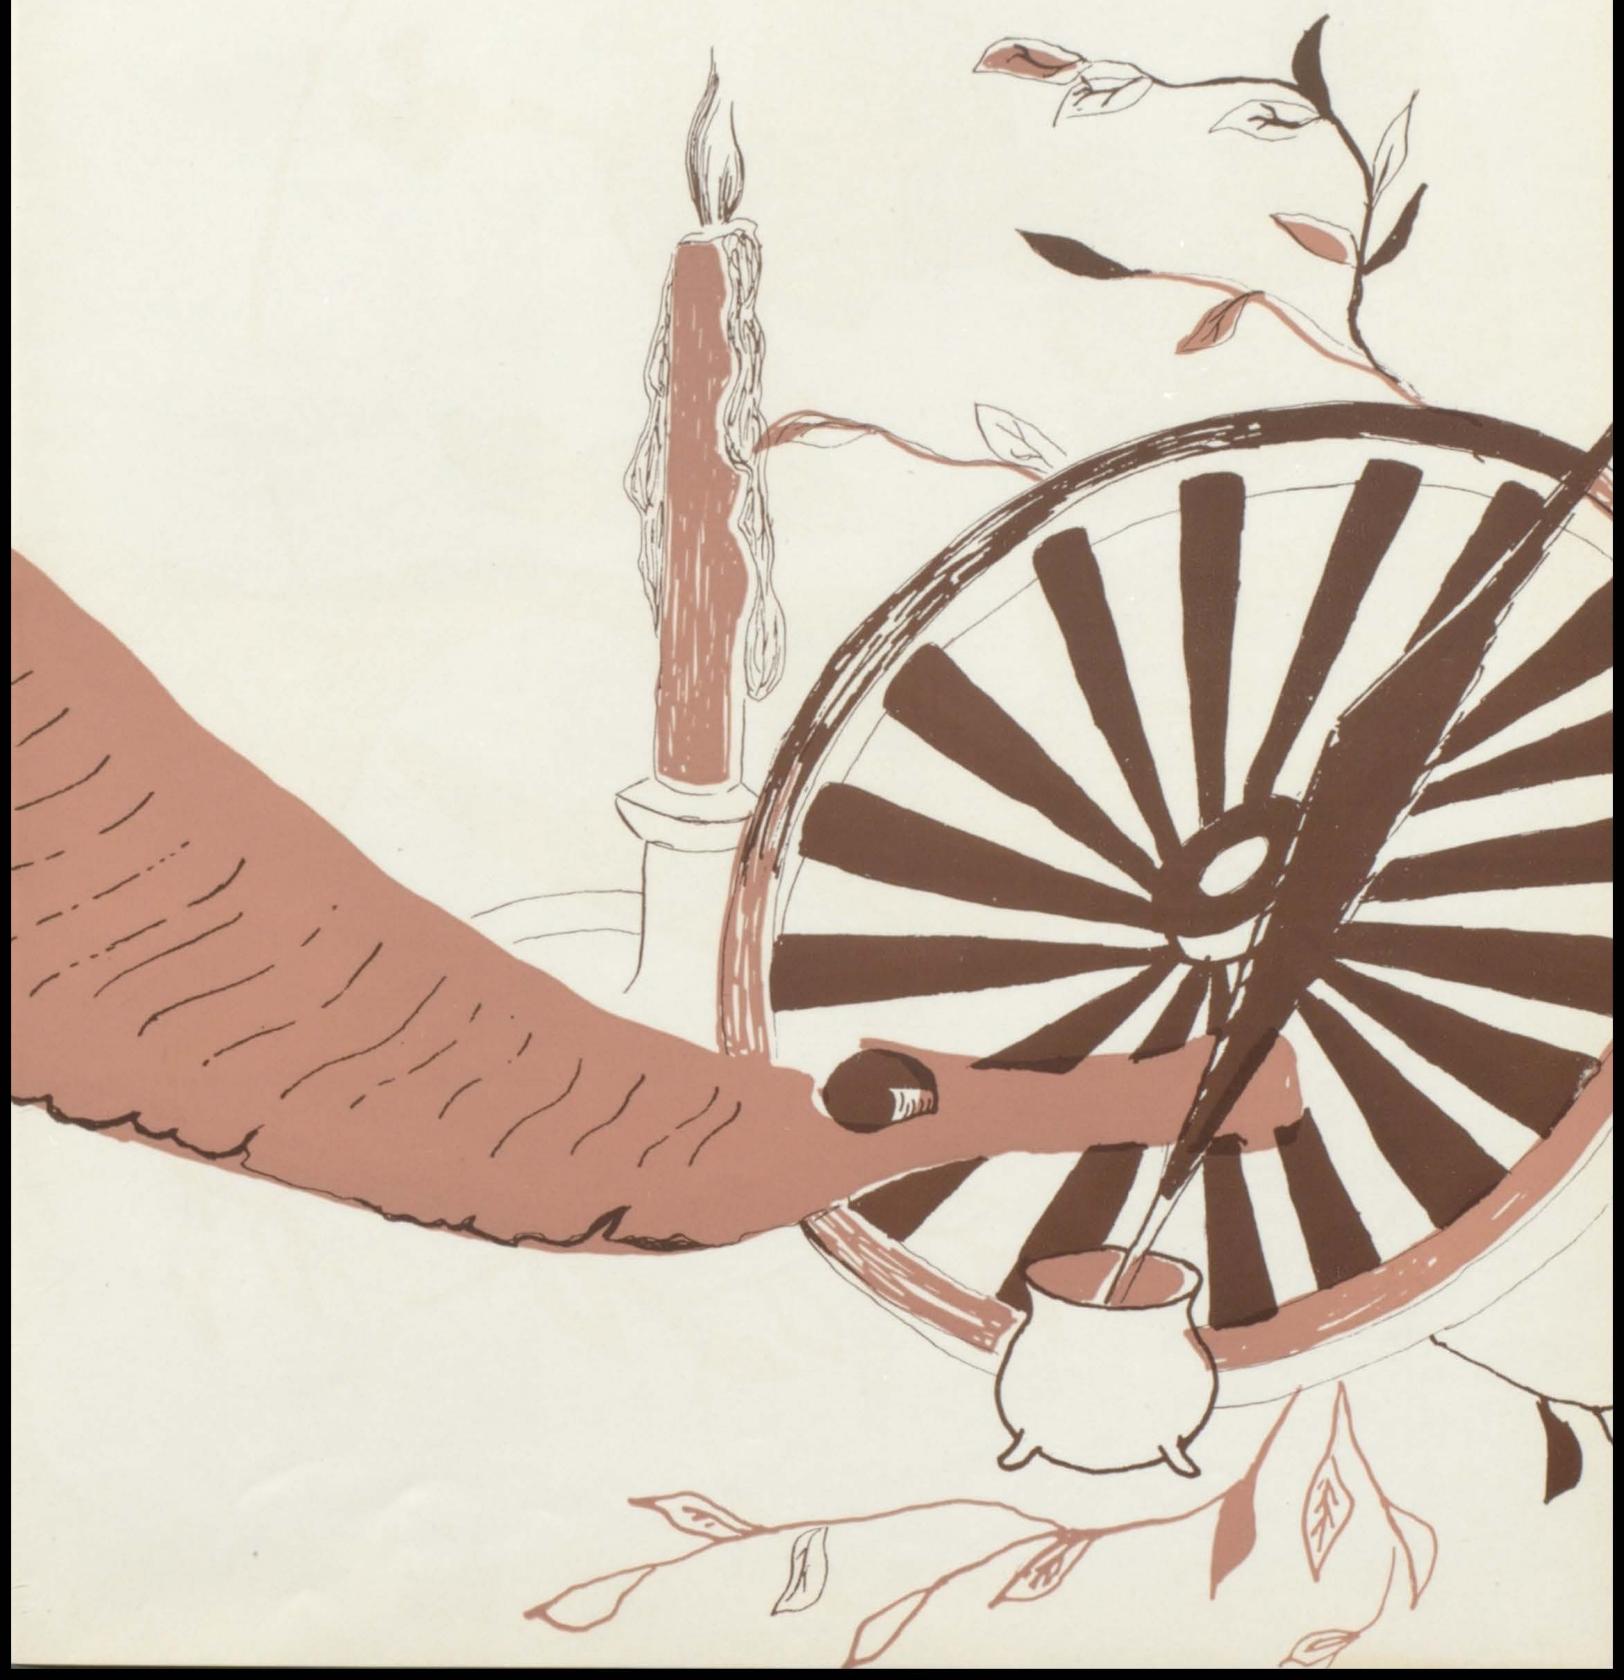

To obtain their position in the school's administration, all of them have taken Civil Service Examinations. These girls have been picked on the basis of appearance, personality and training in business education.

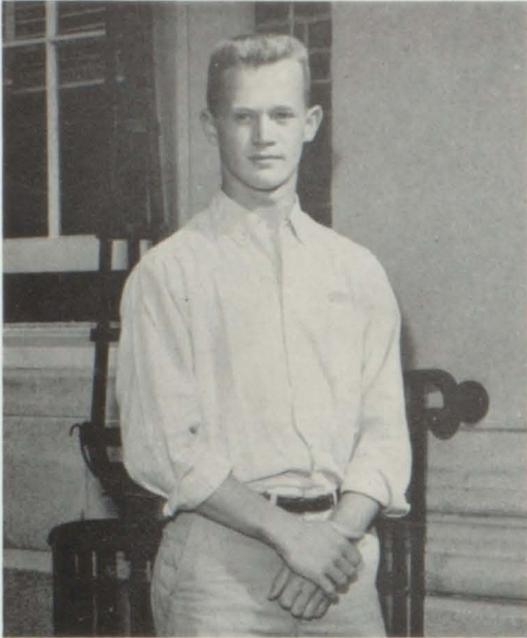

They have proven themselves to be efficient, polite and courteous.

SENIORS, "your goal is your life." That was the motto to be symbolic of your outlook on life after leaving Hempstead High. Your flower was the White Rose. Blue and silver was your choice of colors to be representative of the Class of '57 graduated in June.

Leading your senior class was Johnny Edwards, President. His leadership was not confined to this position. He was co-captain of our varsity football squad, four year member of the Honor Club, three year member of the Student Council, sports editor of the Patriot and president of his Junior Class. In addition, he still found time to pursue such interests as swimming and learning the Cha-Cha.

Working right along with Johnny, as vice-president was versatile, active Brenda Baskind. She held the office of secretary of your class when you were juniors. She was art editor of the Patriot. Brenda made a great cheerleader. You were proud to have her represent the school as "Miss Arnold Constable."

Sally Dunmore, class secretary, held the same position in her sophomore year. In her junior year, she headed the Colonial art staff. Along the same line, Sally was a member of the Sketch Club. Much of her spare time was spent participating in the band show and following hobbies, such as music and art.

Popular George "Bookie" Bookhard was elected as your class treasurer. He was known to many in the past as an asset to the basketball team, of which he was captain the senior year.

ADVISORS

There were other people who helped you to make your many contributions to Hempstead High. There was your Booster Club president, Student Council president, Patriot editor, and the Colonial editor.

You owed a great deal to your chief class advisor Mr. Lints; the other advisors, Mrs. Dendy and Mr. Lawson; and your guidance counselors, Mr. Pill and Mr. Turnbull.

All those people and activities helped mold you so that when you said, "Your goal is your Life," you had a high goal in mind.

Senior Executive Council

DEMOCRACY in the senior class is provided by the Senior Executive Council, which is composed of representatives chosen in September by each American History class. The Council works for the benefit of the seniors, and decides their schedule of activities for the year. It only acts upon those activities which are approved by the class as a whole.

The officers of the senior class this year, who took their positions on the Council and assumed the great responsibility of keeping this democracy, were John Edwards, president; Brenda Baskind, vice-president; Sally Dunmore, secretary, and George Bookhard, treasurer. Under the excellent guidance of Mr. Lints, the council fulfilled its responsibility with great success.

This year the D. A. R. and S. A. R. awards were given to the senior girl and boy who were the most outstanding in their class. The senior class motto, flower and color were suggested by the class, and the council selected the best three in each field and the seniors voted on them.

The theme of the Senior Ball was chosen mainly by the Art Department and the Senior Executive Council. The council decided on the three themes it would prefer and the Art Department picked the one that would be the most suitable. This dance is one of the main events in the senior year.

This year the Council decided on Senior Week, a week devoted mainly for the interest and enjoyment of the senior class. Another day eagerly awaited by all classes, whether freshman, sophomore, junior or senior, and carried out under the excellent supervision of the council, was Senior-Frosh Day.

This year, as always, the Senior Executive Council has successfully guided its fellow classmates through another year. It has proven that it can undertake and complete the problems and activities facing the senior class with little difficulty and great efficiency.

The crowded ballroom.

Senior Ball

A SNAKE coiled about a vine-draped tree and a glimpse of a tiger peering at you, lent an odd but beautiful background to the entrance of the "Jungle Paradise," the theme of this year's Senior Ball. The strains of soft music played by "The Suburbans" from a bandstand resembling an African hut, invited you to dance beneath a tangle of tropical vines. The brilliant totem pole and the murals featuring colorful flamingos provided a contrast with the greens and blues of the jungle. Refreshments were served from a huge witch doctor's mask.

The many hours of preparation could be seen by just glancing around the gym.

The 1957 Senior Ball was a dance never to be forgotten by those who attended.

Junior Class

WE, the future seniors of Hempstead High School, will in years to come look back on our junior year and remember it as being extremely pleasant.

We will remember Jim Edwards, Lynn Puerschner, Judy Krug, and Jeanette Duggan who so successfully guided our class through the year as president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer, respectively.

Some of the other things we will remember about our class officers will be connected with other school activities. We will think of Jimmy Edwards as a fine football player; Lynn Puerschner as a member of the principal's Service Squad, Student Council and the Latin and French clubs; Judy Krug as a J. V. cheerleader, representative from our homeroom, member of the

We will recall fond memories of our prom, the junior assembly, and the day those long awaited class rings arrived. Recollections will include the study halls, lunch periods, three minutes between classes, favorite teachers and crowded lockers.

The class advisors Miss Taft, Miss Abbott, Miss Dorwin and Mr. Zara will be remembered for the unselfish help and guidance given to us.

We will recall all the things which had a part in making our junior year so successful, enjoyable and memorable.

AS this year's Sophomore class entered school, they experienced none of the confusion of their freshman year. A wonderful year awaited them.

First on the agenda was the election of class officers. Charles Muller was chosen president.

Charles, who is a sports enthusiast, desires to attend college.

Elected to the vice-presidency was Camille Campanale. A graduate of Herricks Junior High School, she is a Red Cross representative and wants to attend art or secretarial school.

Virginia Pluto was elected as class secretary. "Ginny," as she is called by her friends, intends to study dramatics, and enjoys ice skating. She can be seen twirling for the Hempstead High School Band.

A career in the field of arts is the main interest of Linda Sileo, treasurer. Linda, who hails from Herricks Junior High School, also belongs to the Junior Red Cross and is a member of the badminton team.

Next came the customary sophomore party. As usual, it proved a great success due to the excellent class spirit.

As its advisors the Sophomore class had Miss Tripp, Miss Ignelzi and Mr. Aaronson.

This class is producing a group of outstanding leaders. They will all be looking forward to their junior year, and even greater accomplishments.

AT the start of school in September, one notices a frightened, yet scurrying group known as Freshmen. However, after the first two or three weeks they calm down and accept their responsibilities in a satisfactory manner.

Freshman activities begin when a day called Senior-Frosh Day is proclaimed. The Freshman girls dress as babies with lollipops, and the Senior girls dress as mothers carrying dolls. Lollipops are given to Senior girls by Freshman, and a party after school, ends festivities for the day.

The Freshman Class then faces the task of electing officers to represent them. This year's officers are: President, Peter Stenberg; Vice-President, Susan Ginsburg; Secretary, Mary Ann Casey; Treasurer, Anthony Ramo.

Miss Joyce, Mrs. Church, and Mr. Helbach help with guiding the Freshmen in their activities. With their able leadership and guidance, the Freshman Class will undoubtedly be active, interesting, and successful.

LAST year, with the election of officers, the student council started its full program. This was evidenced by posters displaying the candidates, and each student wearing his favorite candidate's button. The week before election everyone gathered in the boys' gym to hear campaign speeches and to dance afterward. Bill Ausman was elected president, and Harriet Gilbert was elected vice president. Serving as recording secretary and corresponding secretary were Barbara Voorhies and Carole Nathan, respectively. Handling the money problems was Gary Cohan.

This fall, in the homerooms, there was an election of a senator and his alternate to represent the homeroom at the student council meetings. It was the duty of this senator to report to the homeroom the business discussed at these meetings. In case of the senator's absence, the alternate attended.

Attending meetings was not the only duty of belonging to the council. It also had a part in the annual G. O. show and the pep rallies. This year the G. O. show was the most successful in years for which the council deserves much credit. As for the pep rallies, the two held this year were received with a great amount of enthusiasm.

The annual visit of two exchange students was another event sponsored by the student council. Nadia Hetata, from Egypt, and Edward Dennis Normandy III, of the Philippines, were our guests. This year the hosts were chosen by an essay contest, the topic being "Why I Would Like to Have a Foreign Student." The winners were Barbara Voorhies and Ralph Campanella. These two exchange students participated in classes, and became acquainted with our school life for two weeks.

A new idea carried out this year was the Democratic and Republican Assembly. A panel of students debated the fitness of the two candidates for the presidency. Next, the mock election was held in the citizenship classes.

As usual, the council drew up a budget for activities needing finances. One of these activities was the decoration of the halls for Christmas, most of which was done by the council members.

We of Hempstead School are proud of the fine job done by this year's student council.

COLONIAL '76? No, but the enthusiastic "spirit of '76" has been with us throughout the year! "The spirit of '76" was one of determination, dedication, and success. It was the way with our three staffs this year, and this was the spirit we selected as our theme. The editorial staff this year boasted four veteran "Colonial-ites" serving as editors. At the helm as editor-in-chief was Louis Reimer. Lou deserves tremendous credit for the fine quality of his work. To Grace Felicetti, associate editor; Jean McDowell, copy editor and Barbara Scully, senior editor, fell the tremendous task of assisting the editor-in-chief, assigning articles, checking copy, and supervising the senior section, plus many other items.

The terrific work done by the art staff in illustrating the theme is obvious on almost every page of the Colonial. Headed by Irving Duffy, the entire art staff must be highly praised for its creative ability.

Even with a staff of Shakespeares, and Rembrandts the Colonial couldn't possibly be produced without financial support. This task falls to the business staff, which comes up with the money necessary to make this book possible. The business staff, headed by Jeannette Piz-

Advising the Colonial staffs this year were, Mr. Helbach, who guided the business staff; Mr. Pilkington, who advised the art staff; Mr. Aaronson, who supervised copy, and Mr. Ayres, whose difficult job it was to bring about the final product. We of the Colonial staff appreciatively thank our four advisors for their guidance and understanding during the past year.

Patriot

DURING the course of the school year, students of Hempstead High School receive and enjoy fifteen copies of our prize winning school paper, the Patriot. When the issues are released every second Monday, have you ever considered what goes into the production of this paper? Let's go behind the scenes of the Patriot and see exactly what occurs.

It's Monday, and as issues of the Patriot are being distributed, work in homeroom 49 is just beginning on the next edition, under Mr. Murphy's competent guidance. Mary Hengstenberg, the editor-in-chief, can be found assigning articles to the staff writers. Assisting her are associate editors Zelda Greenspan and Vincent DeLuca; Pat Ferri, the editor of the interesting feature articles; exchange editor, Ethel Hill; Gary Sunden, the headline editor who creates those eye-catching headlines; copy and rewrite editor Daniel Mirro; and, of course, sports editor, John Edwards.

Ossias, R. Campanella.

Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, as the writers and editors work diligently toward their rapidly approaching Friday deadline, the business staff, headed by William Siegel, secures ads to help finance the paper.

By Friday, most articles have been turned in. These include the "Introducing" column, which each week presents two well-known students, and a favorite teacher; Ethel Hill's humorous "Exchanged" column; John Edwards' sports column, "Tiger Tales"; and various feature articles.

A little over a week has gone by, when the copy returns from the printer. Following this arrival, "Dummy Day" takes place. On this day, after much checking, and rechecking, a final copy of the paper is assembled and sent to the printer for publication. On Friday, the editors and members of the staff go to the printers, where they read the wet proofs. When this is done, the presses begin to roll.

It's Monday again and the issues are delivered to the school to be immediately gathered by the efficient circulation staff, headed by Sandra Osedach. This staff counts out and distributes the issues. Now as you receive your Patriot, the endless cycle in homeroom 49 is again beginning.

Well, that's the story behind the Patriot. Congratulations to the Patriot staff and advisors for their many achievements this past year.

ONE of the favorite organizations of Hempstead High School is the Junior Secretary Squad. It is comprised of about sixty-five girls, who do their work in offices 2 and 3.

These girls are recommended by their teachers and are chosen for their willingness to work, personality and general efficiency. They are interviewed by the Dean of Girls before they are officially selected. They then serve one period daily in the office to which they are assigned, and two weeks late duty a year.

The chief aims of the junior secretaries are to become acquainted with general office procedure, to learn the art of office routine, to receive people intelligently and pleasingly and to serve promptly and efficiently. Zealous efforts are put forth to attain these aims because of the many benefits derived from this experience and practice.

The basic duties of the junior secretaries include answering the telephone, filing, typing the student absentee and excused lists, greeting parents and delivering office slips to students and teachers.

This experience and practice of working in the school office, affords the junior secretaries proficiency in office procedures.

Ably assisting Miss Hoekstra, our Dean of Girls, in office No. 3 is the entire squad with Joyce Young serving as the Chief. This year we also have two assistants. They are Carole Freeth and Judy Burdeshaw. The main duties of these three girls is to see that the procedure of these two offices runs smoothly.

Audio-Visual Squad

WHAT is the Audio-Visual Squad? Why was it organized? What does it do? Many people ask these questions, and here are some of the answers.

The squad is made up of 26 members. This organization, founded in 1934, consists chiefly of boys. The only girls work as secretaries.

The members have many important and responsible tasks to perform, among which are: running the public address system for home-room notices, and taking care of films which includes repairing them when damaged. Also, keeping the motion pictures, projectors, records and microphones in good condition and receiving and returning the films to the distributors.

Each period there are several students in Room 18A to meet any difficulty that may arise.

Mr. E. C. Moore, who trained the squad since it was first organized, is appreciated by all. Everyone has in some way been greatly aided by the work of these boys.

The squad is led by Chief Thomas Samson, who is assisted by Fred Richards. In charge of the financial standings of the group, is Gerald Kemmett.

The work of the squad in high school prepares its members for work in photography or as technicians, which might be of great help to them in the future.

Although the students who aid Mr. Moore in Room 18A report at designated times, many voluntarily come in after school and often give up their lunch periods to aid students and teachers who need their help.

EACH period of the day, you will find two or three girls busily typing, filing, or running errands. Frequently they are required to serve as receptionists or messengers for the Counselors in office 4. Various times during the year the girls serve late duty.

These girls make up the Counselors' Service Squad. The girls are chosen and directed by Miss MacDougall. Many things are taken into consideration before the final decision is made. Each girl must have a good scholastic record, which includes her marks. These must be satisfactory in all subjects. The girls serve Mrs. Walter and Mr. Turnbull, as well as Miss MacDougall.

Many times office 4 is known as the "beehive of activity." When their duties are completed, the girls study for the remainder of the period. They are always at hand in the event of an emergency. Their service to the school and to office 4, in particular, is sincerely appreciated. The girls are rewarded with service points for their membership on the squad. The chief of the squad is awarded 3 service points and each member receives 1 service point.

These girls have proven themselves to be an efficient and indispensable part of the office.

Counselors' Service Squad

Secretaries to the Faculty

THE girls who are chosen as secretaries to the faculty find this important extracurricular activity serves as excellent training in secretarial work. Girls who have the ability and are considered dependable are chosen. In September, each is assigned to a teacher who is the chairman of one of the departments. The system of selection may work two ways. The teacher may select a particular girl, or the girl may choose a certain preferred teacher for whom she desires to work.

The position requires competent completion of any assigned secretarial work. Some of the more important tasks include: mimeographing tests, filing papers of importance, and typing. The work quota is four hours a week, and tasks are assigned during free periods. These secretaries also have access to the work room where typewriters, mimeograph machines, and electric copyrite duplicators are at their disposal. The girls willingly donate their time to this activity. This is essential for the type of work they will perform after graduating from high school and entering the business world. Both the faculty and the high school are proud and happy that we have a group among us from which we all derive many benefits.

Mrs. Schryver, of the commercial department, is the advisor of this ambitious group. Under her capable direction, girls receive anything deemed necessary to aid them in doing jobs with the utmost efficiency.

Library Staff

WHERE are the chemistry books? Where are the fiction books? You have questioned a library staff member about these and other topics. Have you ever wondered about the origin, the selection, or the duties of a library staff member?

The Hempstead High School Library Staff was organized in 1923, with the main purpose of interesting girls in becoming librarians. The club remained very small until increased school enrollment increased the membership. About five years ago boys were permitted to join the library staff, and today the staff totals twenty-six.

The students are chosen for membership in the library staff by their English teachers, usually in their freshman year. A candidate for membership must maintain good grades, have a pleasant attitude, and be willing to learn about the library.

A library staff member does a variety of jobs for the librarians, Miss Rhodes, Mrs. Anderson, and Mrs. Cullen. The primary job of the members is to charge and receive library books and collect fines. They are also responsible for collecting the library slips, which enable a student to study in the library rather than in a study hall. Each member of the staff is assigned a section of the shelves to keep in order. Countless errands are run by the library staff members, and each library has one or two staff members who do some typing and help to catalogue new books. Library staff members must also be able to answer countless questions concerning books and other material in the library, and to assist students in finding interesting books. They handle these tasks with patience and understanding throughout the year.

For the first time in many years the library staff elected a chief to preside at meetings and who will try to transform a purely service club into a combination service and social club. Joan Brown, a senior, was elected chief of the staff this year.

Senior Service Squad

THE Senior Service Squad is the oldest service squad in Hempstead High School. It was organized in 1924 when a group of top ranking senior girls felt that they could be of assistance to the registrar. These girls believed that girls, as well as boys, could be of service to the school. Originally the squad was called the Senior Girls' Service Squad, but since the members have been both upperclassmen and lowerclassmen in recent years the squad is now called "The Senior Service Squad."

In past years the squad has had about twenty-five active members. Now, since the school enrollment has decreased tremendously, there are fewer girls needed to efficiently carry on the duties of the registrar's office.

At present there are fifteen girls; sophomores, juniors, and seniors, whose duties include alphabetizing, filing, and going on errands, as well as various other office jobs. This position helps the girls by developing their personality and adding to their office experience. The practice which they receive helps them to become proficient in all phases of office work. This knowledge of the daily routine of an office gives the girls an idea of how to face what problems may arise in either her vocational life or in a part time job.

The chief of the squad is Peggy McGinn, a senior, who has proven herself to be very capable and efficient. The other members of the squad were selected by Mrs. Hueston, and serve one period a day in her office.

Mrs. Hueston, the registrar, has helped these girls to develop a valuable sense of responsibility by entrusting to their care many important matters, and the girls have indicated her faith in them by the competent performance of their assigned duties.

Hall Patrol

THE Hempstead High School Hall Patrol is a club consisting of boys performing hall duties under the capable direction of their faculty advisor, Mr. Frank Fish. At the beginning of each year the boys are chosen from various study halls. Their assignments are explained to them, and they are expected to carry them out courteously and efficiently. One of the students is chosen as lieutenant. He takes attendance and makes sure everything is under control at all times. A teacher is also assigned to the halls each period to act as supervisor.

The position has a number of requirements. Among these are keeping the halls free of loitering students by checking for proper passes, and acting as guides for visitors who need assistance in locating various designations. During the lunch periods, the boys must be especially alert, for the halls are usually crowded with students either coming or going to or from the cafeteria. The eighth period, when the juniors and seniors leave, no students are assigned to the halls as all the remaining students are in class.

Outside the building there are boys who are also on duty. They are known as the Campus Patrol. Their duties consist of keeping order and allowing no one to enter the building without permission.

This club is as old as the school itself. Through the years it has kept its good name and continued its high standards.

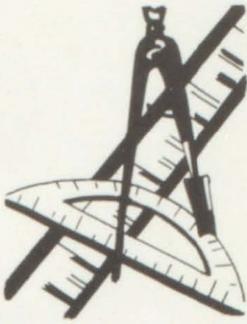

The boys pay fifteen cents per year club dues which pays for their Colonial picture.

Hempstead High is proud of its Hall Patrol for doing so much to help uphold the fine reputation of our school.

Tupiar Club

THE Tupiar Club which is under the capable guidance of Mr. Robert "Pop" Hayes holds its meeting every Tuesday and Thursday after school in room twenty-four. There are thirty members in the club consisting of boys and girls who are interested in and want to learn more about higher math. "Pop" gives thorough demonstrations and explanations of different phases of math for which there is no allotted class time.

In the homey atmosphere of fascinating figures, the members of the club receive additional preparation for college math. Those who do not plan to attend college, belong because of their sincere love of math.

To be admitted into the club, you must be taking or have taken intermediate algebra. After the first few meetings, those who have joined out of curiosity or have already lost interest, drop out of the club and leave behind a group of energetic mathematicians who want to probe the inner mysteries of mathematics.

This year the club has been studying the short form of advanced equations along with other higher mathematical principles. These are presented in such a way that the students with only high school math as a background can easily understand them. They have made plans to learn some fundamental information on surveying. Later in the year they will use this information to practice surveying techniques.

The members of the club realize how fortunate they are in belonging to such a club, and they hope that it helps future members as greatly as it has helped them.

Commercial Club

THE major purpose of the Commercial Club is to serve as after-school recreation for the freshman and sophomore girls. It affords each member the pleasure of broadening her horizon of friendships. Besides having a wonderful time at their Christmas party and attending a New York show, the girls find time to use their talents in helping others who are not as fortunate. They make stuffed animals which are distributed to children in various hospitals.

Directing the club in its activities this year are: Loretta Catalano, president; Irene Piponidis, vice-president; and Elizabeth Bianco, secretary-treasurer.

Health Service Squad

THE girls in the Future Nurses' Club who are interested in assisting in the nurse's office have an opportunity to be selected for the Health Service Squad. Under the direction of our school nurses, Miss Best and Mrs. Marsden, the members who serve one or two periods a day, learn first-aid, how to assist the doctor with physical and dental examinations and how to help with various other physical difficulties. They also aid the nurses with the general upkeep of the office.

The experience gained will prove helpful to them not only in applying for a nursing school or college, but will serve also to strengthen their personalities.

Cooperative

Retailing

TO put into use knowledge obtained from the study of Retailing I and Retailing II, students are employed part-time in local stores and receive school credit for this work. These students are members of Cooperative Retailing, an organization founded over twenty-five years ago as a program by which students can learn about retail work by actual performance. The students leave school at twelve o'clock and report to their jobs. They are required to work not only on school days but also on Saturdays and holidays.

Mr. Davidson coordinates the many functions of this organization of fifty students. He helps place these students in jobs and tries to correct any faults the employers find in the students.

He also makes sure that the students meet the requirements of four hundred fifty hours of work to receive one credit toward the sixteen needed for graduation.

Some members of Cooperative Retailing are selected to join the B. Altman Junior Advisory Board which meets once a month at B. Altman and Company, in New York City, to judge teenage merchandise.

The whole organization took three trips this year. One was a visit to Saks Fifth Avenue in New York City to study quality merchandise, the second was a trip to Newsday to study advertising in a daily newspaper, and the third was a visit to Gimbels to study volume merchandising.

Future Teachers of America

HEMPSTEAD HIGH SCHOOL can be very proud of having one of the largest Future Teachers' Clubs on Long Island. Our F. T. A. is one of the most active clubs in the school, and is under the excellent supervision of Miss Winter who is ably assisted by Mr. Keenan. There are 120 members in this outstanding club.

Since the size of the club is extremely large, and because of the difference in the schedules of the under-classmen and upper-classmen, the club is divided into three groups. There is the Peter Cooper F. T. A. for the junior and senior classes, the Esther P. Greenlund F. T. A. for the sophomore class and the Horace Mann F. T. A. for the freshman class. This year there were sixty-one, thirty, and twenty-one members respectively in each club.

The three groups work together as one on many of the projects adopted by the club, even though they meet separately. This year the F. T. A. has served Hempstead High School in many ways. They have acted as guides and ushers on many important occasions, and in addition to this they acted as hostesses at the Oswego State Teacher's College "Open House" held the last of November.

The meetings of the F. T. A. are all very interesting and profitable to every member. One of the most outstanding and anticipated activities of the Peter Cooper F. T. A. this year, was the trip taken to an elementary school. The juniors and seniors observed the different instructing techniques of the various teachers. It was a very rewarding experience for all who participated, and it was justified at the next meeting of the Peter Cooper Club, when the members discussed many of the things which impressed them.

Other outstanding meetings of the F. T. A. included the panel discussion "What's Wrong With Teachers?" moderated by Mr. Keenan. The panel consisted of F. T. A. members, Sue Markowitz, Harriet Berbery, Anne Sverlik, and Rhoda Bushell. The F. T. A. groups were also shown interesting slides of the European countries, Scotland, Ireland, England, France, Germany and Italy which Miss Winter had toured during the summer. Also, Dr. Julia Vane, the Hempstead Public School Psychologist, spoke on "Psychology's Place in the Teaching Profession."

This year in the Peter Cooper F. T. A. the officers were: president, Barry Deixler; vice-president, Jean McDowell; recording secretary, Judy Brown; corresponding secretary, Susan Schreiber; and treasurer, Marie Luckaszewicz. The Esther P. Greenlund F. T. A. was headed by president, Carol Matusiewski, who was ably assisted by vice-president, Jean Silliman; secretary, Rae Messer; and treasurer, Barbara Maguire. The Horace Mann F. T. A. had for its officers: president, Fredel Aieman; vice-president, Betty Schoonover; secretary, Sophia Luckaszewicz; and treasurer, Gorden Cummings.

We are sure that all the students belonging to one of the F. T. A. groups and planning to go into some form of teaching, will be successful in this rewarding profession.

Stamp Club

THOSE interested in the collection of stamps, will find the Hempstead High School Stamp Club offers a vast opportunity in the field of "trade."

Along with making new friends and acquaintances, the members trade rare stamps from all corners of the globe, and show their albums to fellow members. To be listening in, at one of these meetings, one might well think life and death were at stake, but the whole controversy might be over the bidding on a rare stamp.

The officers who help to organize the "swapping-sessions" are Mario Salerno, president; Pete Ruddy, vice president; Charlotte Easter, secretary; and Bob Marcus, treasurer, along with their faculty advisor, Mr. Holtz.

Sketch Club

DID you ever pick up a pencil and sketch a picture? If so, why not join the sketch club?

A group of fourteen led by president Karen Wantuck, assist the art department in making backdrops for the junior prom, senior ball, Kennedy Park's Christmas display and other community activities in which Hempstead High participates. They also make jewelry from silver and copper. A study is made of paintings. Oil and water paintings are made as are pencil and pen and ink drawings. Movies and slides are shown to further appreciation. The club visits an art museum in the spring and the year is climaxed with a picnic and barbecue at Mrs. Oman's home.

Footlight Club

UNDER the very capable supervision of Miss Randall, the Footlight Club has had a very successful year.

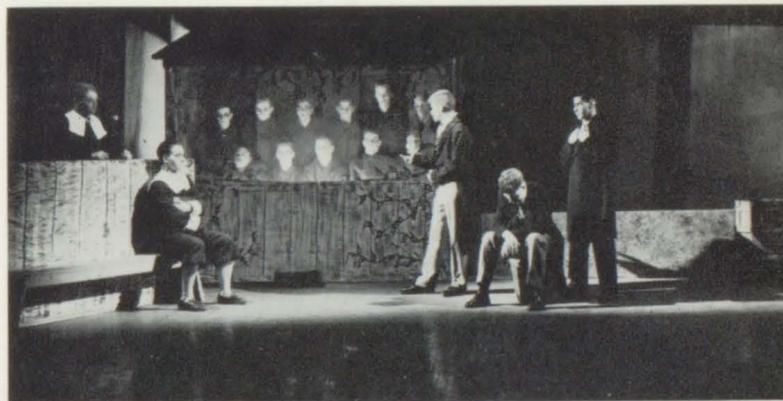

Some of this year's activities included the performance of the Christmas Pageant in which most of the members took part. Also, the club took a trip into Manhattan, ate dinner there, and then attended a current Broadway play.

Richard Peck who presided over the meetings had very capable assistance from vice-president Susan Markowitz. Taking minutes at the meetings was the responsibility of Gary Sunden, while the financial business was in the hands of Jane Browne.

Once again the curtain falls on another successful year of the Footlight Club.

Pioneers

FOR the freshman girls, the first marking period is a most important one, as it may determine their membership in the freshman girls' honor club, the Pioneers.

Their efforts as honor students are well rewarded, however, when at the end of the year the two girls with the top averages will be eligible for special prizes. These will be awarded at the Fall Scholarship Assembly.

Heading the Pioneers this year are: Elizabeth Regan, president; Joan Herman, vice president; Barbara Epstein, secretary; and Frances Negler, treasurer. Chairman of programs is Sherry Rice; along with her, co-chairman, Joyce Caro.

Pathfinders

THE Pathfinders, the freshman boy's honor club, innovated a new system for selecting their members this year. In previous years, membership was based upon a fixed average. This year, there is greater competition, because in order for one to attain membership, he must receive one of the top twenty averages among the freshman boys. Unlike the upper class honor clubs, whose membership is based upon the final average of the previous year, the members of the Pathfinders aren't determined until after the first marking period.

Their Christmas party was held during the last week before vacation, when they got together with the freshman girls' honor club. All had an enjoyable time.

Their advisor, Mr. Baker, very ably supervised them during the year. Officers of the club were Peter Stenberg, president, and David Hartman, vice-president, with Steve Kaplan and Donald Zinn serving as treasurer and secretary, respectively.

Meetings are held once a month under the capable guidance of the faculty advisor, Mrs. Marshall. The club plans to have several school parties, along with a trip to a place of interest in New York City. As an added feature, they plan to engage guest speakers.

Radio Club

THE Radio Club offers experience and aid to boys who enjoy operating and repairing radios of all sorts. The club, supervised by Mr. Lind, consists of 11 members.

The main goals for this year are the reconditioning of the transmitting equipment which was obtained from Mitchel Field Air Force Base; the procuring of a school license for sending and receiving; helping all members who are without ham operators' licenses to obtain them and becoming proficient in Morse code.

The Radio Club's equipment consists of 2 transmitters, 4 receivers, and code practice equipment sufficient for training 20 people. The conditioning of this equipment requires great skill, ingenuity, and care. Ted Robinson is one of the more experienced boys who helps guide the other members in this work.

The officers are Barry Bendel, president, KN2TGQ; Larry Fuchs, vice-president, KN2UWK; and Larry Albert, treasurer, KN2TGR.

Blue & White Corner

EACH morning around 8:25 at the Blue and White Corner you will always see students buying paper, pencils, review books, and of course H. H. S. booster pins. The corner was instituted over twenty-five years ago, and since that time has grown in size and importance. It is an indispensable part of our student life and constantly proves its usefulness to both the purchasing students and the retailing students who manage it. It is convenient and economical to purchase school supplies there and to do business with fellow students.

The retailing students gain practical experience and learn responsibility from the corner. To run smoothly and efficiently, the work of a manager, a bookkeeper, a display manager, and clerks are required. The manager supervises all work and is responsible for anything that happens; the bookkeeper keeps the accounts and balances the books; the display manager is responsible for the display case near the main stairway, and the student clerks sell the supplies. Mr. Davidson, head of the Commercial Department, supervises the store and is a well-qualified and hard-working figure in the efficiently-managed corner.

Orchestra

UNDER the capable direction of Miss Imogene Boyle and her staff, our symphony orchestra completed another successful year. Assisting with the orchestra this year were concert mistress, Sandra Matz, and the head of the various sections: string, reed, brass, and percussion. With morning and afternoon sectionals, Saturday rehearsals, and one or two night rehearsals with guest conductors, the orchestra remained busy throughout the year.

The season began with the orchestra giving a concert for the annual convention of the New York State Congress of Parents and Teachers. It was held at the Hotel New Yorker.

In December, the orchestra and choir combined to give their annual Christmas concert. This was sponsored by the Kiwanis, Lions, and Rotary clubs and was held at the Elks club.

At the festival held at Hofstra College in March, the theme was "What Price Freedom?" This was skillfully carried out to show the collaboration in music between colleges and high schools. In the festival, the orchestra performed under the direction of Dr. Frederick Prausnitz, Dean of Juilliard School of Music, Mr. Albert Tepper, director of music at Hofstra College, and Mr. Laurence Rasmussen, director of music at Adelphi College.

The annual spring concert in May climaxed another unforgettable season for our orchestra.

Choir

IN accordance with tradition, Hempstead High's annual spring concert was of prime importance to the music department including the A Cappella Choir. The concert, whose theme was "What Price Freedom?", was held on Sunday afternoon, March 10. The contributions of all musical organizations revolved around the sacrifices of the courageous patriots who fought for the freedom of this wonderful country. The Choir helped open the concert by taking part in the musical work called "I am an American." The Choir itself sang "De Profundus" and "A Free Song." One of the most important contributions of the Choir was a group of selections from the Elijah including "Thanks Be to God," "He Watches Over Israel," and "Lift Thine Eyes." The Choir participated in many other activities to which the members devoted their time and talent. Along with the orchestra, the Choir took a trip to the New Yorker Hotel to entertain at a PTA conference, and gave a preview of the spring concert for Hempstead's service clubs at the Elks Club. On the last day before Christmas vacation the Choir added to the holiday spirit by caroling in the halls. A spring festival presented toward the close of the school year terminated the many successful endeavors.

Miss McQueen has directed the Choir since its organization in 1931. The group began with twenty-five girls, and through the years has grown to a group of 123 boys and girls. Choir members are accepted after one or two years' experience in Glee Club. The aspirant must qualify by proving that he has a good voice, can read music, and is willing to work and cooperate with the group.

Band

The band marches forward.

The kettle drums.

A HEMPSTEAD band member faces a very busy three months practicing for the band show at the beginning of the school year. After school, and Saturday morning rehearsals become part of his schedule, yet the benefits received compensate for the efforts expended.

Each year, the band has an outstanding production, this year's being one of the finest in the 26 years of its existence.

The theme was "Rain or Shine," featuring many musical arrangements along with the initial use of theatric umbrellas. Its formations included the spelling of the words R-A-I-N and S-H-I-N-E, followed by the entire band falling into a huge 50 yard span umbrella. This made it one of the most unique shows in the country.

Our band had the honor of playing for the New York Giants' opening home football game, which was televised across the nation. This has been an honor bestowed upon the band for a number of years, and has brought nation-wide fame to our school. The football marching band ended the season with seven other performances to its credit.

However, this is only the beginning of the year's work. From the marching band, we next find ourselves among the smooth compositions of the concert band. In the winter festival, Taps on Memorial Day.

"What Price Freedom?", the band featured music by great contemporary composers. To mention just a few selections, "Divertimento For Band" and "Celebration Overture," band suites, and the ever popular march, "The Stars and Stripes Forever" highlighted the program. The year's work is climaxed by the annual spring concert held at Hempstead's auditorium.

A great amount of credit is deserved by the director, Mr. Kazmier Albinski, who by his patience and perseverance, helped the band to attain its prominence in the field of high school band music.

Junto Club

THE Junto Club, the sophomore boys' honor club, consists of the highest ranking boys in that class. They were chosen because of their high level of achievement during the freshman year, and they must maintain this high level throughout the sophomore year, in order to remain in the club.

The purpose of this club is to stimulate the interest of the boys in scholarship, and to advance their intellectual and cultural experiences.

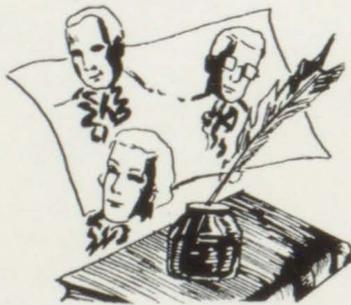

The members of the club hold their meetings once each month and are directed by their advisor, Mr. Leusch. During the year there are many guest speakers. Included in this past year's programs were Mr. Windt, who spoke on the topic "Fun With Numbers," Mr. Pill, who talked about colleges, Mr. Beckett, who gave a speech on the Experiment in International Living, and Mr. Ayres, who spoke on the Colonial. There were also speakers representing the various professions. These speakers helped the members to realize the purposes of the club, as well as in helping to make the meetings interesting for all.

At the beginning of the year, the members talked about possible field trips, which would help serve the purpose of the club, and also planned for future meetings.

This year the members elected Vincent Caruso, president and Stephen Sachs, vice-president, while Joseph Miller served as both secretary and treasurer.

It proved to be a highly interesting and successful year.

Pallas Club

DURING the home football games you saw a happy little group of girls busily selling programs. These girls were members of the Pallas Club, the sophomore girls' honor club. Under the able guidance of Miss Gunnerson, these girls performed many services during the year. They served as guides during open house. Each of the girls was distinguished by the able performance of her duties.

Each girl was required to be willing at all times to do her best for the school and the club. A girl is admitted into the club on the basis of her final average from the previous school year. The club met twice a month, and every other meeting had a guest speaker and then refreshments.

This year the girls were kept busy planning their Christmas party. A Valentine party was held in honor of the Pioneers, the freshman girls' honor club. They also took a trip to New York City during regents week to see the Ice Follies. They did many other things to make this a truly active year.

This year's officers were: Susan Kornfield, President; Gail Schwent, Vice-President; Evelyn Eftimion, Secretary; and Judy Oswald, Treasurer. The girls made this a very successful and enjoyable year.

A FEW years ago a new wing was added to our school to accommodate the growing needs of the music department. With this new wing it became apparent that a new service group was needed. Therefore, the Secretarial Hostesses were created. The name was chosen because the girls performed secretarial duties as well as acting as hostesses.

Many times during the year important personages in the world of music called Hempstead High School's Band Box. Being well advanced in music, these girls were properly qualified to intelligently answer the pertinent questions of the celebrated musicians. When the orchestra, band, or choir embarked upon an excursion, these girls acted as an answering service for the worried parents awaiting their teenagers' return.

Upon the arrival of out-of-town guests, these hostesses further fulfilled their position by serving as guides and escorting these visitors throughout the various modernly equipped bandbox rehearsal rooms and studios. Their friendly smiles, pleasing personalities, and gracious hospitality made these guests feel at home.

Since running errands is an important part of any office, the title "errand girl" could aptly be vested upon these hostesses. Thus, by cordially greeting new visitors, courteously answering the ever-ringing telephone, and efficiently delivering important messages, the Secretarial Hostesses helped transform the bandbox with its continuous echoes of melodic, harmonious, cordant songs into a smooth running enterprise.

Varsity Club

The Varsity Club was instituted five years ago to help members improve in both athletics and academic work. This is still the club's main interest. It also works with the guidance department to help its members obtain scholarships and to choose a college. It also works to obtain a better feeling of sportsmanship between spectator and players.

THE members of the Varsity Club may be easily distinguished by their proudly displayed blue and grey jackets or by the white sports patrol wind breakers they wear at home athletic events. A boy is eligible for the club by earning a varsity letter. He must also have a good office record and be in good academic standing. A letter may be earned in any of the following sports: football, basketball, rifle, track, golf, bowling, baseball, softball, and tennis. The requirements for a letter vary with each sport, but usually after a full season's participation in any sport, a letter has been earned.

Varsity Club officers are chosen by election, and no sport may be represented in more than one office. This year's officers were: president, Anthony Governanti—football; vice-president, Art Carney—golf; secretary-treasurer, Art Mansfield—track; master at arms, James Hawks—baseball.

Towards the latter part of June, the club plans to have either a picnic or a beach party. We know this will be a favorable addition to the successful year the club has had under the direction of Mr. Schuessler.

Secretarial Service Squad

WE owe many thanks to the girls who print our mimeographed tests and final exams. They form the Secretarial Service Squad, which consists of fourteen or fifteen girls working one period per morning, and sometimes during home-room. The girls begin training as sophomores, but the juniors and seniors run the machines.

The most essential requirement for a member of this squad is the possession of mechanical ability. These girls must have the dexterity which is necessary in operating the different machines. Among the various types of machines are the electric mimeograph, manual mimeograph, and the electric ditto which is used for duplicates.

Another very important factor which the girls must possess is integrity. It is a known fact that each and every girl is trustworthy, and has the ability to complete her duties.

Mrs. Schryver is in charge of this entire squad and among the supervising teachers are Mrs.

Gaffga, Miss Degenhardt, Mr. Zara, and Mr. Helback. Rosemary Sgroi is the capable student leader.

With this squad are two girls, Ingrid Sheldon and Irene Pionidis; who have the very important job of keeping the bulletin boards posted. Each year the two girls who volunteer for this work, are at the end of the year given awards for their faithful service. This squad is supervised by Mrs. Gaffga, who makes sure that everything is under control.

The experience that these girls gain working in the mimeograph room will prove to be quite helpful, for most of them expect to enter the secretarial field upon graduation.

Principal's Service Squad

THE Principal's office is where the girls of this squad do their work. These girls are selected each year by Mr. Beddow after a thorough survey and a personal interview. Friendliness and politeness are among the qualifications required of these girls.

This year, for the first time, four freshmen students were chosen among the total of seventeen who constitute the squad. This year also marked the first time that both the chief, Beth Lee and assistant chief, Lynn Puerschner, were elected by the members.

As advisor of the group, Mrs. Pashley supervises the apprentice period of selected students. This starts each year after Easter and continues until the end of the school year. In September this group is given the opportunity for which they were prepared.

While there were a number of responsibilities the squad handled, the first in importance was the efficient operation of the switchboard which was fascinating as well as demanding. Closely related to this task was the need of discernment, and reference to sources of information in relating calls. This duty required a large store of knowledge which each girl had to possess. Among other cooperative tasks covered there were clerical duties, carrying messages and serving as receptionists for visitors to the school. All of these tasks required alertness, concentration and cordiality.

Two traditional high spots of fun for the group were Mr. Beddow's Christmas party, and a spring picnic and cookout. These events were enthusiastically attended.

These girls of the Principal's Service Squad have proven themselves to be of valuable service to our school.

Pen and Ink Club

"THE cream of the crop" was selected by a new policy adopted by Hempstead High School. There was no set minimum average required for membership, but a certain percentage of honor roll students from the junior and senior classes was admitted into this honor club in September.

Leadership, scholarship, and service is the appropriate motto for this outstanding club which is under the excellent guidance of Mrs. Stilger and Miss Abbott. The numerous activities of the club this year included, serving as guides for the P. T. A. Open House in the late fall and attending the theatre play "The Diary of Anne Frank." They also went on a sightseeing tour of New York City, had panel discussions on "The Advantages and Disadvantages of Going Away to College," and "Belonging to the National Honor Society." There were cultural slides and speeches given during the year on art, literature, and music appreciation. The annual Mother and Daughter tea was given in the middle of November.

This year the officers were President, Betsy Lewin; Vice-President, Grace Felicetti; Secretary, Mary Drewal; and Treasurer, Jean McDowell. The editor of this year's handbook was Marjorie Brown and the manager was Linda Kunz.

To end a very successful year a medal was given to the Pen and Ink girl who was the most outstanding in her service to the school.

Pentagon Club

THIS year a new principle has been applied in the selection of Pentagon Club members. Previously, the requirements for entry were based on grade average. Now the scholarship committee has decided that membership is open to the top 20 senior and top 20 junior boys. No new members are admitted during the year, and none are dropped other than by decision of the committee.

This year's officers were Gary Cohen, president; Jeff Shane, vice-president; Larry Ossias, secretary, and Roy Feldman, treasurer.

The club's main activities for this year were having speakers come to talk about diverse and interesting topics such as "The Familiarization With the College Board" and "State Scholarship Examinations." Culture is one of the subjects being stressed this year, as it is very important in this type of examination.

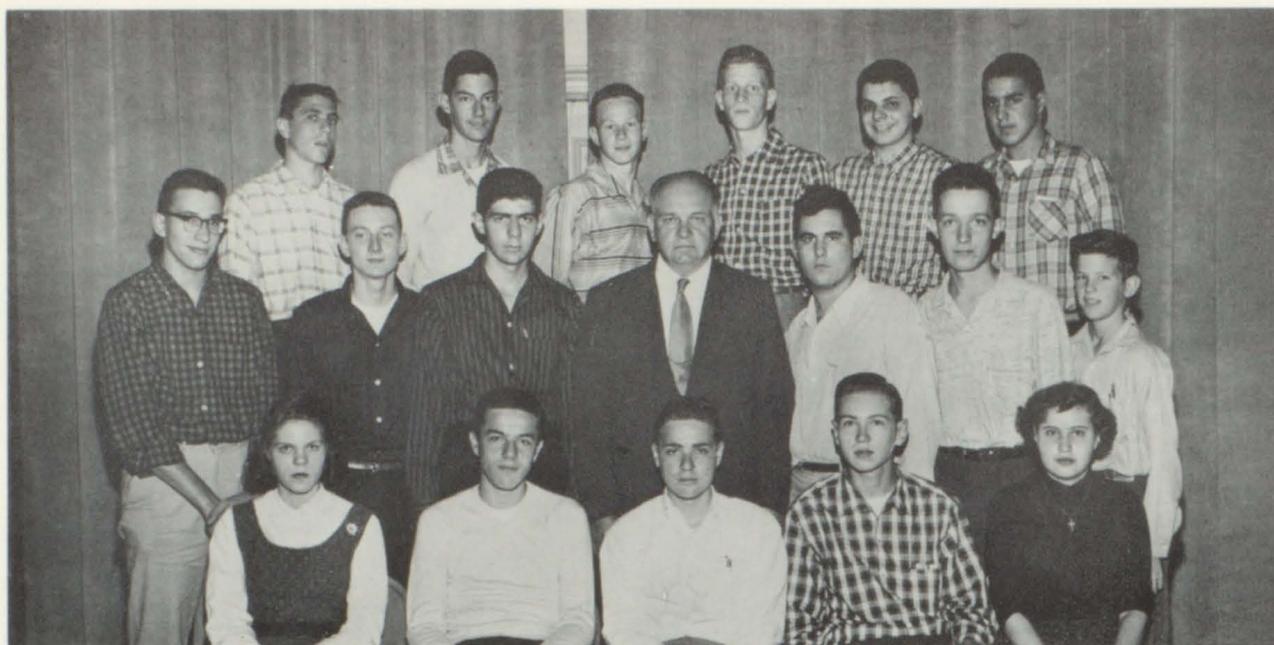

One of the most important things the club did this year was to make a study of the National Honor Society in order to determine both its merits and disadvantages, as it is being considered for adoption by our school.

Each year the club awards two pins; one goes to the boy with the highest average in the graduation class. Jay Sklar obtained this honor last year. The other is presented to the boy who has been of the most service to the club in the past year. Allen Frost, last year's president, was the recipient of this award.

Although there may be a different honor club next year, whatever form it takes, you can be sure that it will be composed of the scholastic leaders of the school.

Senior Science Club

THIS year the Senior Science Club, one of the oldest clubs in the school met each month in room 77. The club was started by students who were highly interested in science, and who wished to learn more about connected subject matter. This year the club consisted of juniors and seniors, who joined in order to keep up with the latest events and developments in all phases of science, as well as to perform, or watch experiments not usually performed in high school science classes. The club went on field trips for the purpose of augmenting their knowledge, and discussed many of the important scientific events of the year. Interesting oral reports were given by many of the members, on the latest scientific happenings.

Science Clubs are important in this country because they motivate and stimulate scientific thinking. They help to change the decisions of some of the members, who intended to enter other professions which will have a definite bearing on America's future. Our country has great need for scientists, as well as engineers, mathematicians, technicians and those in other fields related to science.

Again this year the club was under the guidance of Mr. Faust, the Chairman of the science department. Joy Levine acted as president, while Voya Skakish was vice-president. Amy Rosenberg was secretary, and Bob Loweth took care of the financial matters by serving as treasurer.

Junior Science Club

THE Junior Science Club is composed of freshmen and sophomores who are interested in exploring the world of science beyond the regular classes offered at Hempstead High School. Under the able direction of Mr. Lawson, the club investigated various aspects of the field of science.

Their first few meetings were devoted to learning to use the microscope, the instrument which opens the door to many interesting observations. They first learned to focus and adjust the working parts of this instrument to insure the best possible viewing of the specimens. After they learned these fundamentals, they observed many phenomena in the plant and animal kingdom.

They next explored the large field of atomic energy. First the club investigated the history of atomic energy from the earliest experiments in 1939 to the present, and next the theory behind this force. They spent the greater part of their time, however, in the study of the peaceful uses of atomic energy in the fields of medicine and industry.

For the last project of the year the club learned how to properly embed, cut, and stain plant and animal tissues on slides. In this way they learned to identify various kinds of plant and animal tissues.

This year the club hopes to make a field trip to either a local hospital or laboratory to study their techniques in medicine.

The many functions of this club were coordinated by the president, Harvey Cohen; vice-president, Brenda Stiehler; secretary, Diane Jacobs; and treasurer, John Jackson.

ONCE again the Camera Club began its year promoting school spirit by processing and selling photographs of the varsity football team. Later in the year they again showed professional ability in their photographing of the Junior Prom.

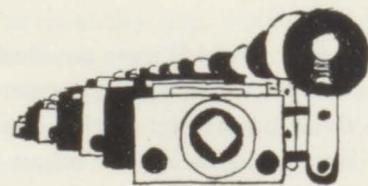

Besides applying their photographic knowledge and using the school's darkroom, the members also enjoyed a number of instructive films and slide shows dealing with various photographic techniques.

Although learning new photographic skills and perfecting old ones are important to members, the club's constitution also points out that perhaps the most important object of the club is to have fun, and for this the Camera Club is well known.

This year the club held a photo contest among its members, and like past enterprises, this was most successful. A further activity of the club was to attend the National Photographic Show held in New York City where members viewed all the new photographic accessories and techniques developed in this country, and other parts of the world.

Leading the club's many activities were this year's officers consisting of Juri Toomre, president; Donald Hood, vice-president; Bruce Boss, secretary; and Roy Feldman, treasurer.

Office 5 Squad

"THEY are the right hands to the secretaries in Office 5." That is exactly how Miss Ronnermann, supervisor of this group, expressed the function of the squad.

The duties of this squad consist of alphabetizing and filing various papers, sending out notices, helping to set up the details for interviews and introducing new students to the school. They also do all sorts of jobs that are of assistance to Mr. Pill; Mr. Prah; and the secretaries, Miss Ronnermann and Miss Merrick.

All work and no play is not the motto of Office 5. The highlight of their social program is their annual Christmas party.

The squad consists of nine girls. There is one for each period of the day, except for first period when more are necessary. This is because there is more help needed to get things started in the morning.

As in previous years, Miss Ronnermann and Mr. Pill choose the person who, in their estimation is the most capable for the leadership of this squad. This honor is given every year to the member who displays the most efficiency and interest in other people. The person chosen to fill the position this year was Muriel Roeth.

The academic students of the Hempstead High should be extremely grateful to the girls of this squad.

Key Klickers

JUNIOR and senior girls in the business department are eligible for membership in the Key Klickers. In order to unite these girls whose chief interests lie in the business world the Key Klickers were formed eight years ago.

During the past year, the girls have obtained useful information and guidance from speakers who have attended their meetings. A New York Telephone representative spoke to them about the necessary requirements and skills for careers in the telephone company. They were told that personality is an exceptionally important factor which is taken into consideration when one applies for a position with this company. A representative from a business school came to a meeting and aided by Mr. Turnbull, the guidance director for commercial students, advised the girls on matters concerning their future careers in the working world.

One of the club's projects has been making place mats and stuffed dolls which were distributed to hospitals. As for the social side, the club enjoyed a Christmas party, and at the end of the year activities were culminated with a farewell party given by the juniors for the graduating seniors. Their trips included the Ice Follies, a play in New York City and an excursion to West Point.

The officers, Frances Truicko, president; Joy Clemens, vice president; Gerry Quigley, secretary and Dorothy Augustyniak, treasurer, were assisted by Miss Silver, the faculty advisor.

THE American Junior Red Cross is the Junior membership of the American Red Cross enrolled in elementary and secondary schools. Schools join each November in a nationwide enrollment campaign. Its members are given an opportunity to serve others in an organized humanitarian program.

Our Junior Red Cross council consists of student representatives who assist the teacher-sponsor, Mrs. Bowen, in enrollment and service activities. Work on the council gives members valuable training in leadership. One representative, one alternate, and workers are chosen in each homeroom. A journal, published each month, can be found in our school libraries.

Local, national, and international services form a principal part of the Junior Red Cross program. Each year they fill Christmas stockings for soldiers and veterans in Long Island hospitals.

Red Cross courses in first aid, water safety, food and nutrition, and home care of the sick offer vital training to its members. The Junior Red Cross serves chapters in blood centers, on speaker's bureaus, and disaster committees. Last year they sent several girls to one of the blood centers as receptionists. Their holiday favors last year went to Korea. One of their biggest annual projects is to give boxes for overseas children, which contain toothpaste, soaps, toys, and many other things which cover both necessity and joy.

Holding offices for this year's group are: president, Gerald Kelly; vice-president, Judy Kennedy; secretary, Jane Browne; treasurer, Tula Korros.

Cafeteria Squad

WHEN walking through the halls, if some strange tempting smell reaches your nostrils there should be no doubt in your mind that it is coming from the cafeteria.

The purpose of the cafeteria squad is to create tantalizing dishes to help feed the hungry students and teachers of our school. Between the third and sixth periods the cafeteria is buzzing with people in search of victuals. Mr. Tobani and his staff keep busy with preparing and serving the foods, along with cleaning and washing the dishes for the next lunch period. This daily routine takes proper timing and cooperation by the manager, cook, and assistants.

The cafeteria squad offers a large variety of hot dinners consisting of such culinary masterpieces as beef, soup, chow mein, beef stew, and ravioli. They also have fruit juices, salads, cakes, pies, puddings, ice cream, milk and candy. Serving food to the students is not the only job that concerns the cafeteria squad. A great amount of time is spent in preparing and serving the many teas and dinners that are associated with various school activities.

Included among the many daily tasks this staff performs is keeping the stainless steel kitchen in an immaculate condition.

On duty each of the four periods the cafeteria is open is a teacher who plays a vital part in keeping the lunch room quiet and neat, and helps to maintain the pleasant surroundings.

We owe our thanks to Mr. Tobani and his efficient staff, for on their shoulders rest the stomachs of our students.

AN interest in a nursing career seems to exist in most girls and generally shows itself during her younger years. One girl, Nancy Kowall, a student from Hempstead High School, used this interest under the guidance of Mrs. Marsden and established the Future Nurses' Club. Since its founding in 1949, the club has become a most practical and valuable organization attracting many girls each year. Although many girls who join seem to have a deep determination to make nursing their career, there are others who join mainly because of a desire to gain more information in the field.

This year, the club has planned some very educational as well as interesting programs. With Miss Sanderson, Supervisor of Auxiliary Health in Nassau Hospital, a guest speaker the annual Parents' Night proved to be a highlight in the year's functions. Speaking to the group on various types of nursing schools, the necessary requirements which a good nurse must possess, and the different phases of a nursing career, Miss Sanderson's talk was very informative. A visit to the Roosevelt Cerebral Palsy Center with an opportunity to observe physical therapy also was of great value. The movie Tuesday's Child recorded the recent advancements in helping the retarded child. These, however, were only a few of the programs that had a part in the club's activities. Trips to various medical centers and hospitals, as well as additional guest speakers also helped to broaden the members' knowledge of nursing.

With Marjorie Browne as president, Pat Brandes as secretary, and Joan Robbins as treasurer, the Future Nurses' Club has endeavored to build a stronger bridge between the medical profession and the nurses to be. Horizons were broadened, knowledge augmented, and friendships increased, as the club once again culminated another successful year.

Spanish Club

"EL CIRCULO CASTELLANO," otherwise known as the Spanish Club, was one of the most active clubs in Hempstead High. It met under the supervision of Mrs. Stilger.

Among the many activities was the annual trip to New York City during the Christmas vacation, where they visited the Hispanic Museum. They also saw a Spanish film entitled "Marcelino," and later ate dinner at "El Quijote." At the Christmas party, entertainment was furnished by the various members of the club. Of course, they broke the traditional "pinata," a gaily decorated pottery jar filled with all kinds of Spanish candies. A lively time was had by all.

During the year, a civilization contest was held with a prize going to the winner. They also played Spanish games, sang songs and participated in a Spanish poetry contest. A Spanish guest was invited to attend one of the meetings and perform some dances for the club. The club attended various plays and concerts at Hofstra and Adelphi colleges, and at the end of the year a medal was given to the member who did the most for the club.

When the Easter vacation arrived, the members of the club again visited New York and went to a theater.

The club met monthly in room thirty and presiding over the meetings was Dave O'Neil, assisted by Rhoda Bushell as vice-president, and Ted Malino and Judy Horowitz as treasurer and secretary, respectively.

Latin Club

THE Carpe Diem Sodalitas is open to all students who are taking, or have completed Latin II.

This year, the Latin Club was headed by Zelda Greenspan, first consul, and Jeanette Pizzitola, second consul. The other officers were Phyllis Netter who, as scriba, took the minutes; Alan Storjohann, quaestor, or treasurer; and Lucius Cobbs, assisted by Dean Birdsall, aedile and assistant aedile; both of whom planned the club's programs.

The sale of Christmas cards again accounted for most of the club's revenue. This money is used mainly for the three annual Latin Club awards. Each year, a committee meets to pick the senior, preferably a Latin IV student, with the highest Latin average to receive the top award. The other awards are prizes, given to the two students attaining the highest marks in the Latin II and Latin III regents.

Some of the interesting programs presented by the club were: a Latin "Who Am I?" contest with Latin characters, dialogue and dress, and a Christmas party with Latin charades. The biggest event this year was a reproduction of a Roman wedding, acted by Peter Rudy, the groom, Marilyn Johnson, the bride, and Lucius Cobbs, the Pontifex Maximus.

The year, filled with Roman and English games in Latin, has been extremely interesting and enjoyable.

French Club

"LE CERCLE FRANCAIS" is the club in which French students of all four years are able to put to use some of the knowledge gained about France and the French language. "Le Cercle" is very grateful to the speakers who have talked to them about France and French life. They have expanded their knowledge from basic classroom work to a fuller understanding of the French and their customs.

In "Le Cercle Français," there is also a lighter side to learning. Every year the members visit New York City to see some amusement pertaining to French. This year the members went into New York to the French Art Theatre.

For Christmas "notre français" celebrated with a party, which included singing carols in French.

M. Fred Szumigala was "le president" of "Le Cercle Français" this year. Filling the offices of vice-president and treasurer respectively, were Mlle. Mary Drewal and M. Robert Nesbitt. As secretary, Mlle. Beth Lee kept the club's minutes and took care of all correspondence. Mme. Young has been the club's advisor, and has ably matched the enthusiasm and energy put forth by "les étudiants" with her careful guidance and help.

Certainment vous que avez fait partie du "Cercle Français" cette année aurez comme souvenirs plaisants, les amitiés formées dans le Cercle, les activités du groupe de ce coin de France. Vive les souvenirs du "Cercle Français."

German Club

"MITGLIEDER des Deutschen Kreiss! Kommen Sie zur nachtsen Sitzung!" With this familiar announcement over the P. A. system, the German Club is called together for its monthly meeting.

During the year, the club enjoyed a varied, interesting, and informative program. Some things of interest this year were guest speakers, films, field trips, and, of course, the many splendid traditions of the club. These traditions are very pleasurable. Foremost of these traditions is the Christmas party. At this event, the club gathered around the piano and joined in singing German Christmas carols. Other traditional events are the annual spelling bee, in which the entire club competes; and the musicale in which various members take part in producing a memorable event.

Films and slides added to the members' knowledge of Germany, its geography, people, and history. These were supplements to class instruction.

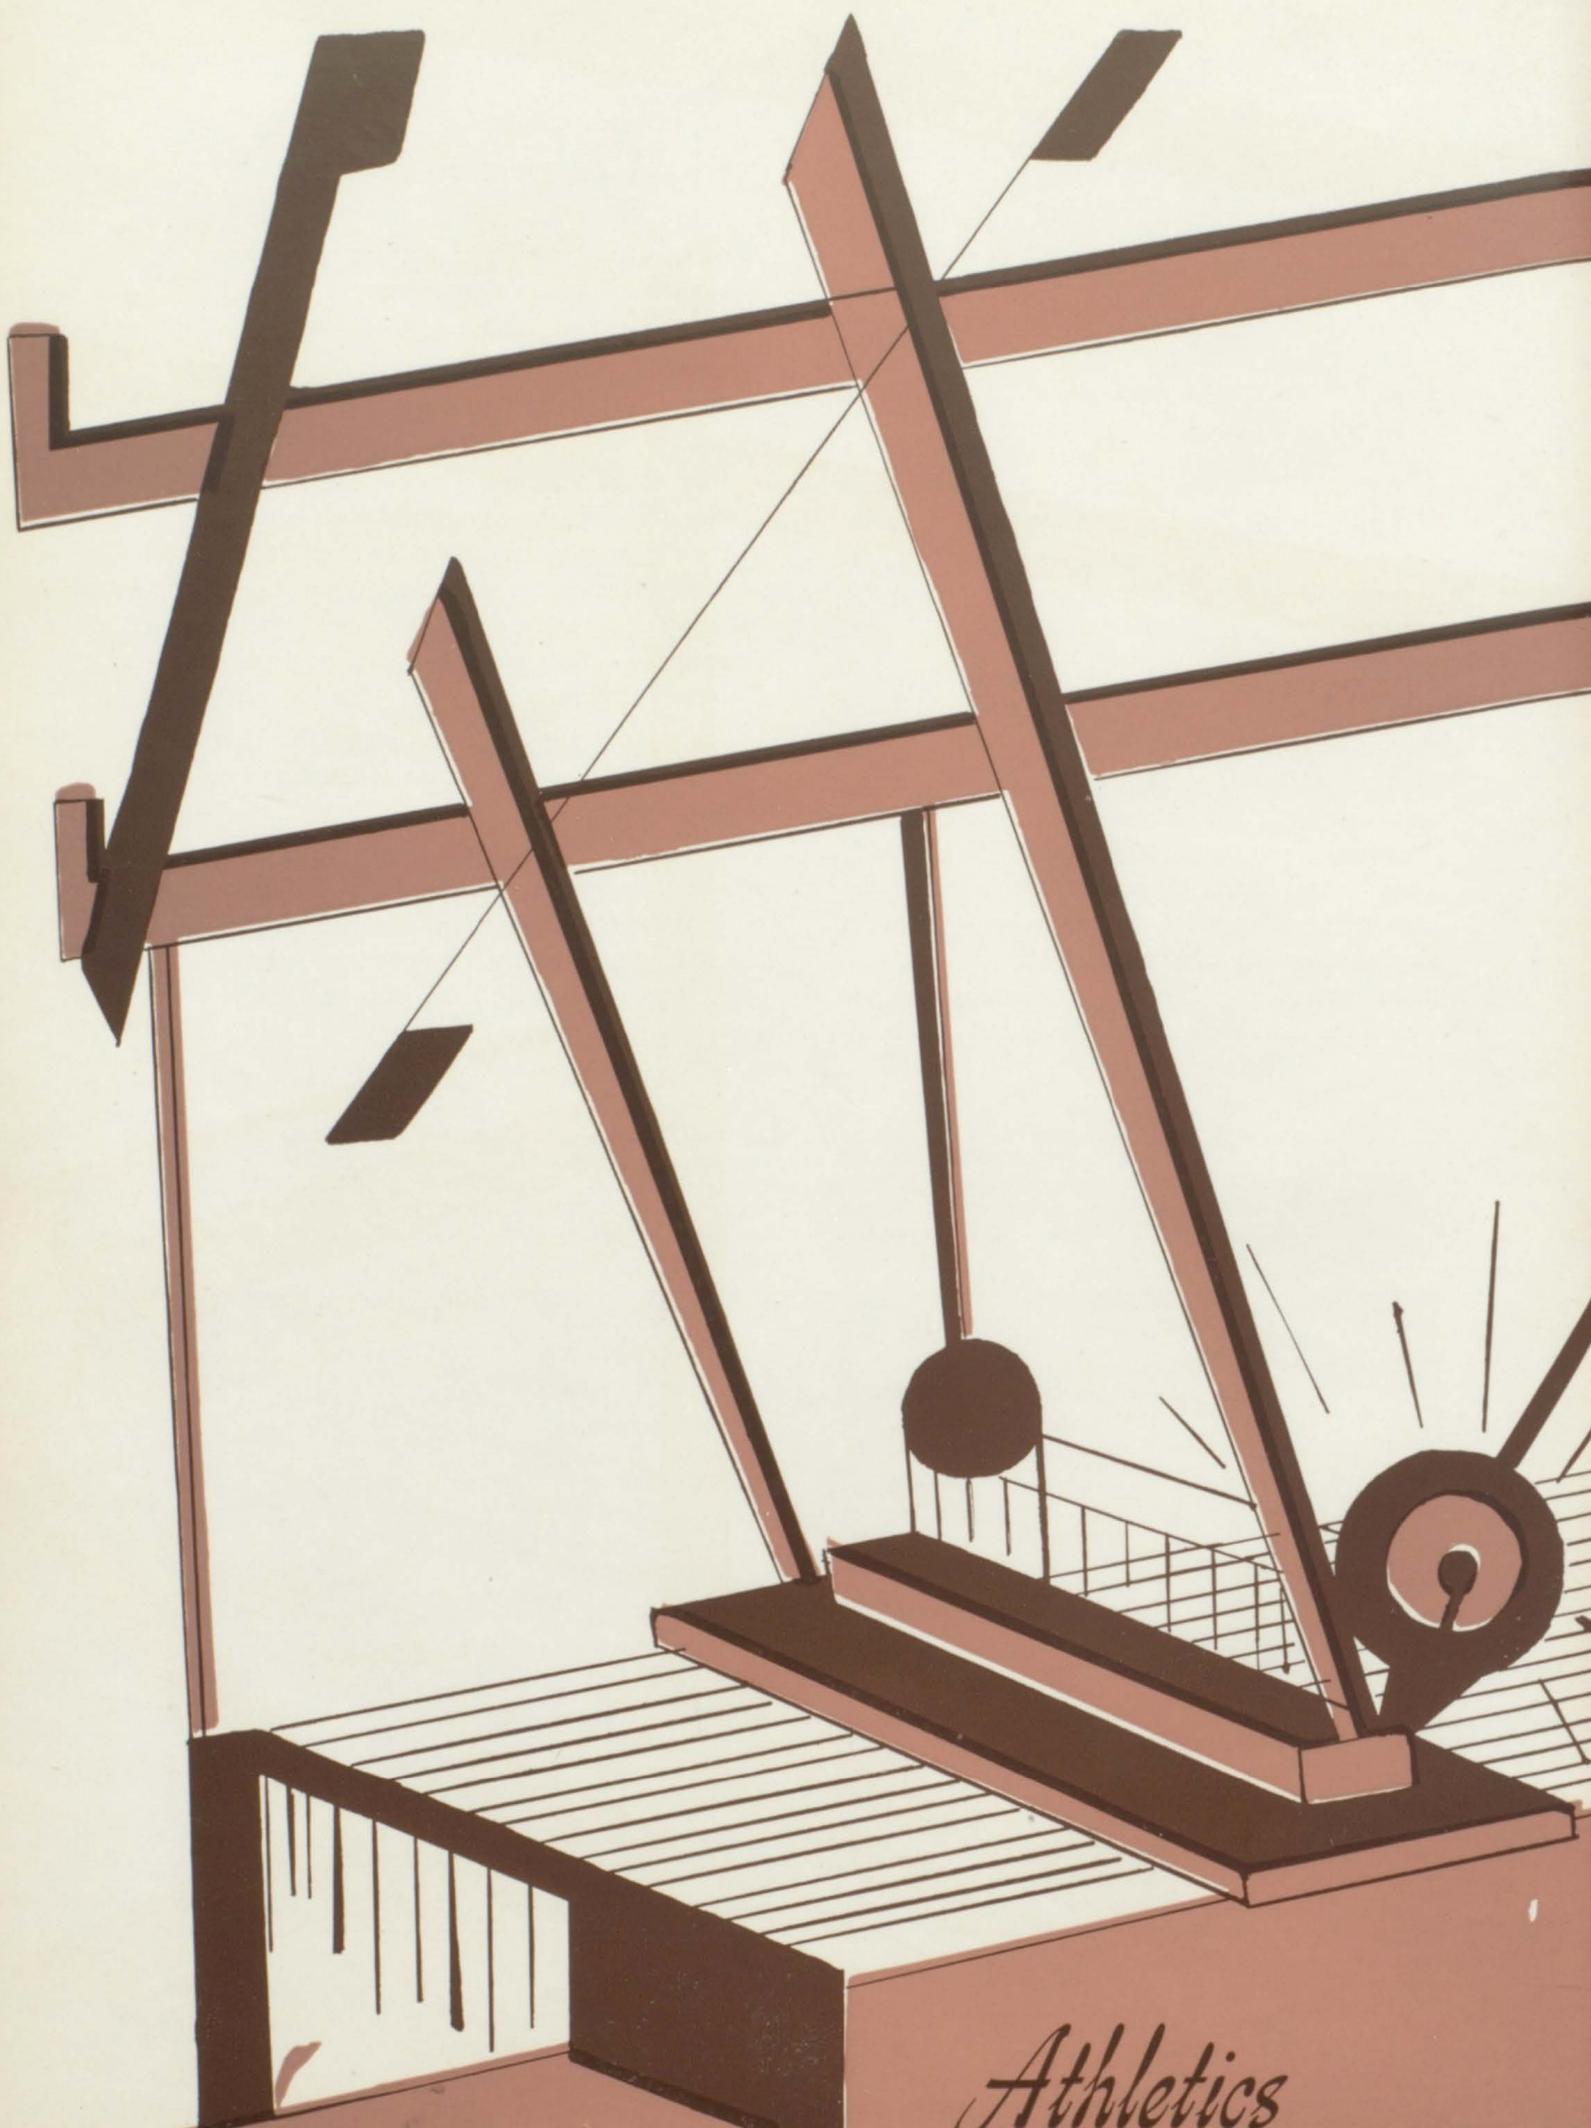

Many field trips were made this year. These included seeing the operetta "Die Fledermaus" at the community center; visiting the S. S. Berlin; and members of the club could even be found ordering such tasty dishes as sauerbraten and dumplings, potato pancakes, and roulade at a German restaurant.

Due to the various experiences, the club injected a deeper appreciation of German into its participants.

Under the excellent guidance of Miss Gunther, and Mr. Leusch; and under the able leadership of, president, Gary Sunden; vice-president, Mary Lou Albright; secretary, Hedy Bobrow; and treasurer, Marilyn Gruntfest; the club has enjoyed a very successful year.

Marching Band Entourage

DRUM MAJORETTES

THE long hard hours of practice on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons and on Saturday mornings was apparent in the wonderful performance given this year by the band entourage. At Yankee Stadium the ensemble performed with exacting precision during the half-time at the first Giant football game. This show was televised throughout a large area of New York State. Later in the year, they performed in back of Arnold Constable's in Hempstead in order to greet Santa Claus as he arrived in his helicopter. The Hempstead High School band, as a result of being honored by these appearances is well known throughout the country. Their successes have been publicized in many news and magazine articles. Hempstead High School truly has a great band.

The theme of this year's band show, "Rain or Shine," exhibited such lively tunes as, "It Ain't Gonna Rain No More" and "Sunny Side of the Street." After spelling out and shouting the words R-A-I-N and S-H-I-N-E, the band went into a unique routine to the music of "Blue Skies." Utilizing colorful red, white, and blue show umbrellas, they not only demonstrated precision and coordination, but also introduced to the spectators an entirely new idea in formations. The band then featured a vast circular sun. Radiating from its core were streams of dancing twirlers, spinning their brightly colored umbrellas. Another "first" in Hempstead High School's history occurred when the band played the familiar strains of our Alma Mater and the students proudly sang its cherished words as the line of twirlers extending from goal to goal waved blue and white flags. As usual, the talented kickline of one hundred girls added an interesting touch to the program with their well precisioned routine, done to the tune of "Music, Music, Music." Upon hearing the notes of "In My Merry Oldsmobile," the entourage formed a school bus while circles of twirlerettes at either end of red and blue ribbon streamers served as the rotating wheels. Near the end of the football season, a short but well-performed pre-game show became part of the program. The colorful tune "Down The Field" was the closing selection as the H. H. S. formation separated, formed two lines, and marched off the field.

The show, comprised of the band, majorettes,

Cheerleaders

"LET'S have a Hempstead cheer." I'm sure everyone has heard these words at our football games. This year, the cheerleaders did an excellent job in cheering our team on to victory. Also, as they did last year, the junior varsity cheerleaders combined with the varsity girls for their rousing cheers. For every two cheers the varsity led, the junior varsity led one.

The captains of the varsity cheerleaders were Phyllis Dwir and June Smith, and the captain of the junior varsity cheerleaders was Jeanette Duggan. Under the leadership of Miss Dorwin, the cheerleaders did an exceedingly good job in boosting school spirit, and they added the pep the team needed.

Alan Bonniwell and a Sewanhaka player battle for the ball.

Tony Governanti running interference for Bob Mahoney.

Traveling to Mepham for our first game, we were hurt by bad breaks and lost the game in the last few seconds because of a Mepham touchdown pass.

The following week an angry team took the field against Freeport and, inspired by fine support from the students, handed the Red Devils their only defeat of the year.

At home again for the third game, our powerful offense was a bit too much for the highly-praised Sewanhaka defense.

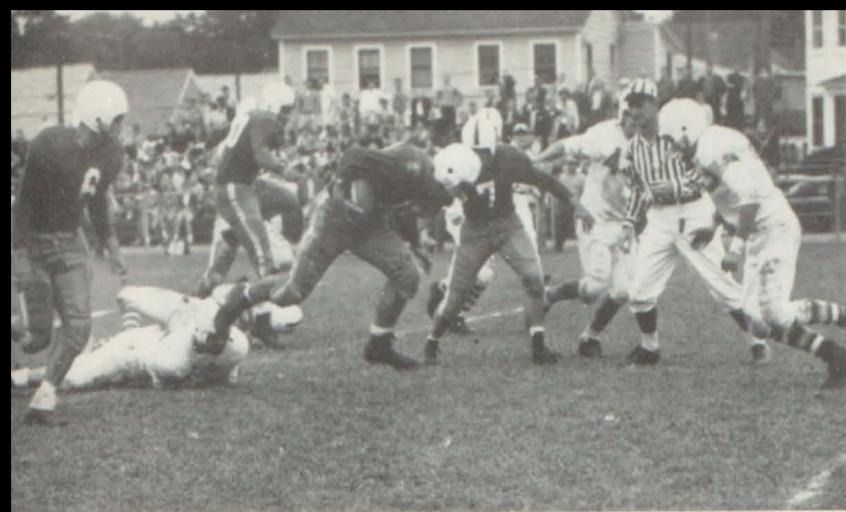

This year, like every year there were several upsets. Baldwin's upset win knocked us out of a tie for first place. The Golden Waves' air attack was very effective against our somewhat shaky pass defense.

Varsity Football

HIGHLIGHTED by the hard running attack of Don Kornrumpf, Sonny Glasco, Jimmy Hawks and Johnny Edwards, the Hempstead Tigers gained undisputed possession of 3rd place in the tough Triple-A Conference.

On our homefield mincemeat was made out of an inexperienced but determined Massapequa squad.

The final home game of the season against Lawrence's Golden Tornadoes, featuring a 100 yard kick return by Don Kornrumpf, was a complete success for the Tigers. Our fifth win nevertheless, left us still tied for third place.

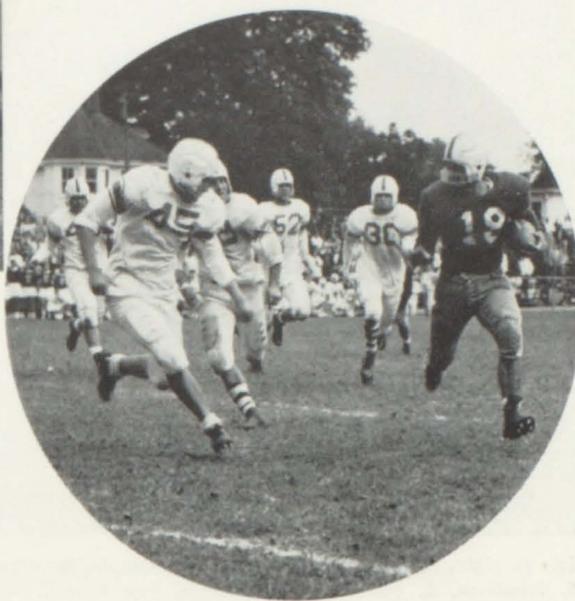

Our final game was an impressive win over Mineola. Again our great offensive power was unleashed. A tremendous offense, fine defense and enthusiastic school spirit were the reasons for our successful season.

Don Kornrumpf was distinguished in several ways this year. He was named to the "All-Scholastic" teams in local papers as well as being a member of the "All-Metropolitan" team. But his greatest achievement was winning the Thorp Award for being the most outstanding football player on Long Island. This award has much meaning as all winners have later excelled in college football. Tony Governanti and Bob Drost were also "All-Scholastic" team members.

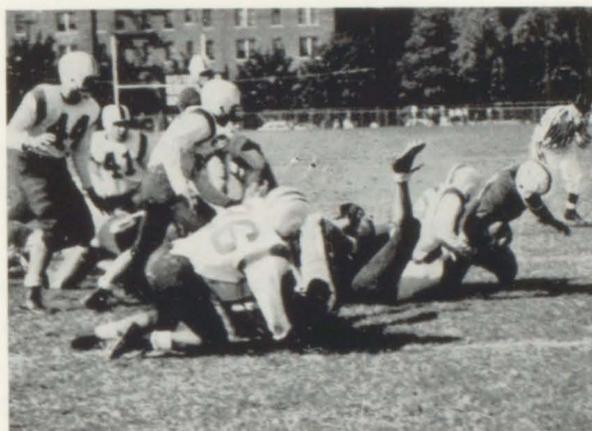

A good team is also expected next year. Headed by returning lettermen, and aided by boys from the J. V. squad, the Hempstead Tigers will again take the field, amid roars from the well-filled stands.

Varsity Basketball

THIS year John Mills again put together a fine basketball team. Getting off to a slow start, the Tigers recovered, gained second place in their league and went on to the semi-finals of the Nassau County Basketball Tournament.

Bobby Grant, our center, did a fine job in pulling down rebounds and leading the team in scoring. George Bookhard, the team's captain, did his share of scoring. Bland Bookhard was the sparkplug of our team. His phenomenal dribbling and ball handling won him an honorable mention on the Nassau County All Scholastic team. Bill Jackey, the team's workhorse, frequently scored on short hooks, pushes, and jumps. Rounding out the starting team was sophomore John Mackey, who played good ball and showed great promise for the future.

To the other members of the team goes a lot of credit for without their support our team could not have been a success. These fellows are often overlooked and this is a good opportunity to praise them for the fine jobs they did and to inform them that they did not go unnoticed.

Baseball Team

THE 1956 tiger baseball team ended the season in fifth place with a record of three wins and seven losses.

One of the most interesting events of the year occurred when the baseball team played softball against the softball team. The baseball team was winning 9-6 in the sixth inning when, with the bases loaded, George Bookhard came to bat for the softball team. He hit a single to right field, where the ball rolled past Al Frost for a three base error to give the softball team a 10-9 victory.

During the season, Dick Sturdivant played first base, and Don Kornrump played third. The key-stone combination was Pete Tsairis and Tom Duschenchuk at shortstop and second base, respectively. Pete Klersey, Jim Hawks and Hank Schwern played left, center and right fields, respectively with George Dempster behind the plate. The bulk of the pitching was done by Ben Plawski, Larry Dauch and Allen Frost.

With Tom Duschenchuk, Don Kornrumpf, Pete Klersy, Larry Dauch and Jim Hawks returning, the outlook for the 1957 team is extremely optimistic. The scores were as follows:

Varsity Track

ENTHUSIASM, adeptness, and fitness were the keys to Hempstead High's five wins and one loss track record. Under the leadership of Captain George Puerschner our team displayed unity and sportsmanship throughout the entire season.

Hempstead vaulted over Mephram, sprinted ahead of Lawrence, jumped over Central, outran Long Beach, and dashed ahead of Baldwin by impressive margins, but Sewanhaka, with a larger student body, managed to outscore us for our only defeat.

The leading trackmen were Mike Green, Bob Heaney, and John Madigan. They were outstanding enough to qualify for the state meet at West Point.

Rifle Team

THIS year Hempstead High School added the rifle team to its list of successful sports. This is verified by a respectable record of eight victories out of twelve matches against competitive South Shore teams. The sharpshooters finished in a tie for second place.

The rifle team receives its excellent coaching from Mr. Voorhies, and is led by captain Bob Von Elm. Team scores are as follows:

Bowling

WITH only one veteran, Bob Winter, the captain, returning after last year's excellent season, the outlook for this year was not good. However, under the guidance of the coach, Mr. Levin, and the leadership of their captain, the bowling team attained the following record.

Golf

IN 1956, Hempstead's South Shore championship golf team placed third in the Nassau-Suffolk Section 8. Mr. Faust's supervision and the team's capability is substantiated by these scores:

Tennis

LED by captain Mike Sklut and coached by Mr. Menza, this year's tennis team improved in all departments as it placed second in its league. Participating in singles were Bill Friedman, Mike Edlin, and Woody Silliman, while Mike Sklut, Danny Mirro, Roy Feldman, and Ron McCarthy played doubles. Thus, the season's ten wins and two losses record was as follows:

J. V. Football

ALTHOUGH our Junior Varsity squad got off to a bad start, superb running and passing made the remainder of the season victorious.

Our thanks are extended to Mr. Wilson and his team for a splendid season. During the season, outstanding playing was exhibited by backs: Tommy Ross, Howie Kalinsky, Charles Muller, Pete Cunningham, Arte Mason, and Steve Zipkin; chief linemen: Nelson Garcia, Vinnie Camso, and John Ryan; and charging defense: Major Bottoms, John Mackey, Max Brustmeyer, and Lester Howlie.

Lacrosse

THIS year, Hempstead High School's first Lacrosse Team was organized and coached by Mr. Keenan. Since this is the team's debut in interscholastic competition, it will be playing in the Novice Lacrosse League.

Originating as a sport of the North American Indians in Canada, the modern Lacrosse game has developed into "The fastest game on two feet." The object of the game is to throw the Indian rubber ball into the goal. This ball is thrown by means of a crosse which resembles a long-handled tennis racket with a loose net serving as a pocket for the ball. Each team is made up of ten men—one goaltender, three defensemen, three midfielders, and three attackmen.

J. V. Basketball

THE Junior Varsity basketball team ended its season with a record of six wins and four losses.

Outstanding players were Howie Gabe, their high-scoring star; Roger Golden, Frank McCollough, Don Coleman and Jeff Caro. They were ably assisted by Sonneson, Midgette, Solonakas, Stewart and Taft.

With the J. V. players playing varsity ball next year, the outlook for the varsity is good.

Freshman Track

LAST year's track team, consisting of forty boys, did a superb job under the coaching of Mr. Franz. Their success is also attributed to these star trackmen—hurdlers, Arthur Mason and Leon McKenna; 100 yard runners, Richard Tier and Jeff Caro; 220 yard runners, John Mackey and James Jetter; pole vaulter, John Mackey; shot putter, Robert Mahoney; and broad jumpers, David Downs and Richard Tier. An invitational tournament between seven schools found four of our fastest runners displaying their talents.

In the meets held with Sewanhaka, Lynbrook, Freeport, Long Beach, Massapequa, Uniondale, and West Hempstead good sportsmanship, fair play, and an outstanding display of "trackmanship" proved to be the key to the team's successful season.

Riding

THE members of the Boys' Riding Club have a chance to show their equestrian skill on the trail at beautiful Hempstead Lake State Park every Tuesday afternoon after school. The hardy members of this club ride fall, winter, and spring in all types of weather: sun, rain or snow.

Under the expert direction of Mr. Schaedel, the boys learn the basic fundamentals of riding which include how to properly canter and to correctly post the horse. In general, they are taught to practice good riding habits and to be courteous toward other riders. They use English saddles for more refined riding but may occasionally choose a horn saddle if they feel in a western mood. The boys have a lot of fun while they learn because the club is enjoyable as well as instructive.

Freshman Football

THE Freshman Football squad had a very fine season regardless of their two won and three loss record. Considering this year was the first year of high school football, the squad did very well under the able direction of Mr. Miele, a member of the faculty at Jackson Street School in Hempstead.

Many of the members of this year's team will graduate to the Junior Varsity next year. Two of the more outstanding players were quarterback, George Truicko, and center, Martin Ackley.

Modern Dance Club

ONE of the most relaxing, and yet creative clubs of our school is the Modern Dance Club. Leotards, soft mood music, rhythm, and a deep interest in dancing, are all characteristics of this club.

Eighteen nimble, graceful members compose this year's club. These participants are junior and senior girls who are in a modern dance class and have gone through an individual try-out. The girls are judged by their style, agility, rhythm, performance, and creative ability. Miss Barry is the capable leader of this group, and is aided by Phylis Dwir, the student leader. As the year progresses, a junior girl is selected by the group to assist the student leader.

Through membership in this worthwhile organization, the girls receive additional practice and work in choreography and rhythmic movement. Every Friday during the seventh and eighth periods, the girls assemble to create original dances and work on various dance techniques.

The entire dance production of "Greek Games" is created by the Modern Dance Club. Soloists for the event are also chosen within this group. Another occasion for which the modern dancers perform is "Class Night." All senior members take part in this performance, which is enjoyed by their classmates. Small portions of the club perform at other events, but the main productions put on by the club are "Greek Games," and "Class Night."

When the students see the productions put on by the club, they all realize that a great deal of work is done to produce such precision in movement and rhythm. Through witnessing these productions of the club, one can easily notice the talents exhibited by its members. Every performance is done with great enthusiasm and is a fine demonstration of the club's achievements.

IN every gym class there are between four and five gym aids helping to assist the two gym teachers, Mrs. Reicher and Mrs. Barry.

Each year a group of about forty girls are chosen on the basis of their personality, interest, leadership, and ability to associate with others. These girls assist the gym teachers in many ways. They take attendance, take care of the school's equipment, teach and instruct sports when deemed necessary, help to keep the gym class organized, run errands and do little things that would normally take needed time from the teacher. It is really a wonderful opportunity for those girls who have never had the chance to show their leadership. The girls spend one period a day each day of the week doing this work.

Three or four times a year there is a gym aid meeting called in order to discuss the rules and regulations of the gym aids, and to discuss rules, and to give instructions to the girls concerning new games. The president of the club this year is Judy Schoonover. The girls also have an opportunity to supervise the Greek Games, for it is in the gym classes these various skills are taught and practiced. Each gym aid is given a different activity in Greek Games to teach. Some of these skills include the hoop, discus, torch race, and hurdling for form.

They enjoy the work, and at the same time gain self-assurance and points in good leadership, along with the skill of being able to accept responsibilities both now and for the future.

Considering all the activities these gym aides undertake, it can be said that the credit given them is certainly well deserved.

Bowling

BOWLING proved to be one of the most popular sports for girls this year. The group composed of twenty-five sophomores, and twenty-five juniors and seniors was the biggest and most enthusiastic group in many years.

Practice was held at the Hempstead Recreation Center on Monday for the sophomores and Wednesday for the juniors and seniors. Here they practiced bettering their game. The fine coaching of their advisors, Miss Silver and Mrs. Cullen, enabled the girls to improve their bowling scores. This year's capable student leader was Joan Freudenberger who also assisted the advisors.

At the end of the year the highest scorers of the sophomores competed with the highest scorers of the juniors and seniors in an annual tournament. Pins were awarded to the highest scorers to remind them of their successful year of bowling.

Basketball

THIS year, like every year, girls' basketball has proven to be the most popular girls' sport in Hempstead High. Nearly a hundred girls from the sophomore, junior and senior classes have shown a great interest in this sport. The girls were divided into two groups, the sophomores who met every Monday and Wednesday, and the juniors and seniors who met Tuesday and Thursday.

Under the able guidance and coaching of Mrs. Reicher and Mrs. Cullen, these girls received the instructions needed to play the game. The girls also competed with girls' basketball teams from other schools. Assisting Mrs. Reicher and Mrs. Cullen was student leader, Dottie Kitchens.

The members of the girls' basketball team proved themselves able to play a good game, and showed tremendous sportsmanship among themselves and the girls on the other teams.

Sports Leaders

CONGRATULATIONS from the Colonial staff to the various girls' sports leaders of Hempstead High. The girls chosen have displayed exceptional ability in their line of sports. They have excelled in interest, skill, leadership and sportsmanship.

The captain of this year's cheerleaders was Phyllis Dwir. She was assisted by June Smith as co-captain. Phyllis Dwir was leader of Modern Dance. Carolyn Crouch had charge of badminton, while Rita Babineau presided over Greek Games. Madelyn Boyce coached softball, and Joan Freudenberger headed bowling. Judy Schoonover was the student leader of the gym aides. Basketball and horseback riding were under the leadership of Dotty Kitchens and Barbara Voorhies, respectively.

Badminton

In the past, many girls have preferred badminton to other sports for recreation and this year was no exception. There was a large turn out of sophomores, juniors and seniors who practiced and learned the rules and regulations of badminton. Coaching this activity was Mrs. Reicher and helping her was the student leader, Carolyn Crouch.

The players use a "shuttlecock," which is a small, hard rubber ball spliced in half, to the sides of which are attached short, strong, white feathers. The shuttle usually won't fly more than fifty feet so that there is little chance of having to hunt balls that "go over the fence."

Girls' Softball

THE girls' softball activities were open to all sophomores, juniors, and seniors who enjoy this after school sport and the chance to be outdoors in the spring. The sophomores played at the end of the eighth period, and the juniors and seniors at the end of the seventh period.

Last year, the schedule was quite short running only from the end of April, after Greek Games, until the end of the sport activities for the year. We were sorry the softball season wasn't long enough for the girls to have a full season, and still have time for an honor team to compete with other schools.

The past season Mrs. Reicher and Miss Beighly were the adult advisors with Claire Elznik filling the student advisor's position.

Riding Club

FROM the beginning of school to Thanksgiving, and in the spring from Easter to the middle of June, the members of the Girls' Riding Club ride every Wednesday afternoon after school.

The bridle path encircles beautiful Hempstead Lake State Park. On these hour long rides anything can happen, and occasionally does because there is usually someone who dismounts in the rather uncomfortable way known as falling. But after that a girl can consider herself a confirmed equestrienne, and she needn't worry because her bruises will soon disappear.

The main purpose of the club is to teach the girls to become better and more skillful riders. Despite all the aches and pains, the girls love every minute of it.

Greek Games

ONE of the most colorful and exciting traditions of Hempstead High School is Greek Games.

Last year the melodic voices of the Girls' Glee Club set the scene for the arrival of the priestesses. Then, as the two teams of sophomore athletes, the Spartans and the Athenians made their picturesque entrance into the arena, the contestants began to demonstrate their athletic skills. The strong discus throwers, graceful hurdlers, nimble hoop rollers, and swift torch racers were received with great enthusiasm. With the neighing of human horses and the stamping of feet, the chariot exhibition was announced. When all the events had been judged and the points totaled, the Athenians were proclaimed victors.

Interspersed between the events were the presentations of the Modern Dance Club, whose agile movements added a note of splendor to this event.

Under the direction of Lois Fennelly, and with the guidance of Mrs. Reicher, the Physical Education Department once again produced an extravaganza.

In Memoriam

ON August 22, 1956, Mrs. Lyla R. Davis, a member of the Hempstead High School faculty, passed away in Nassau Hospital. She was a member of the English Department, teaching English III and IV.

Mrs. Davis came to Hempstead High in 1928 and taught here until her death. She was educated at Michigan State Normal School, Ohio Wesleyan, and Columbia University, where she was a Phi Beta Kappa honor society member. Before coming to Hempstead, she taught at Reading High School, Reading, Massachusetts, and Wellenville High School in Wellenville, Ohio. During her twenty-eight years in Hempstead High School, Mrs. Davis made many notable contributions in furthering student education. One of her outstanding achievements was her position as an advisor to the Colonial, where her deep interest and conscientious efforts were invaluable aids in producing very fine yearbooks.

Although Mrs. Davis has been taken from us, she will always live in the thoughts of those who knew her.

Ike vs. Adlai

"I LIKE Ike" and "All the way with Adlai" were common slogans in Hempstead High prior to the presidential election. On November 5, the hammering of a gavel could be heard issuing from the auditorium trying to calm the enthusiastic campaigners. A panel discussion was in full swing with representatives of both parties in heated debate. Representing the Republicans were Bill Ausman, Mary Hengstenberg and Gary Sunden, while Gary Cohan, Sue Markowitz and Steve Bloomfield presented the Democratic platform, in this Booster Club sponsored debate. Students of Citizenship Education classes were given a chance to hear their respective parties and candidates defended for equal lengths of time. Moderated by Linda Drum, the various campaign issues were discussed: the Republican claim of prosperity and the Democratic answer that it is prosperity for big business while the little ones suffer, Ike's health and ability to be a full time president, and Nixon's merits. The debate proved to be very enlightening, with both sides presenting excellent points.

The next day, Hempstead High School students were given the chance to vote for their favorite candidates in a mock election. They were allowed the additional privilege of crossing party lines. When the votes were counted, Ike and Nixon came out ahead of Stevenson and Kefauver, which was an indication of the coming results in the national election.

Custodians

THE essential position of our school's custodians is certainly apparent to all of us. The cleanliness, comfort, and "tip-top" condition of our building, however, takes long, hard hours of work. As the custodians work on split schedules, the school is kept open from 5 A.M. until 11 P.M. These evening hours not only permit adult education and special school functions, but also enables the custodians to make repairs on the school. Each of the men work full time throughout the year with only two weeks' summer vacation.

Though continually busy with straightening up after us, polishing the hall floors, shoveling walks, fixing shades, lights, and windows, and countless other duties all done with a great deal of efficiency, they can always be depended upon to help us in an emergency. When you confront them with a problem, they never fail to stop and willingly listen. All of us should try just a little harder to avoid carelessly discarding papers we no longer need on the hall and classroom floors.

The custodians have a few complaints although they never feel the need to advertise them. These complaints are of students who mar the desks and chairs, abuse the window shades, kick the lockers, and perform other damaging deeds.

Our custodians work hard to keep the school spotlessly clean and in top condition, so let's all do our best to help them and they will appreciate it.

Harriet and Bertha living it up at the G. O. Show.

Harriet and Bertha

IT was homeroom time and a loud wail came over the P. A. system. What was this unearthly sound? Was it a tribe of cannibals or a herd of elephants? These were the questions the suffering homeroom teachers asked. Students sent to the office came back with the simple answer . . . it was only Harriet and Bertha Orangepeel. Who are they? Who else but Lynda Drum and Jane Browne. These girls, members of the Booster Club Advisory Board, got together at the beginning of the year to decide what they could do to arouse student interest on the P. A.'s special announcements. They knew that whenever the homerooms heard "Stay tuned for a special announcement," they would pay little attention, so they took their country cousins' names (we can't mention them) and from them derived *HARRI*et and *BERTH*a Orange PEEL. Using these names they created two adorable characters, Harriet (Lynda), a southern belle, and Bertha (Jane), a "limey." Bertha pretends to be big boss over poor dumb Harriet, but in real life we are told it's vice-versa. Combining their senses of humor with school events for publicity, they came up with some original skits, ranging from peanut sales to formal dance ads designed to tickle the funny bone and keep us informed. In closing we leave you with those immortal words . . . "Harriet, what are you doing?"

Senior Frosh Day

LAST October 11, the annual and exciting event of Senior Frosh Day, which officially initiated the freshman girls into our school, took place.

Hempstead High was once again a confusion of bibs, bonnets, bottles, and short skirts which were worn by the freshmen. The freshmen brought bags and bags of lollipops which rapidly disappeared in order to appease the appetites of their senior "mommies." Dressed in dainty aprons with bows in their hair and stuffed animals and dolls tucked under their arms, the senior girls searched the halls looking for the newcomers and their lollipops.

At the end of the school day, a wonderful party was held in the boys gym for all the frosh and their senior "moms." Music was provided by Gary Sunden and the Indigos. Some of the talented seniors sang, danced and acted to everyone's delight. Helen Waranis was chosen for wearing the most original costume, and Frances Negler for having the prettiest hair. The girl with the most poise was Helene Ferrara, and Mary Ann Casey was chosen the cutest freshman. Also, Dorian Danchig was picked as the most typical of all the frosh.

Brenda Baskind was chairman of the judges and Sally Dunmore assisted Brenda as co-chairman.

Nadia Hetata

HEMPSTEAD HIGH SCHOOL had the pleasure of playing host to Nadia Hetata, an exchange student, for a period of three weeks. She stayed at the home of Barbara Voorhies. Nadia comes from Cairo, Egypt, where her father is a general in Nasser's army. She has three sisters and two brothers. She was eighteen in April and has one more year of high school to complete. Then to the University of Cairo for Nadia, where she will enter either the school of medicine or the school of commerce. An interesting feature of this university is the first day of school, which resembles initiation night into a sorority or fraternity.

In school Nadia studies many of the subjects that we study such as English, French, geography, history and mathematics. She is on the girls' basketball and tennis teams. In fact, she won the tennis cup for all the Egyptian secondary schools. Nadia has other hobbies which include swimming, reading, bicycling and of course her four or five boyfriends.

Our guest from Egypt feels that the American teenager has too much freedom. For example in Egypt, in order for a girl to date a boy, her parents must know who the boy's parents are, his address, phone number, exactly where they will be going and then proceed to give the girl a strict curfew.

In spite of a few strange experiences, Nadia enjoyed her stay at Hempstead as much as we enjoyed having her.

*Edward Dennis
Normandy III*

EDWARD DENNIS NORMANDY III, known to us as "Denny," arrived at Hempstead High the first week in January as an exchange student from the Philippines through the Herald Tribune's annual exchange student plan. "Denny's" host here at Hempstead High was Ralph Campanella. Those who got to know "Denny" found him to be a regular fellow and no different from any of our American friends.

Dennis spent most of his childhood in Manila on the island of Luzon in the Philippines. Dennis attended Atenco Grade School, where he was Editor-in-chief of the school newspaper, and then Atenco High School where he was Editor-in-chief of The Bluebook, his school's yearbook.

A number of panel discussions was also held, during which "Denny" was interviewed.

Before his departure, a farewell tea was given for Denny and Nadia by The Student Council. After the entertainment our principal, Mr. Beddow, told of Hempstead High's warm feeling toward Dennis. This was followed by Denny's farewell speech. Following the speech-making, refreshments were served.

After visiting a number of other schools, Dennis went to Washington, D. C., where he and other exchange students met President Eisenhower.

The Christmas scene at Kennedy Park.

Display at Kennedy Park

SEVEN years ago the Art Department of Hempstead High School was asked to plan and make a Christmas display for Kennedy Park. The art classes submitted their plans and drawings to the Kennedy Park Board, and from this group the Christmas display was selected. This display had been used for seven years in many different ways with various additions and subtractions. However, this year the Art Department was asked for an entirely new design.

The classes, under the supervision of Miss Oman and Mr. Pilkington, undertook this task immediately, and finally the most original design was selected by the Kennedy Park Board. The design chosen was centered around multicolored, stained glass windows symbolizing a church at Christmas. Going to the church were men, women, and children in pre-Civil War clothing. The research on costumes of that period was started, and the students drew their own costume designs and figures, keeping in mind the fashions of that day. All of the art students contributed to the research, the designing, drawing and painting.

It was displayed on December 21, for the Christmas holidays. The components of this year's display will be shown in many different settings for following Christmas seasons. Hempstead High School can be proud of the very outstanding job done by its Art Department.

The School and the Community of Work

ON February 26, Hempstead High School's Business Education Department held an open night for the business people of Hempstead. The program was entitled, "The School and the Community of Work." The theme was "The Integration of Training and Education in the Preparation for Employment." The title and the theme were self-explanatory; the purpose of the affair was to show our local businessmen just what the various educational departments of Hempstead High School were doing to prepare students for employment.

The program was opened with a speech from Dr. W. A. Kincaid, Superintendent of Schools, after which Mr. Beddow, the School's Principal, spoke. The fashion show then followed with the modeling of clothing by 18 high school boys to provide a visual commentary for the fashion show script, "The Right Way to Dress for the Occasion," provided by the American Institute of Men's and Boys' Wear. After the program, refreshments were served by hostesses in the cafeteria.

This gave the employers a chance to meet the guidance counselors as well as the heads of all the departments. Through the skillful planning and patience of those connected with this program, we have tried to show how all the departments help mold and perfect the youth who goes into the business world.

Science Seminar

LOOKING to the past, we realize what a vital part science has had and the effect it will continue to have in our lives. Students at Hempstead High School realize what a boon science is to mankind. Enthusiastic students of this subject, and those who some day wish to make science their career can be found as members of the Science Seminar. This is a school organization which aids those students with a sincere interest in science.

The Seminar is composed of twenty students who are required to have an eighty-eight or above average in Physics, Chemistry, or both. Every second Thursday of the month, the group meets under the able guidance of Mr. Faust and Mr. Levin. This meeting takes place during the eighth period, and lasts for forty-five minutes. At these meetings, the members carry out various interesting and educational programs. They may spend their time discussing topics of interest, having guest speakers, or fulfilling other interests of the participants.

To supply its members with more advanced knowledge for which there is no class time is the main purpose of the club. Through this organization, the members will be better prepared for college science.

Among the members of the seminar there may be a few who, in years to come, will be great scientists. We certainly hope this occurs and wish success in the future to all the members of this worthwhile group.

Even the Tiger helped Steve Bloomfield and Lynn Peurschner sell some peanuts to Mr. Tree.

Peanut Brigade

AS Hempstead High School ushered in the 1956 football season, our Student Council also took a big step in serving the community.

In accordance with the Hempstead Kiwanis Club's primary interest in helping underprivileged children, Hempstead students and Kiwanis members combined their eagerness and determination in a peanut selling campaign. Each year the Kiwanis Clubs in Canada and the United States designate this day as Kiwanis Youth Day. Colorful posters were placed on the lamp posts throughout the Village of Hempstead by its students, while an active publicity campaign reigned in our school. With the arrival of 1,000 bags of peanuts, many cardboard baskets, attention-attracting armbands, and metal coin cartons, all of which were paid for by the Kiwanis Club, the drive got under way. About fifteen students volunteered to donate their time and energy to this worthy cause. Finally, as the last call of "Peanuts! Peanuts! Buy some peanuts!" faded away, every bag had been sold at a profit of $105. The benefactor of this charitable campaign was the Roosevelt Cerebral Palsy Center. This money could undoubtedly be put to good use by this deserving and extremely efficient institution.

Thus, what better answer could there be to the perennial question, "In what constructive way does youth serve the community?"

Mr. Dale's Class Making the Candles.

Holiday
Candle Display

EVERY Hempstead student has no doubt seen and admired the attractive holiday candle display which was built to celebrate Christmas and Chanukah. Extending from Main Street to Front Street and from Franklin Street to Fulton Street, this exhibition was made by the Industrial Arts students of Hempstead High School.

All of the necessary equipment was supplied by the Hempstead Chamber of Commerce. These candles were made by the students under the supervision of Mr. Monsell in the General Shop, Mr. Dale in the Electric Shop, and Mr. Jelicks in the Metal Shop. For the first time in the history of the school the assembly line and mass production methods were used. Both of those proved to be highly successful since it took only two days for the combined efforts of the three shops to complete the one hundred and twenty candles. Later they were installed on the lamp-posts by the citizens of the Village of Hempstead.

Every boy in the three shops played a part in constructing these candles. The success of this enterprise with the school and the community working together is the proof of united community spirit.

G. O. Show

THE roaring twenties came alive again as the theme of the annual G. O. Show on November 15. The Master of Ceremonies, Johnny Ramo, first introduced a chorus line of ten high-kicking girls who rivaled the famed Rockettes. Solo tap dances were performed by Judy Krug and John Blocker. Further talent included a song parody entitled "Heartbreak Motel" by Uncle Don (Don Hood) and Junior (Mario Salerno).

Playing to a full house, the harmonious Turftones, a male vocal group, really stopped the show when the audience demanded encore after encore. The Turftones were made up of Buck Green, Charles McElrath, Ted Merritt, and Horace Green. A sweet soprano rendition of "Summertime" was presented by Adele Wilson accompanied by the Indigos, a seven piece band of Hempstead High School students. The Indigos also presented "When the Saints Come Marching In," with Gary Sunden soloing on the trumpet. The dance of the twenties, the Charleston, was performed twice at the show; first a terrific arrangement by Saralee Garrick, and later in a hilarious comedy form by Lynda Drum and Jane Browne. Another riotous comedy was the "Spittin' and Kissin' Act" performed by Norma Treder, Bob Schuster, Pat Ferri, and Ralph Campanella.

Directed by Harriet Gilbert, Student Council Vice-President, with Miss Newlon acting as the advisor, the G. O. Show this year marked another successful enterprise of our Student Council.

Tigar Reel Committee Getting Ready For Action.

Tiger Reels

ANOTHER enterprise of the Student Council this year was beginning a new production of "Tiger Reels," a 16-mm. color film about life in Hempstead High. The main purpose of the film will be to acquaint Freshmen and newcomers with the various departments, events, and the extra-curricular activities of the school. The film will portray a typical freshman's day and include various features of the school year.

The main reason for remaking the film was to put new life, new faces, and new ideas in it. Another addition was that of the Hub-Cat, our Hempstead High School mascot, who will appear throughout the movie and will add a light and comical touch to the film. "Tiger Reel" is being produced because of the great interest in this enterprise of our principal, Mr. Beddow, who is financing it from a fund at his disposal.

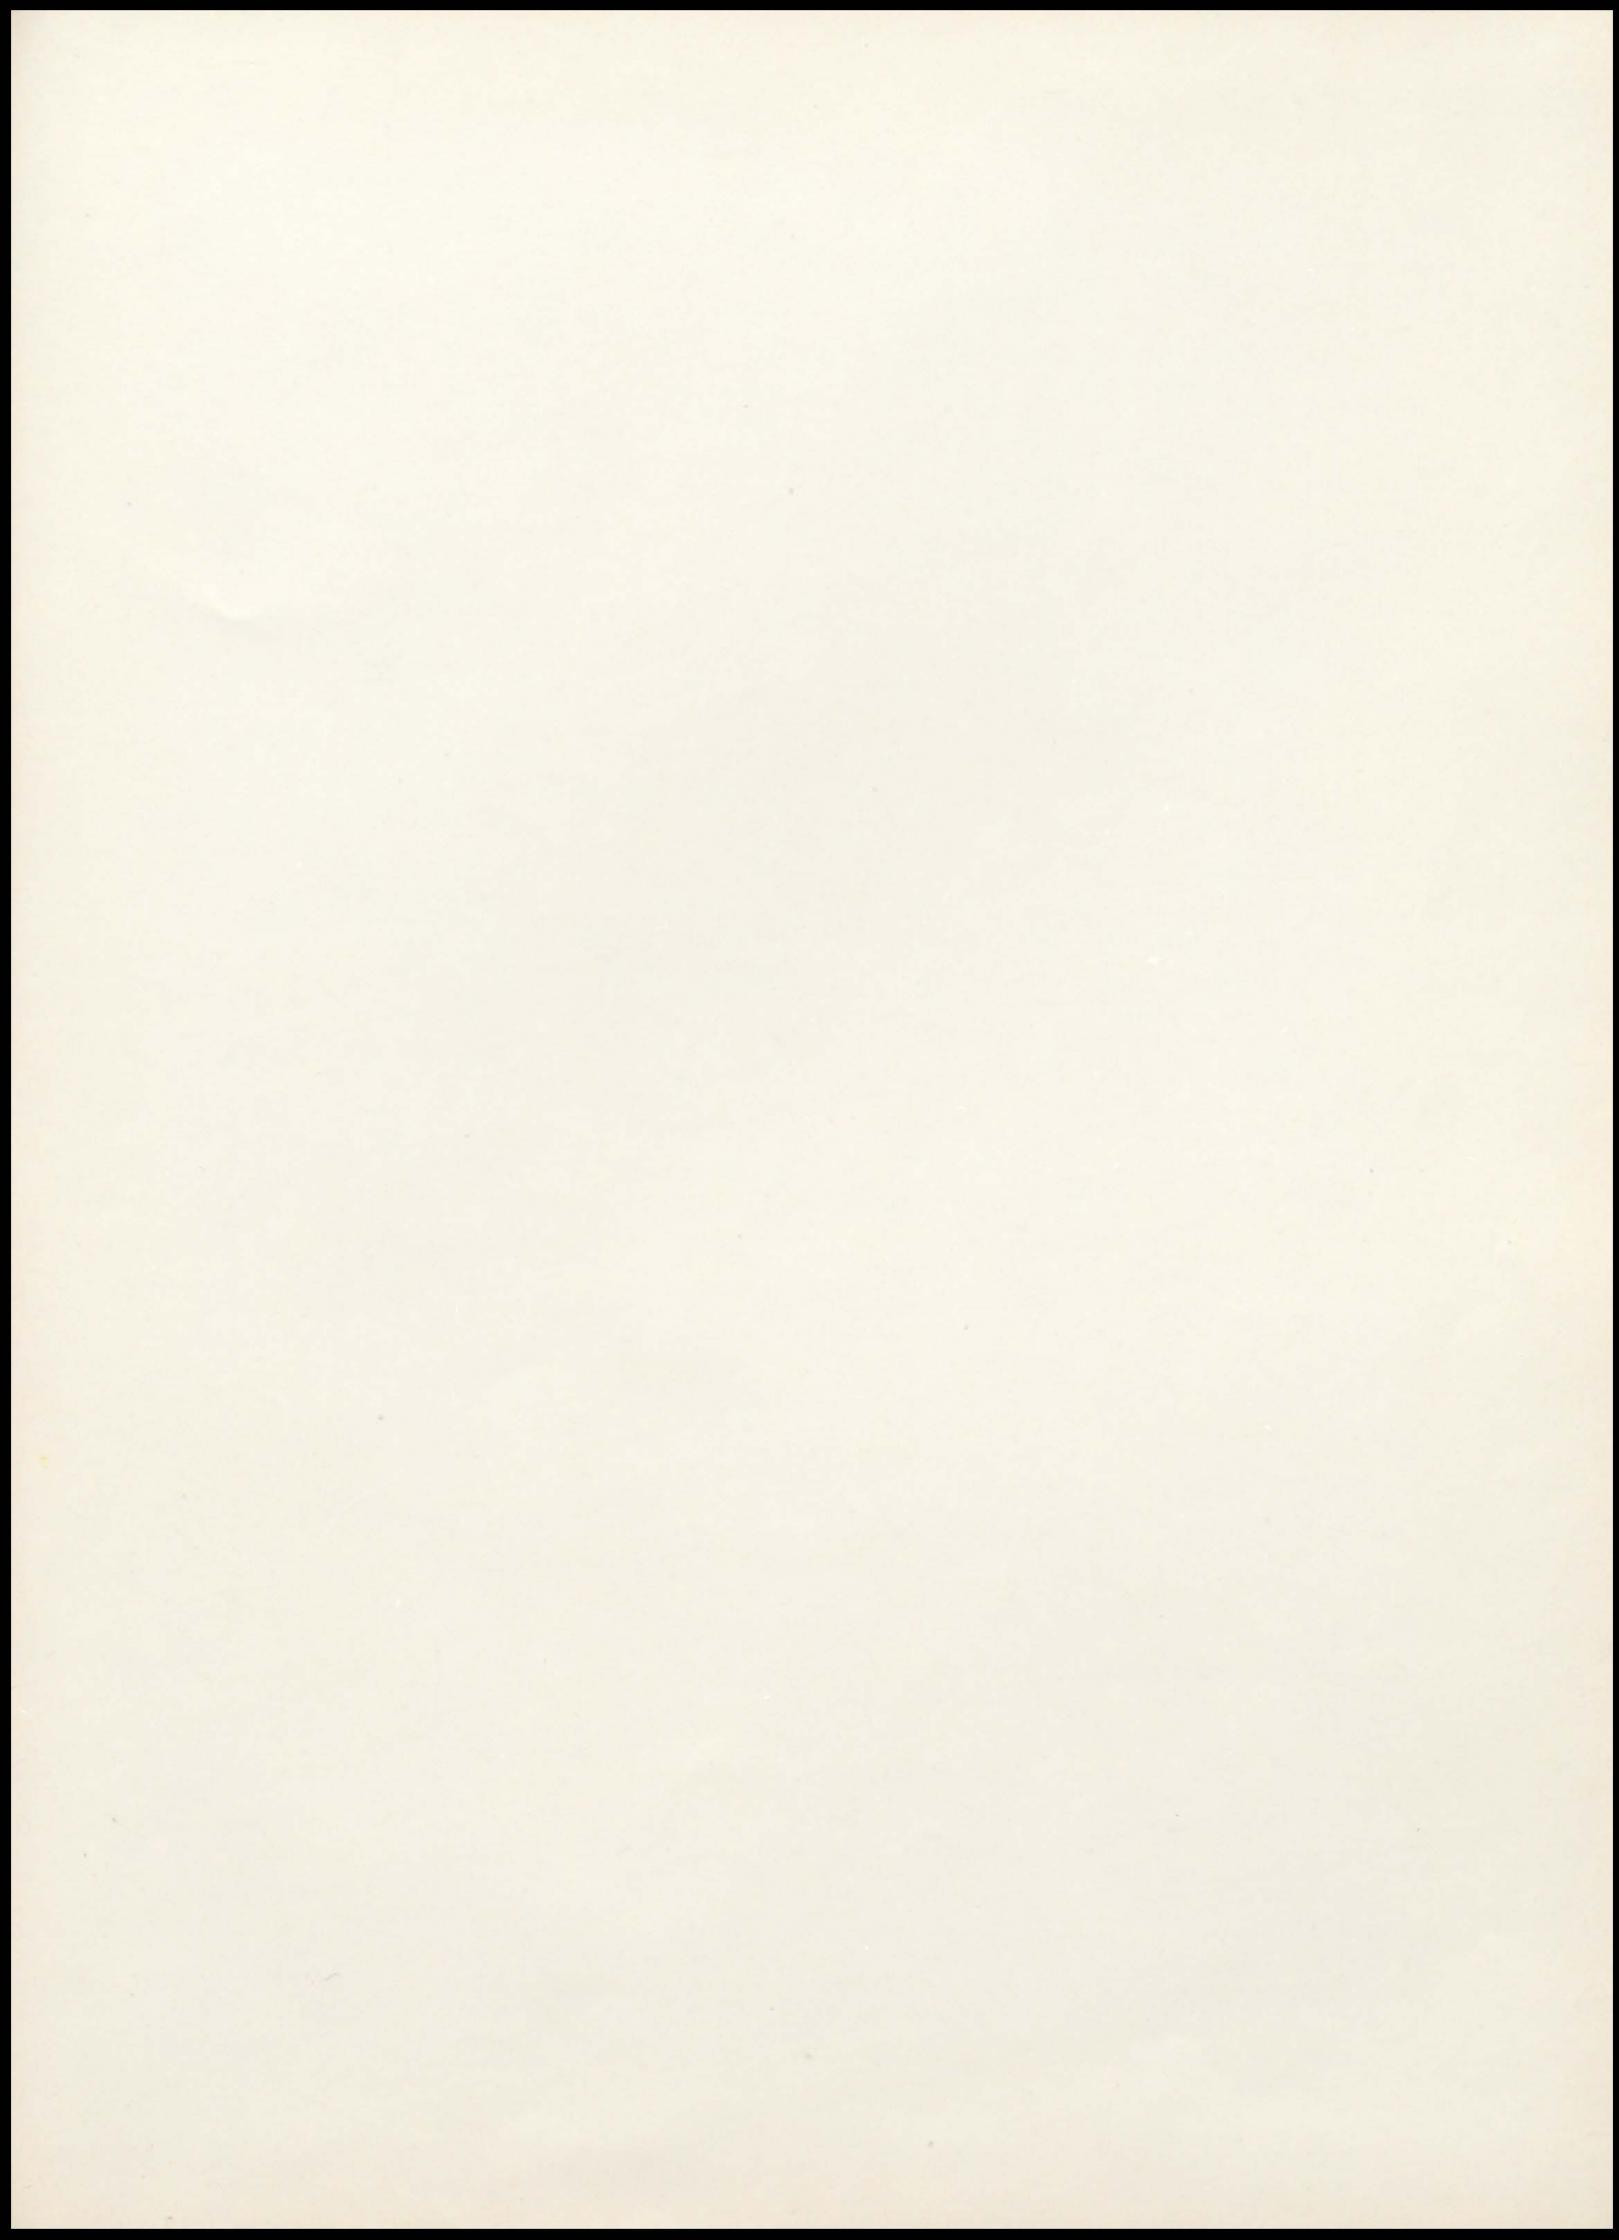

Throughout the year, the Student Council committee has been preparing the film. The committee was headed by Chairman Steve Bloomfield, who, with Roy Feldman and Jorene Keenan, outlined the format and worked out the timing. The remaining members, consisting of Sherry Rice, Sam Gold, and Bob Nesbitt, helped with the staging of the scenes, and Mr. Smith, with Roy Feldman's assistance, competently handled the photographic portion.

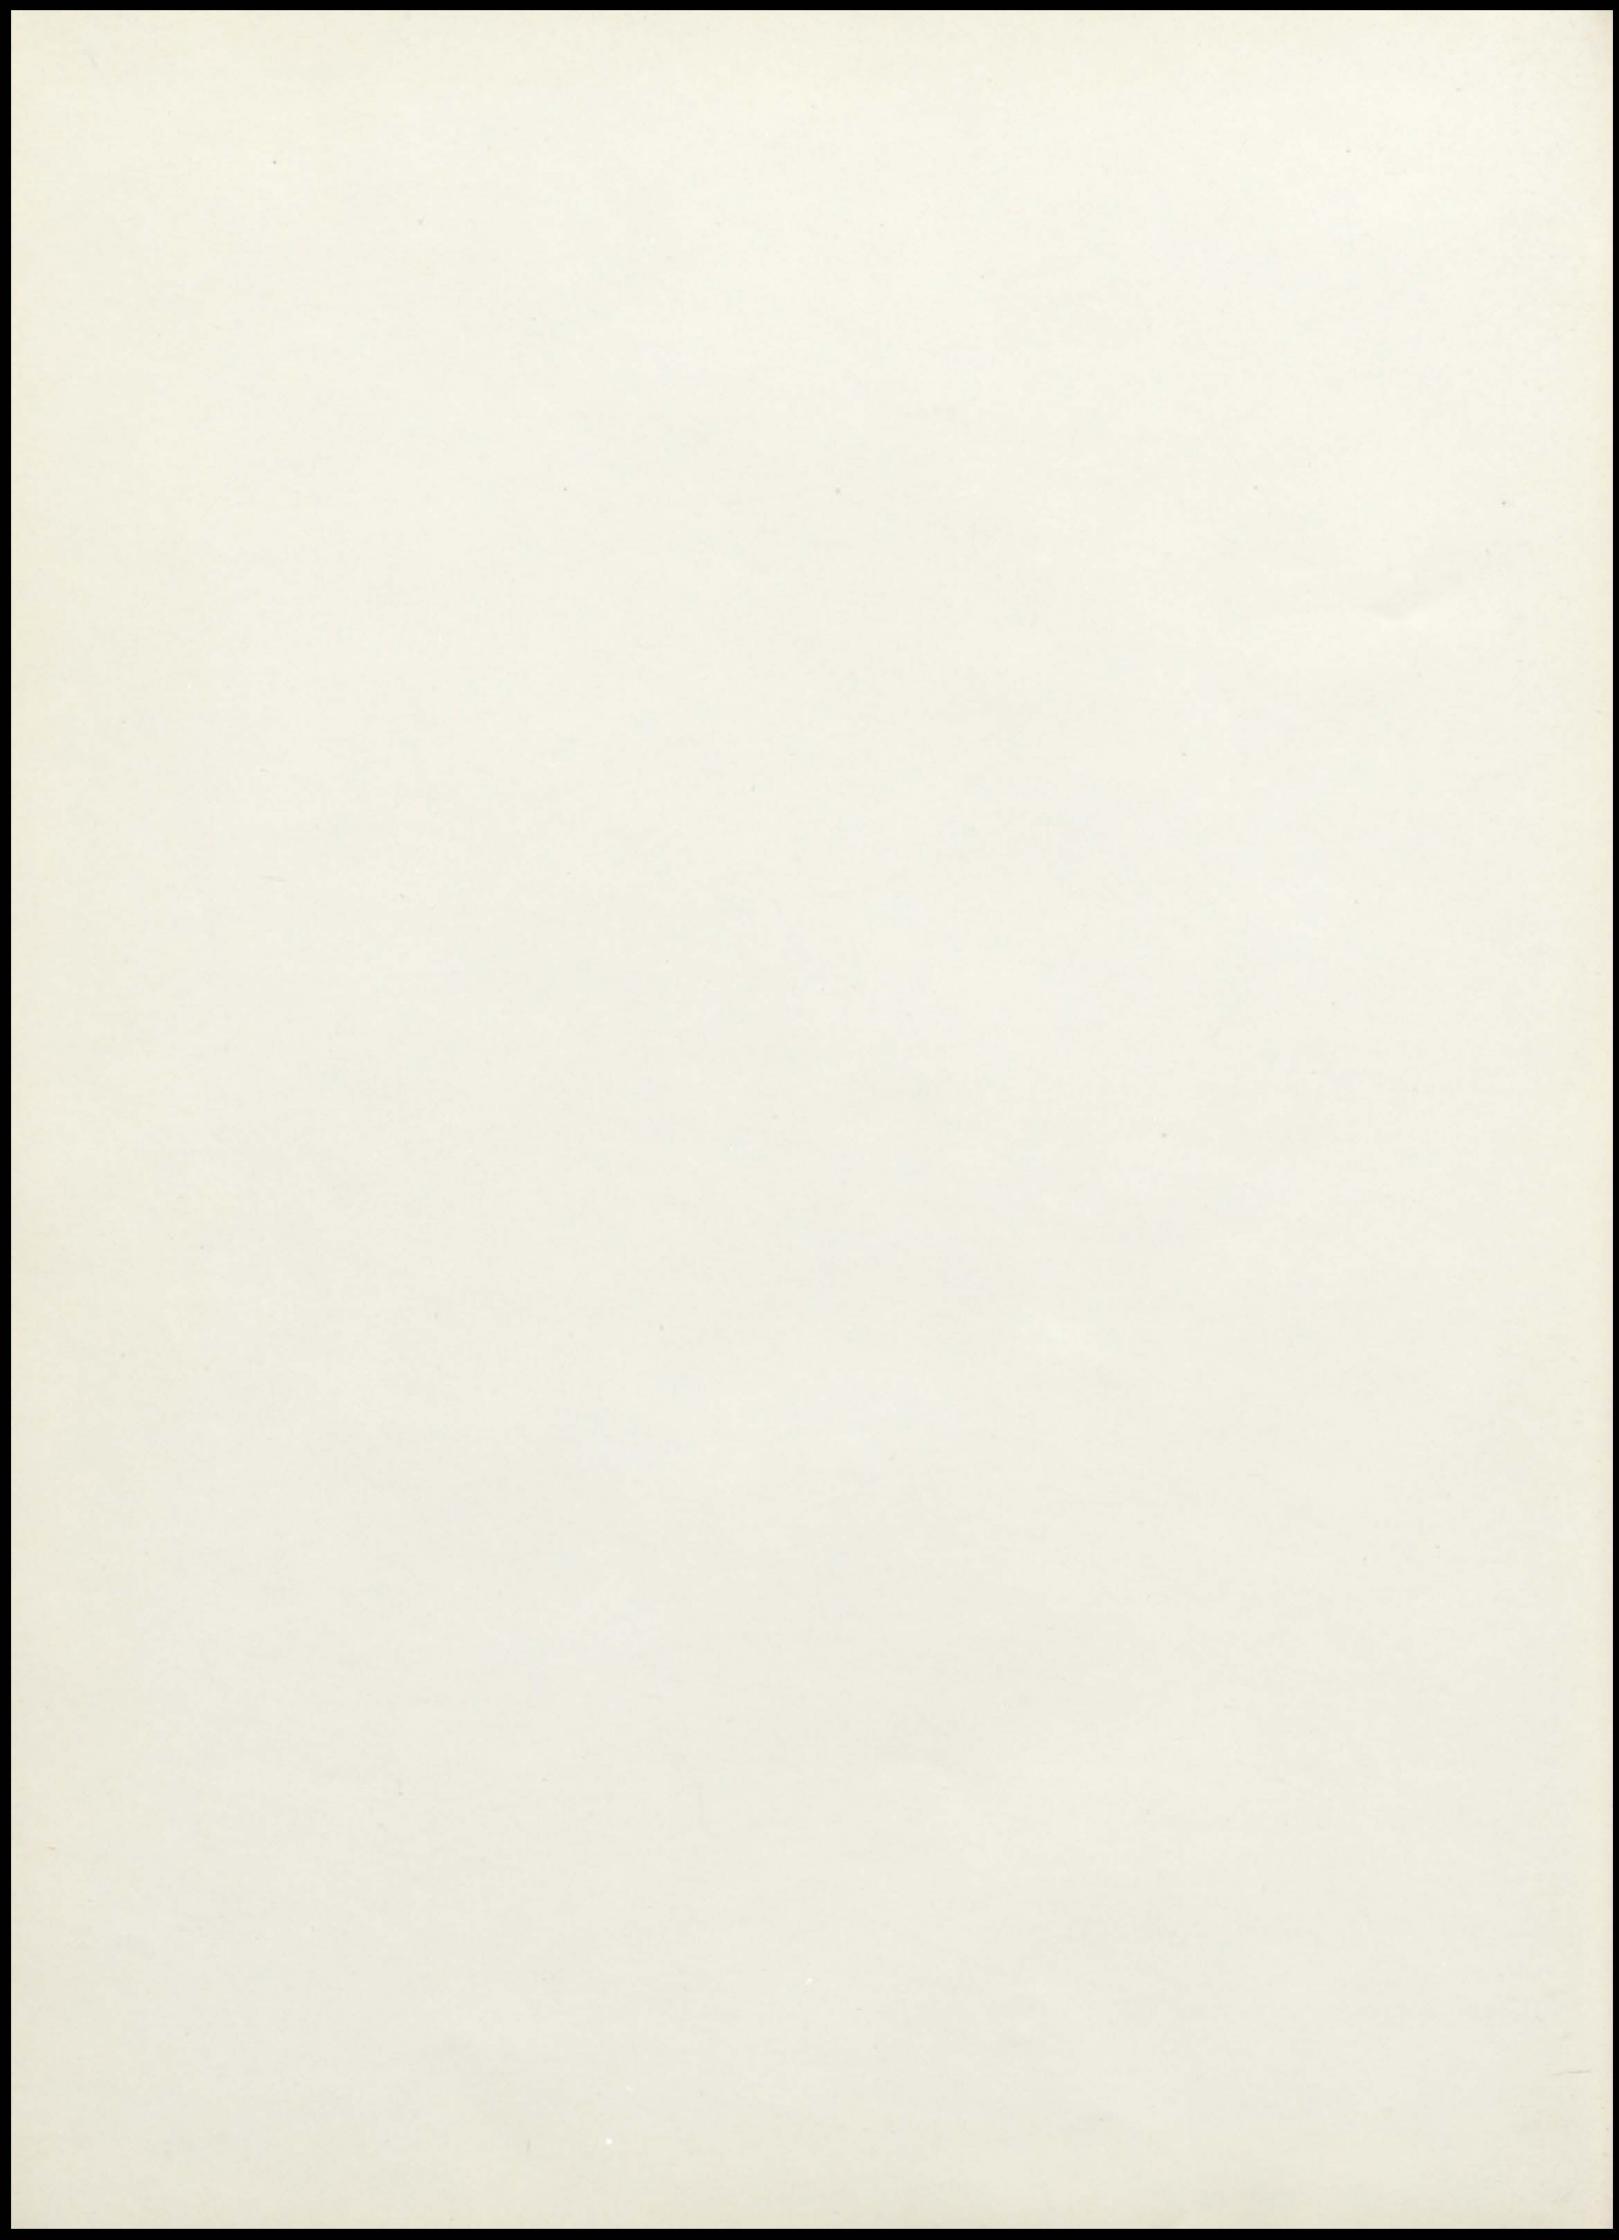

The film should be ready next term for the incoming freshmen and new students.
